WASHINGTON.

A Starting Point for Civil Service Reform.

DESIGNS ON THE NEW YORK CUSTOM HOUSE

Exigencies of Party to Give Way to Public Business.

THE EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

Wade Hampton's Reply to Chamberlain's Letter.

FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, April 4, 1877.

CIVIL SERVICE REFORM—A QUESTION OF INSTRUMENTALITIES.

The great question of civil service reform appears before the administration in the shape of General Sharpe, of the New York Custom House, whose term is about to expire. The question arises whether he and other heads of the Custom House shall be reappointed or whether a clean sweep shall be made. It is pretty well understood that the New York Custom House has been a huge political machine, and that to make it a useful business establishment and nothing else, to exclude politics from it and make the Collector really a collector of customs duties and all his assistants and subordinate helpers in that business and make them leave politics alone is one of the first, most necessary and most difficult steps in a reform of the civil service. It means a thorough reorganization of the whole establishment, and the question they are pondering here is whether the men who have worked the machine under the old system are the best or can be expected to work it under the new and better plan.

The President said in his inaugural message that he meant to make a reform in the civil service "thorough, radical and complete," and to "divorce the public business entirely from partisan politics." He is thoroughly in earnest in the matter, and there is some reason to believe that he sees that he cannot begin anywhere better than in the New York Custom House. While the campaign there is not yet completely planned it is pretty certain that he means to make a complete sweep of those who are so mixed up with the old system as to make it doubtful whether they would be efficient leaders in a reform.

It is a good time just now for the importers and merchants of New York to give the President their support toward such an attempt at reform by making known the defects of the present service. He would probably be grateful for information of this kind, which would enable him to remedy abuses and establish a new and better order of things.

THE EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS AND THE BUSINESS TO BE TRANSACTED.

It is not true that the President has decided to call Congress together in May. He said to a gentleman today that he saw no reason to call the extra session earlier than the time originally fixed, the 4th of June.

The meeting will probably be very brief. The democrats will undoubtedly organize the House, and they have no disposition to prolong the session. Mr. Randall seems at this time to be the strongest candidate for the Speakership. Committees on rules and elections and probably on expenditures in the Navy Department will be appointed, but no others, and there is no disposition to do any other business than passing the Army Appropriation bill and probably a small deficiency bill for the pay of the navy until July 1. As the two Southern States will by that time be restored to local self-government, and under Governors energetic enough to keep the peace, it is not likely that there will be any dispute about the clause forbidding the use of the army in the Southern States. The navy deficiency arises from the alleged use of the navy pay by Mr. Robeson in meeting other obligations of the Navy Department.

GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCH.

WASHINGTON, April 4, 1877.

GOVERNOR HAMPTON'S CRITICISMS OF CHAMBERLAIN'S LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT.

Governor Hampton left Washington early this morning on his way to Columbia. Previous to his departure he said, in conversation with friends, that the militia companies which Mr. Chamberlain styled "unlawful organizations" were composed of some of the best citizens of South Carolina, and have been in existence for a long time, some dating back prior to the war, and that Mr. Chamberlain often addressed these very "unlawful organizations" and occasionally joined them in procession. He was an honorary member of some of them and has presented them with flags. Governor Hampton further said, in reference to Mr. Chamberlain's letter to the President, that the Supreme Court of the State, consisting of three republican judges, unanimously decided the Mackey (republican) House illegal, and yet, in the face of this, Mr. Chamberlain allowed this very House to count the votes and declare him Governor, and proposed in his letter to stand by that proceeding. Governor Hampton, in reply to the question what he expected would be the result of his recognition as Governor, said that, in his judgment, the results would be the best indication of the wisdom of the President's policy, which would finally be sustained by the whole country.

THE ORDER FOR THE WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS.

General Sherman went to Baltimore to-day to attend the wedding of Miss Barry, a daughter of General Barry; and, in consequence of his absence, the formal order directing the withdrawal of the troops from the State House at Columbia will not be issued until to-morrow.

CENTENNIAL DONATIONS ON EXHIBITION AT THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTE.

Congress having failed to provide for the display of the Centennial donations made to the United States by foreign governments, and which have been stored in the old armory annexed to the Smithsonian Institute, the managers of the institution have placed on exhibition in the western hall of the Smithsonian Building the finest of the works of art comprised in the collection. These are the terra cotta copy of the group "America" upon the Albert monument in London; two magnificent vases, inscribed respectively "1776" and "1876," and adorned to illustrate these two eras in American history; an octagonal pulpit in terra cotta, with designs from the life of the Redeemer, and two terra cotta baptismal fonts of tasteful and artistic workmanship. These articles attract much attention from visitors.

THE BIDS FOR SUPPLYING POSTAL CARDS.

The opening of bids for supplying postal cards to the government for the term of four years from May 1, which was to have taken place at noon to-day, has been indefinitely postponed by order of the Postmaster General, and a new advertisement will be issued. The late advertisement contained a proviso, which the Department has recently announced, that it might require the cards to be made with differently tinted sides. Several manufacturers this morning filed protests, representing that there are only three or four establishments in the country where cards of this description can be cheaply manufactured, and that they had put in proposals under the impression that the present style of card was to remain unchanged. Under these circumstances, and acting on the advice of Judge Spence, the assistant attorney for the Department, the Postmaster General determined to readvertise for proposals. About thirty bidders were in attendance at the Department to-day.

THE POSTAGE STAMP CONTRACT.

Judge Spence has submitted his opinion on the question submitted to him by Postmaster General Key as to the validity of the recent award of the postage stamp contract to the Continental Bank Note Company of New York city, which was contested by the Standard Publishing Company of Syracuse. He takes the ground that the award was legal and that the Continental Company should be allowed to fulfil the contract. At the request of the contracting party, the matter will now, however, be referred to the Attorney General.

POSTAGE TO TRIPOLI AND TUNIS—INCREASED RATES TO ST. HELENA.

From the 1st inst. the rates of postage on correspondence from the United States for Tripoli and Tunis by the Italian mail are the same as for correspondence to Italy. Postal cards are not transmissible, however, and registration is not possible. Prepayment of letters is compulsory in case of Tripoli and optional in the case of Tunis.

The Post Office Department being to-day notified by the British government of an increased postage charge on letters from Great Britain to St. Helena, gives notice that from this date twenty-seven cents per fifteen grammes (half ounce) will be charged on letters from the United States for that colony sent in the British mails.

THE NEW ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY.

Governor McCormick entered actively upon the duties of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury to-day, Mr. Conant retiring. Governor McCormick was visited by a vast number of friends, offering congratulations.

A PEDESTRIAN FROM GEORGIA AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

Among the large crowd at the Executive Mansion today, eager to see the President, was a foot-sore homespun-clad Georgian, who, upon the assertion that he had walked all the way from Georgia to see the President, was admitted to his presence without the usual waiting. The Georgian informed the President that he had no favor to ask in the way of obtaining an office, but desired to give him some information regarding affairs in Georgia. The opportunity was at hand, and the pedestrian related several matters that he thought should be attended to, of which the President made a note with a view to their proper official reference.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

William Green, a London detective, arrived in this city yesterday, from San Francisco, with one Frank Ford who has been looked for in all the principal cities of both hemispheres. Ford is twenty-three years of age, of handsome form, and very stylish. When he was arrested in Los Angeles, in California, he was in the company of a beautiful young woman, who did not desert him during his imprisonment in the San Francisco jail. Ford was the confidential clerk of Arthur Turner Hewitt, a prominent solicitor in London, and absconded with twenty New South Wales bonds, valued at £200 each, which were the property of his employer. Ford first took the bonds from the safe and showed them to one of Mr. Hewitt's brothers, who wanted to invest some trust funds for minor children. The young man did not make a bargain with Mr. Hewitt, but sold some of the bonds for £486 to another, receiving a check upon the London Joint Stock Bank. On the 3d of July, 1876, Ford was discharged from his employer's service. On the 11th of January, of this year, Mr. Hewitt discovered that the bonds were missing. Ford took the twenty bonds to Henry Graves, a London broker, and asked to have them cashed. He presented a letter, purporting to be signed by J. Noel Welman, requesting that Mr. Graves should favor Ford. Mr. Graves purchased five of the bonds and paid Ford £500. In December Ford was in San Francisco. He went to the banking house of B. Davidson & Co., and there disposed of more of the bonds for $3,336. Ford sold them under the name of Frederick Lord. The banking house sent the bonds to London, and thus Ford's whereabouts were discovered. Captain Lees, of the San Francisco detective force, arrested Ford in Los Angelos, and the English detective, Green, went from London to San Francisco after the prisoner. Yesterday the detective and Ford sailed from this port for England.

THIEVING DURING A FIRE.

A fire broke out last evening in the three story brick house in the rear of No. 47 Bethune street, occupied by Budd's paint and putty works and Loomis' sewing machine case factory, and destroyed about $1,000 worth of property before it was extinguished. While the excitement caused in the neighborhood by the fire was at its height Mrs. Ann Perselt, of No. 61 Bethune street, was sitting alone in her room, looking out of the window. A mendicant suddenly appeared in the room and asked her for assistance. She offered him food, but he rejected it and demanded money. A proffer of a small sum was also declined, and before the lady could utter a cry the man threw her upon the floor and was about to ransack the bureau, when she struggled to her feet and gave an alarm, which frightened him from the house.

CHARLEY ROSS AGAIN.

Charley Ross' father was at the Central Office yesterday, and conferred with Superintendent Walling touching a new clew he has as to the whereabouts of his lost son. This time the boy is reported at San Francisco.

MEDICAL EXPERTS.

HOW FAR THEIR TESTIMONY MAY BE RELIED UPON IN COURTS OF LAW.

A meeting of the Medico-Legal Society was held last evening in West Thirty-first street, the President, Dr. Frank H. Hamilton, in the chair. Mr. Jacob F. Miller, of the New York Bar, delivered a lecture on the subject of "Medical Experts." He commenced with the remark that the object of evidence is to establish facts for judicial determination. Such evidence consists of written documents and depositions of living witnesses. They are of two kinds—ordinary witnesses, who depose to facts, and experts or skilled witnesses, who depose to matters of science. The former tell what they know; the latter tell what they think. The first tell facts; the latter tell what they believe the facts mean. An expert is one who is taught by experience. His knowledge extends beyond the reach of ordinary men. It reaches the domain of science. Courts and juries are not supposed to be skilled in all the scientific questions which are involved in cases that they are called upon to try. They cannot understand the evidence produced; they need an interpreter. The lecturer proceeded to illustrate this view of his subject with reference to languages, by homicides of different kinds, calling upon witnesses to explain the relation between causes and effects. Upon this point he cited a number of opinions.

THE SPHERE OF MEDICAL EXPERTS.

Physicians may appear in two capacities. When they depose to facts they differ in no respect from ordinary witnesses. They may also be called as experts. It is in this capacity we are interested in them to-night. Many physicians think they are not obliged to respond to a subpœna. While they are in both cases required to respond to the subpœna it is only as an ordinary witness that they are compelled to testify. A physician's opinions, his knowledge of his profession, his skill, are his own, to be kept or imparted at his pleasure. While, therefore, he might be compelled to come to court to be punished for contempt if he refused, he could not be compelled to give his opinions, except, perhaps—the lecturer remarked—in the case of the government, which has the right to demand the services of every individual owing allegiance to it. The position of a medical expert, therefore, is one of dignity. His appearance is voluntary. He speaks to science. He produces the connecting link between causes and effect; between the act of the accused and the allegations made against him. As the jury are usually ignorant of the matters to which he speaks the physician should be a person of the highest skill and strictest integrity. His opportunities for good or injury are great. He may rescue a person from the gallows and save his family from disgrace or bring them all down in one common ruin. Many physicians refuse to be medical witnesses in consequence of the sharp examination they have to undergo in court. But their feelings should not be spared in cases involving great public or private interests whenever the truth is likely to suffer from ignorance. A medical expert, in the strict sense of the term, should be neutral. He has nothing to do with the result. A large number of cases were cited in illustration of this strictly impersonal character. Reference was also made to incompetent medical experts, and to certain cases where their testimony was ruled out or not allowed to be put in at all. In one case a man who had been educated a physician, but had not practised his profession, was not allowed to testify, because, in the opinion of the Court, he lacked the experience which was necessary to make him an expert.

VARIOUS SCHOOLS OF MEDICINE.

The lecturer proceeded to enlarge upon the point of the various schools of medicine, in regard to which the doctors themselves often disagree; and how, he asked, could the Court, that is presumed not to be skilled in medicine, discriminate between them?

Within the last ten years trials have taken place in which the medical witnesses did more harm than good—more to mislead the jury than instruct them. The subject of insanity was referred to, and mention was made of prisoners who were acquitted upon medical testimony, and nobody was more astonished than the medical experts themselves at the result. The tests touching the testimony of medical experts, as established by the Legislature, were frequently questioned by the profession. If they were faulty the medical people should apply to the Legislature for a revision of the statutes and not attempt to decide the law and the facts for themselves.

CAPTAIN MURRAY'S DISCOVERY.

A TALE OF TWO BONDS FOUND IN THE CUSTODY OF AN ARRESTED PICKPOCKET—THE PROCEEDS OF A FOUR YEARS' OLD BURGLARY.

William Lloyd, the alleged pickpocket who was captured by Captain Murray on Tuesday afternoon, on Chambers street, was arraigned at the Tombs Police Court yesterday before Justice Flammer, but remanded to give the Captain opportunity to trace the bonds found in his possession. At the time of the attempted larceny. Captain Murray was walking along Park row. He saw the prisoner emerge from a crowd and run at the top of his speed toward the City Hall, followed by an elderly man, who rapidly lost ground. Without waiting to investigate the Captain joined in the pursuit, and after a lively chase, extending over several blocks, finally succeeded in outrunning the pursued, capturing him on Chambers street, near Broadway. The prisoner demanded the reason of his arrest. The Captain confessed that as yet he did not know, but would speedily ascertain. In a few minutes the elderly gentleman came hurrying along, nearly out of breath, and explained that the prisoner had attempted to pick his pocket of a pocketbook containing a large amount of money. The complainant gave his name as Daniel Steele, of No. 2,230 Third avenue. The Captain handed the prisoner over to an officer to take to the Oak street station house and walked behind. On the way he noticed the prisoner slip something from his coat pocket into his vest pocket. The movement was adroitly performed, and almost escaped detection, which fact caused the Captain to make a mental note of the occurrence. At the station house the Captain personally searched the prisoner's pockets, but found nothing except a few pennies, a key and a knife.

WHAT THE SEARCH DISCLOSED.

"Is that all you have about you?" asked the Captain. "That is all," said the prisoner. The Captain then took off the man's coat, when there dropped from a concealed place in the lining two gold bearing United States bonds, representing $50 and $100, with eight years' interest. They were apparently genuine. The prisoner stammered and turned red, and said, "Oh, those are worthless bonds that I have had some time. They are good for nothing and I meant to have thrown them away." The Captain scented a forgery and took possession of the bonds. Yesterday he visited the firm of Fisk & Hatch and asked if the bonds were genuine. The answer was in the affirmative. Returning to the station house the Captain asked the prisoner how he obtained the bonds. The explanation was that they were given to him by an old lady now dead. The police ridiculed this story and the prisoner said he would tell the truth—he found them. Satisfied that there was some crime behind the bonds, the Captain called on Superintendent Walling for consultation.

The result was a general alarm to ascertain who had lost them. Yesterday afternoon Mr. S. D. Andrew, of Perth Amboy, N. J., called at the Oak street station house and informed the police that the bonds were part of the proceeds of a robbery effected in the residence of his daughter over four years ago, on which occasion several thousand dollars' worth of property were stolen. Upon this information an officer was sent to Perth Amboy to investigate. The police believe that the bonds will result in proving Lloyd to have been one of the burglars.

The two bonds were last night identified by Sarah Watson, of Perth Amboy, N. J., as part of the proceeds of a burglary committed at her residence as stated above, and were the only bonds stolen. The other property was jewelry and silverware, valued at about $4,000, which was never heard from.

THE RIOTOUS SAILORS.

William Tynan, John Tynan, Philip Scanlon, Thomas Boston and Griffith Mason, the five sailors who were brought before Judge Duffy on Tuesday morning on account of a drunken row on board the steamer John Bramhall, lying at pier 40 East River, were again arraigned yesterday. Devan P. Evans, the mate who was so violently assaulted by them, asked that they be committed because, he said, they were desperate men, and neither the captain nor the owners of the steamship wanted them on the vessel again. They had threatened to create trouble when they got back to the ship, and from their general character he thought they would carry their threats into execution.

Judge Duffy held the four first mentioned in $500 bail to keep the peace for six months, to stand committed one month, and held Griffith Mason, the ringleader, in $1,000 bail to keep the peace for twelve months and to stand committed three months.

The Judge instructed the mate to bring him a letter from the British Consul showing that the money at present due to the men who were committed was deposited with him, so that they might be able to get it when they were released from jail.

MADHOUSE INVESTIGATION.

The Kings county committee of the Board of Supervisors engaged in investigating the abuses at the Flatbush Lunatic Asylum held another session yesterday. Mrs. Sarah Boyd, of No 56 Taylor street, testified that she had once seen a colored female patient confined in a cell, the woman being without clothing and having a filthy straw bed; witness also saw a patient, a Mrs. Smith, whose face bore marks of violence, and she inquired of the nurses as to how the woman came by the injuries, but could get no satisfaction; the physician told Mrs. Boyd that Mrs. Smith was a very bad woman, and received as good treatment as she was entitled to, but the doctor finally told her that he would inquire into the abuses; Commissioner Midas, of the Board of Charities, had informed the witness that he would discharge the nurses, but he did not do so. Mr. George Boyde corroborated the testimony of the witness in relation to the colored woman. Dr. Dailey, medical superintendent of the Asylum for Incurables, stated to Supervisor Nathan, chairman of the committee, two days ago, that many of the patients in the latter institution, transferred there from the old asylum, might have been cured if proper and timely attention had been paid to them.

THE STATE CAPITAL.

Fish's Bill for Reducing Salaries Passed in the Assembly.

Three-Quarters of a Million of Dollars to Defeat the Omnibus Bill.

STREET CLEANING IN NEW YORK.

ALBANY, April 4, 1877.

The "boys" are reaching out in the impalpable for the "boodle" (Anglice, the money) which I indicated was here to defeat certain measures of legislation. Nearly $750,000 to bribe legislators, and they will not be bribed!—so far. I will take upon myself the office of a prophet and say that despite the "boodle" and the bull-dozing the Omnibus bill will go through, and I am assured the Governor will put his signature to it the moment he sees it. Of course the bill is not immaculate. It might be amended in certain particulars with advantage, but it will be a great achievement if any bill that saves even a ten dollar note to the taxpayers of New York city goes through. For the past several years the metropolis has been seeking for relief at this headquarters from its very heavy burdens of taxation. It never got the relief it sought, but it appears to me and to many that this Omnibus bill and the measures accompanying it will work retrenchment to a very large extent. I write, of course, from a purely disinterested standpoint, and I take no consideration as to whether the bill will help or harm this property or that. It is certainly clear from the debates I have sent you that the democrats are apprehensive that these measures will be detrimental to their party. But the democratic party is not the whole people, and, while these bills may be detrimental to party interests, they may at the same time be fruitful of good results to the people en masse. It is to them, and not to party, that the HERALD addresses itself, and for them I presume to advocate this bill.

It will be amended in Committee of the Whole of the Assembly, and a judicious amendment will be that to restore to the Mayor the Bureau of Licenses, in place of putting it in the Police Department, which has, indeed, already quite as much as it can attend to. The lager beer men will kick tremendously against the proposition to put the Excise Department in the Police, but after all, when you come to think of it, what more appropriate place could you put it than in the Police Department? It is objected that the police will bull-doze and blackmail the beer and whiskey sellers, but that I think is a delusion. The Mayor will be responsible for all, and he will see that there are such men in the Police Board who will permit no injustice to be practised by any member of the force.

FISH'S SALARY BILL.

There was nothing of any consequence done in either house of the Legislature to-day. Third reading of bills took up the time of the Assembly, but a breeze sprung up over Fish's bill for the reduction of salaries and compensation of certain officers in the cities of the State. Mr. Fish moved to recommit, for the purpose of adding an amendment excepting from its provisions firemen, police and school teachers, and reducing the bonds of the Chamberlain from $2,000,000 to $1,500,000. Mr. Spinola moved to strike out that portion relating to the Chamberlain. Purdy said the bill was wrong from the word "go." There was no sense in making such a sweeping and indiscriminate reduction of salaries. Ruggles opposed the bill, and Rockwell of Chemung spoke in favor of it. Burns of Troy moved an amendment excepting officers in Troy receiving a salary of $2,000 and less. This was adopted. Tighe moved to except Brooklyn, but the motion was lost. Finally Fish's motion to recommit was carried.

OUTSIDE TALK.

There is much speculation to-night in the halls of the Delevan whether Fish's bill will go equally through the Senate. It is a sudden bill that has taken the lobby all aback, and they are bound to make a grand rally on the Senate, but this body is so committed to retrenchment already that they can hardly do otherwise than pass it, and the Governor's signature is pretty sure.

POSTPONEMENT OF A CAUCUS.

The caucus of republican members of the Assembly, which was put down for to-day, has been postponed until to-morrow.

STREET CLEANING IN NEW YORK.

At a meeting of the Assembly Committee on Cities this evening it was agreed to report the Omnibus bill to-morrow, amended so as embrace a portion of Mr. Peter [illegible]'s plan for the street cleaning in New York city, and also the plan of Mr. Ambrose. There is a disposition to take it out of the hands of the police and give it to the Board of Health.

The Ambrose system of street cleaning is in successful operation in London and other large cities in Europe. It provides for a force of men, who shall be uniformed in order that they can the better be kept under discipline and more constantly employed. They shall be allotted separate districts and sections of districts, and be kept at work all the time cleaning the streets. This system is regarded as the most efficient yet devised.

TRYING TO CONCILIATE THE GOVERNOR.

In the Executive session of the Senate the rule requiring unanimous consent for Executive sessions on any but the stated days was suspended. This is simply a notification to the Governor that the majority in the Senate are now both willing and anxious to confirm any nomination he may send in for Superintendent of Public Works, but it is unlikely he will do anything to relieve them from the dilemma in which they have placed themselves by the rejection of his nomination of McClellan.

INSURANCE INVESTIGATION.

TESTIMONY OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE MANHATTAN LIFE, THE VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSAL LIFE COMPANIES AND MR. STEPHEN ENGLISH.

ALBANY, April 4, 1877.

The Insurance Committee resumed its investigation this morning.

At the opening Mr. Moak, counsel for the committee, asked permission to make a statement to the committee in reference to the condition of the Equitable as shown by the testimony of Mr. Hyde, upon which he desired to make a suggestion to the committee. It appearing that the statement should be made solely in executive session it was ruled out in order that it might be made later in the day.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE MANHATTAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Mr. Henry Stokes, president of the Manhattan Life, testified that he had held that office since 1860; his company had presented to the Legislature a statement of the salaries called for by the original resolution and was not one of the five companies in default; the average loading of policies in his company, he guessed, was about twenty per cent of the gross premium; the amount set aside for a reserve would depend upon the age, but it was so purely an actuary's duty that he could not venture to state it; the character of their investments in stocks had not changed in 1876 from what it was in 1875; they usually held to an investment once made; the company had on bond and mortgage in December, 1876, about $5,040,000; the property was situated in various localities, but principally in New York city; it has no home office; pays about $14,000 rent; hires no offices elsewhere except in allowances to agents—say about $15,000 a year; the usual percentage to agents is twenty-five per cent on the first premium and about ten per cent for renewals; "loading" is an actuary's word, and is his way of getting at the proper reserve on the policies; the balance is an excess applicable for dividends and contingencies; in our company the reserve is everything after the loading; everything except the loading is invested, except that used for the expenses of the business; the reserve loaned at four per cent is expected to equal the total policy at the time when it becomes due, according to the American mortality table; the company charges an excess for insurance over the legal reserve and the loading; we return to policy holders from fifteen to sixty per cent upon their premiums in the way of dividends; if we charge more for insurance than it is worth it is because we propose to keep the company strong and be prepared for any contingencies; the surplus of $1,972,282 in our last report was in addition to the dividends paid to stockholders, which was about $95,000 in all; these two items do not represent the entire surplus; they are not connected at all; the entire amount of funds which the company had on the 31st of December was $9,977,413 17; the company is a mixed mutual and stock company; each policy holder casts one vote; the capital stock is $100,000; we have divided about 55 per cent on our capital stock during the last five or six years; the charter allows us to pay them seven per cent and one eighth of the profits; it was organized in 1850, and we paid our first dividend about three years after—about eight per cent for the three years; the next was declared three years later, and was about eight per cent per year, or twenty-four per cent for three years; since then to the time when we paid fifty-five per cent it kept at eight per cent, with interest, but jumped up to twenty-five per cent finally; Mr. Kerr was the largest stockholder; he held $12,000 or $15,000; I hold $5,000; my brother holds $1,000; there are only two stockholders larger than myself; a son of mine is assistant cashier at $5,000 salary; the Board usually make a New Year's present of about $5,000; no other member of my family receives a salary; the present is made out of the same fund out of which we pay for advertising; I cannot say that it comes from loading, that is an actuary's term to cover the expenses of the business; it must come out of the dividends to the stockholders, of course, as every expense must; we determine the dividend arbitrarily; one-eighth of the profit is set aside for the purpose; it is a rule of the charter to pay that; the rule has never been changed; the profits are the surplus beyond the necessary revenue; the present is a percentage on the officer's salary; it is usually ten per cent; it is given to all the minor clerks in the office; the salary to the assistant secretary has been $5,000 for a year; the $500 has been given him because the expenses of living are high, and we can increase his pay in this way without compelling ourselves to continue it; we believe we have a right to exercise discretion in disposing of the funds of the company; the salary to the president was $10,000, and other bonuses amounting to some $15,887; the excess was a per centum of the net profits; two and a half per cent was allowed to be distributed among certain officers in proportion to their salary; the vice president received $2,355 in addition to his salary of $6,000; nothing additional to this bonus was allowed to any one; the salary of the President has been $10,000 for six or seven years; the bonus has seldom ever exceeded the amount paid last year; the total additional compensation paid to officers was $12,952; the medical examiner has not been paid any additional compensation; I hold no proxies from a policy holder; no one connected with the company does nor does any one else so far as I am aware; the bonuses paid to the officers were paid out of the general fund.

Q. Does the payment of that sum as a bonus depreciate the dividends to the policy holder to that extent? A. No, sir, not to that extent; the policy holders have some interest in the profits; the profits will show that with the reduction at the end of the year it would be in the surplus if it were not paid out; but we consider it part of the expenses of the company.

A STORY BY MR. STEPHEN ENGLISH.

Stephen English testified that he had never had any litigation with the Mutual Insurance Company; it was with Mr. Winston, the President; I am editor and proprietor of the Insurance Times; the litigation grew out of a statement made in that paper; there were so many actions against me I do not remember the number; there were two against me by Mr. Winston; they grew only partially out of matters connected with the Mutual Life; they were settled, but there was no arrangement that the publications relative to Mr. Winston should cease; they did cease some time prior to the settlement, but not while I was in jail; the bail required of me was $80,000 in two actions due by a fire company and another by Mr. Winston; the aggregate of bail for eleven actions and five indictments against me was over $440,000; the whole thing grew out of my having Mr. Miller turned out; the companies were favorable to Miller, and Mr. Winston tried to have them take away my patronage; then I turned against Mr. Winston.

Q. Were you paid anything by Mr. Winston in settlement of these troubles? A. Yes.

Q. How much?

Counsel for Mr. English objected and said that was a private matter.

Mr. Husted said, as acting chairman, that the question was not pertinent.

Q. What irregularities did you charge against Mr. Winston? A. He had proxies upon which he voted, and he paid something to State officers for some purpose connected with the soldiers during the war.

Mr. Husted—It was a loan to the Comptroller—was it not? A. Yes, sir, to the present Governor; there was no loss by it to the company, but I objected to the principle; I objected also to the giving of bonuses, which was done, and the sums given were charged as dividends; then he allowed his son's policy to lapse, and had it revived after his death.

Q. Were these the charges upon which he brought suit? A. No, sir; he brought suit upon other matters; they were not embodied in the suits against me; these charges provoked the suit, probably; I do not remember what was the real charge against me.

Q. Did you cease the publications after the settlement? A. I ceased them several months before the settlement; the settlement did not include them, and I have never retracted them; my business was injured, my health was ruined, and I came out of jail wrecked; that was all; Mr. Winston became ashamed of himself and did what he could to retrieve the wrong he did me.

BROKE DOWN BY EMOTION.

The witness here became so affected that his emotion overcame him.

TESTIMONY RESUMED.

I was robbed by the Sheriff's officers; they charged me $150 a night trying to get bail; Judson Jarvis, the Clerk of Arrests, extracted $250 from me for one night going around with me trying to get bail.

A RULING BY THE COMMITTEE.

The committee here declared that the whole testimony was out of order.

Mr. Moak then urged his original question as to how much money the witness received in settlement, and a general discussion ensued.

NEVER RECEIVED A CENT.

Mr. English very positively stated that he never received one cent from a life insurance company or any corporation in settlement of that difficulty.

The question was thereupon rejected.

SPURNED THE PROPOSITION.

Mr. Moak then asked if any person had sent for him to settle the difficulty. A. Yes; Mr. Hyde and Mr. Bliss, but I spurned the proposition; they offered me money, but said the attacks were injuring the insurance business; nearly every life insurance company asked me to stop for the same reason; I had something to do with the commencement of the suit for winding up the Continental Life; when the Superintendent of Insurance and the officers of the company were fighting witness had gotten up all the facts placed before the receiver; he had been insured in nearly every company in the country, and now holds policies in the Mutual, United States, New York, Columbia and St. Louis Mutual, all for small sums.

THE CONTINENTAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

Q. What were the charges against the officers of the Continental? A. The charges against them were levying money on the fire companies to corrupt legislators; in 1875 Stephen H. Hammond introduced his bill to tax insurance companies, but Mr. Tobey told me it was in the handwriting of Miller; George T. Hope then began levying assessments on the fire companies to defeat the bill and I denounced him; Mr. Hammond then brought his bill into the Senate, where it is now; the bill was what I call a striking bill.

IRRELEVANT TESTIMONY.

Here it was discovered that Mr. English was talking of the Continental Fire instead of the Life, and on motion of Mr. Cowden the testimony was stopped and declared irrelevant.

BUYING UP POLICIES.

Continuing, Mr. English, speaking of the Continental Life, related what evils the officers of that company had been guilty of, for which he had denounced them. For instance, buying up policies on statements that the company was in danger and swallowing the reserve, transferring assets to the New Jersey Mutual, of which Frost, President of the Continental, was also an officer, for that company to hold as assets of their own, while the Superintendent was preparing to investigate them; of these assests $87,000 of bonds fell out on the way and were never returned. The buying up of policies cost about $120,000, and these officers drews checks for them as lapsed policies amounting to $800,000. The officers afterward ran away. He knew nothing detrimental to any of the other companies. He did not know of any other companies having persons buying up policies or transferring assets in the same way as the Continental. The companies generally were all sound and solvent.

A recess was taken until three o'clock P. M.

AFTER RECESS.

TESTIMONY OF MR. FURBER.

The investigation was resumed this afternoon, and Henry J. Furber, Vice President of the Universal Life Insurance Company, testified:—

Am connected with the Universal, the Charter Oak, and until a month ago was President of the North America Company; there is stock in the Guardian and the New York State companies which has been held in his name to qualify him as director in them, but it was owned by the Universal company; first became connected with the Universal in November, 1865, as manager of the agents, but with the title of Vice President; the Universal was organized in February, of that year; witness still holds the position of vice president; the Universal is a purely stock company, with a capital of $200,000; it was the first purely stock company in this country; it started with the policy of no dividends—so much insurance for so much money; became connected with the Guardian in 1874; in February my attention was called to that company, and upon an examination into it found an apparent deficiency of $650,000 in its assets as compared with its legal reserve; I said to the directors of the Universal that this company had built up $30,000,000 of business with this deficiency; we needed business; if the Guardian had been left alone it would have gone into the hands of a receiver; could we with $650,000 build up an equal business, or should we not buy that business for that sum; I believed the Universal could afford to take it and take care of all of its policy holders and build up our business; the directors discussed the matter and agreed to make that $650,000 good in such a way as not to create a liability; the sum was added to the assets and contracts were made between the Universal and myself—one for $320,000 and one for $330,000—to the effect that I advance those sums and should receive a certain percentage and proportion on the Guardian's business until the sum advanced by me should be returned to me; that payment was arranged so as not to create a liability, because there was no agreement to pay that money back to me except out of certain sources of profit that were sure; the "apparent" deficiency proved afterward to be nearly twice that much; the other portion of the deficiency was not discovered, possibly because I had no time to investigate it; the $650,000 would not have certainly gone into the hands of a receiver if a receiver had been appointed afterward, because it would have made the company apparently solvent; the Universal agreed to pay the Guardian eighty per cent of its losses upon outstanding obligations, and the Guardian agreed to pay the Universal eighty per cent of its premium income; the contract was made to protect me, because I knew the Universal had enough to pay that eighty per cent; no loss could have resulted to the Universal if a receiver had been appointed, nor to me either; of the policies, $2,400,000 were reinsured in the Universal at the time by the Guardian.

Q. How does that prevent the Universal or you being out in case a receiver of the Guardian was appointed? A. The addition of the $650,000 to the assets of the Guardian made its assets equal its liabilities, and prevented the appointment of a receiver.

Mr. Furber then went into a long explanation of the business methods by which all three parties to this transaction were perfectly secure. He continued:—

Upon reinsuring the previous loading is not paid for; only the reserve; in reinsuring, the Universal, in fact, receives a risk at a charge of twenty-five per cent more than the usual rate; if the Guardian had gone into the hands of a receiver and the receiver had seen fit to pay the eighty per cent to the Universal, the contract continues and the Universal does not lose; and if he does not, the policy is forfeited and the Universal does not have to pay; as to other contingencies the witness preferred the opinion of the Court rather than his own; the money, $330,000, was paid on a check of witness', certified by the bank on which it was drawn; the money was in the bank at the time and was his own; no other company had anything to do with the transaction.

The witness appealed to the committee that they ought not to ask him to go into his private affairs, on the question as to where he obtained the money or how long he had had it.

The $320,000 on the other contract was put up in mortgages; when I first commenced to look into the affairs the officers of the Guardian assured me that the deficiency was not over $350,000; Mr. J. S. Homans put up the additional amount of $320,000 in mortgages; I did not do it personally, but procured it to be done; he was to receive one-half of the percentage paid to me for the transaction; the money was actually drawn from the bank and went into the Universal; I received the whole of the $330,000 in a little over a year; Mr. Homan's contract was closed last year; he received his share back in the same securities as he put in; it made no difference whether it was paid back in money or securities; the Guardian received no good, commercially, from the money, but it did receive good from it in the way of meeting the requirements of the law; after the contract was made the policy holders were offered the opportunity to make changes if they desired; I cannot say how many changes were made; a large proportion of the policies of the Guardian were surrendered; every surrender case stood upon its own merits, no arrangement having been made in general by which the premiums of these changed policies were paid ahead; the Universal was cheaper than the Guardian, but we gave them the benefit of the reduced rates; the amount of insurance liabilities in the Guardian at the time of the contract was $28,000,000; it was put in the hands of a receiver three years afterward; I cannot say what were its assets at that time; the assets of the Guardian, Widows and Orphans, North America and the New York State were equal to $1,200,000 at the time they were put into the hands of a receiver; they had altogether about $3,200,000 assets when we took hold of the Guardian; the $2,000,000 difference went for payments of matured endowments, death, losses, &c; there was a large number of endowment policies of the Guardian; I do not know how many matured during the three years; about $800,000 had been paid by reason of deaths; the absolute forfeitures were probably not exceeded twelve per cent; the Guardian kept on its business as the Guardian after the arrangement was made; Mr. Sill was President when it was made, and continued so until a receiver was appointed; I was a director, but held no other office; I received nothing personally by the change; the regular agents of the company secured the changes of the policy; I do not know what rates were paid; it was about fifteen or twenty per cent of the premium on the new policy; Mr. Homans was a director of the Guardian; he was no party to either contract, except that I assigned one to him; the securities put up by him were not the property of any life insurance company.

The committee at this point went into executive session, and then adjourned until to-morrow at nine o'clock.

THE NOYES EXAMINATION.

WHAT THE INSURANCE PRESIDENT DECLARED UPON OATH—HE REPEATS HIS FORMER DECLARATION.

The examination of Benjamin Noyes, ordered by Judge Depue, was continued in Newark yesterday. Mr. McCarter, the receiver's attorney, was recalled and testified that the assets received from Noyes were mortgages amounting to $83,000 on Avenal property in Middlesex county, $1,000 in mortgages of Marion Building Association: Louisiana State bonds, $30,000; Virginia State bonds, some detached coupons, about $18,000, and miscellaneous securities; there were no government bonds or premium notes, and no deeds of property in Washington, Chicago or elsewhere in Illinois, where the New Jersey Mutual is alleged to own property.

David B. Fackler, consulting actuary, testified that on the 18th of December, 1876, he made an examination of the New Jersey Mutual Life Insurance Company. He found the following assets:—United States coupon bonds, at par, $132,000, or $150,000 market value; Virginia bonds, $41,800; Louisiana coupon bonds, $10,000; bonds and mortgages, $84,500, which were in the company's office and the Second National Bank, where $14,000 had been hypothecated; saw no Avenal mortgages; the company had on deposit in various State offices mortgages amounting to $289,000. The secretary stated that the company held premium notes amounting to about $350,000; accrued interest and rents estimated at $50,000 and $10,000 was allowed as possible cash in bank. On his cross-examination witness said he was employed by the Secretary of State; the total assets of the company were estimated at $1,208,500; the president of the company told him that one-half of the $150,000 bonds virtually belonged to Mr. Daniel A. Noyes, the attorney of the company, for money he had advanced.

Secretary of State Kelsey gave unimportant testimony, and James H. Canniff, late cashier, testified that the securities of the New Jersey Mutual nearly filled two tin boxes, each of which was twice as large as a tin box shown him. This latter contains all the assets turned over by Noyes last Friday. The case was then adjourned till three o'clock.

Upon the reassembling of the Court Mr. McCarter again went on the stand and testified that he had been told by the receiver that a man named Martin, in New York, had said he purchased $20,000 or $30,000 in mortgages of the New Jersey Mutual, held on New Jersey property.

NOYES ON THE STAND.

Benjamin Noyes was then called and testified as follows:—I am fifty-four years of age, and have resided in New Haven since 1831; I was brought up a bookbinder, printer and publisher; since 1847 I have been in life insurance business; I am now President of the National Capital Company; as President of the same I made a contract with the New Jersey Mutual; this is a copy (exhibiting a paper); it was executed on the 26th of January, at the office of Daniel J. & Samuel Noyes, in New York; Daniel J. Noyes was attorney for the New Jersey Mutual; the contract is in the usual form of such contracts, according to my knowledge; I think I never saw Mr. Stedwell more than six days before the contract was signed; my acquaintance with him began with this transaction; I never knew Daniel Noyes until this transaction; he is no relative of mine; I told Stedwell we would reinsure on a pro rata contract, and Daniel Noyes was requested to draw such a contract; this was at my second interview with Stedwell; I supposed I knew what liabilities we were to assume and what assets receive (schedule of assets shown witness); this is the only paper I ever had from Stedwell on this subject; it states the assets to be as follows:—Bonds and mortgages, $424,199; State bonds, $32,354; real estate, $120,000; premium notes, $300,000; loans on policies, $40,000; furniture, &c., $31,447; accrued interest, $48,177; uncollected and deferred premiums, $362,000; agents' balance, $152,000; there were no government bonds; Stedwell said this was as near the amounts as he could give; the amounts might change, be more or less; according to this schedule the assets foot up $1,510,177; to this paper the National Company made the answer, "assets insufficient," and the negotiations were abandoned. Afterward the negotiations were resumed and contracts agreed upon; there was delivered to me on the 26th of January a small portion of the assets; altogether I received $126,000 of assignment of mortgages, understanding that $100,000 of the remainder were on deposit with the State of New Jersey and $200,000 with the State of New York; I received no premium loans, no cash, no accrued interest; there was among the mortgages a deed for two houses in Washington; the deed was not acknowledged, and Stedwell took it to have the error corrected; I have not seen it since; all the assets I received were in the small tin box in which they were returned to the Receiver; I never took anything out of the box; I never told Mr. McCarter or Mr. Kelsey that I received all the assets of the company; Mr. Kelsey is entirely mistaken.

DEFENDING THE TRANSACTION.

Witness said:—It is not a novelty for one company to buy out another; it has been done throughout the country, and it would be disastrous to stop it; it is not true that the National Capital is an imaginary company or without substantiability; it has the largest percentage of assets on its gross liabilities on policies outstanding of any company in the country; I say this knowing what I say; everything, down to the last scrap I received, has been turned over to the receiver; no one received anything else for me, directly or indirectly; the negotiations and the transfer differed not the slightest from any other transfer of one company's business to another company; it was a perfectly straightforward, legitimate piece of business; after the transfer I did not absent myself; I remained in New York a week after Mr. Kelsey's proceedings against the company; I never avoided an interview with Governor Parker or any one else.

Cross-examined by Prosecutor Abeel.—I did not agree to surrender the contract with the assets; I never heard from Stedwell anything about government bonds in the possession of the New Jersey Mutual; I think I first left the assests in the office of our attorneys in New York; afterward I put them in the safe of the National Capital Company's office in New Haven; next I deposited them with a friend in Washington, and they remained with him until they came here; they never went into the office of the National Capital Company in Washington; shortly after receiving the assets I saw Stedwell in Washington; I have not seen him since, nor David J. Noyes; the gentleman to whom I gave the box in Washington did not know what it contained or anything about it, and he received it in the same form in which it was received here.

This concluded the examination. A transcript will be made and furnished to Judge Depue when the question of Mr. Noyes' bail will again come up.

THE CLUBBING MANIA.

TRIAL OF OFFICER NAYLOR FOR AN UNPROVOKED ASSAULT.

Officer Naylor was yesterday tried by the Police Commissioners for the outrage he was charged with perpetrating at the West Side Hotel. The first witness called was Captain Williams, who testified that he had heard the accusations made against the officer, and had at once investigated them, finding that they were in the main correct; Naylor had undoubtedly been intoxicated, and while in that condition had assailed and savagely beaten an inoffensive citizen; the affair occurred on the 11th of March, and at a time when the officer was supposed to be doing morning patrol duty.

Mr. Garvey, a clerk in the hotel, was next called. He stated that the officer and his brother were wrangling, and when he had his attention called to them the former was about to resort to violence; he interfered, but not before a blow was struck by Naylor, who then attempted to draw his revolver, but was restrained; in a few minutes the officer left the hotel, but returned shortly and renewed the quarrel, using a number of offensive epithets and talking in a bragging and truculent way; there was nothing said to him in return, but suddenly he lifted his club and brought it down with all his strength upon the head of McGarvey's brother, felling him to the floor. He was about to follow up this assault, when a number of officers, who witnessed it, interfered and hurried him away. Naylor pleaded in defence that he had been several times ridiculed by the man he assaulted, and that on the morning in question he had been called into the hotel to arrest some one and then laughed at for his pains. He said, too, that his fellow officers had made him the subject of merriment, and that he was too little to make an arrest and he was driven by their jibes to make the assault. He denied being intoxicated. Officer Hussey was called for the defence, but was constrained to admit that Naylor clubbed Garvey without provocation and that at the time he was under the influence of liquor. The case was then closed.

FIVE DAYS' PAY FOR CLUBBING A MAN.

Patrolman Ryan, of the Thirteenth precinct, Brooklyn, was fined five days' pay yesterday, by the Board of Police Commissioners, for clubbing Peter Conner on March 17.

OUR SAVINGS BANKS.

How They Are Managed, Mismanaged and Ruined.

MONEY AND CONFIDENCE LOST.

Examples of Extravagance and Economy in Some Banks.

Those of the public who are interested in the affairs of suspended and other savings banks have manifested a strong desire to know something further on this important subject. Some trouble, therefore, has been taken to ascertain, not only how the losing depositors of rotten institutions feel, but also in what light the public continues to regard savings banks in this city. It is conceded that in the late past the affairs of these concerns, which were ostensibly called into existence for the benefit of the middle and lower classes, have been so badly managed in many instances as to cast suspicion upon the operations of nearly all savings institutions. Yet, under favorable circumstances as to honesty of management and the integrity of their officers, savings institutions are of great advantage in many respects. When, however, the trustees of the moneys deposited in them and the interests which they represent are in themselves reckless and regardless of the sacredness of their trust, not only do these corporations work mischief by squandering the people's money, but they also demoralize the public mind.

A prominent gentleman, who is well known in connection with the banking interests of New York, drew the attention of the writer to the remarkable fact that from the year 1819, when the first savings institution was set on foot here, until 1850, there is no record of any savings bank having failed. As this remarkable fact covers a period of thirty-one years, during which savings corporations seem to have been uniformly successful, there appears to be no good reason why, provided trustees faithfully discharged their duties, this should not continue to be the rule for a much longer period.

SOME SAVINGS BANK STATISTICS.

The whole number of savings institutions throughout the State which reported to the Banking Department was 154 up to January 1, 1876. At this date the total amount of their resources was $535,796,336, and the excess of assets over and above this enormous sum was estimated at $33,689,701, showing an increase of $9,379,455 as compared with the previous year. The cash on deposit in banks or trust companies showed a decrease of $2,102,139 as compared with the year before, while the investments in stock exhibited an increase of $12,304,216; in bonds and mortgages, $5,507,832, and the amount due to depositors, $15,324,553, during the same time. The number of accounts which in this period had been opened with savings banks in the State was 859,738, which showed a decrease of 12,760, a falling off that is mainly attributable to the increasing want of confidence in these corporations. The case of the Third Avenue Savings Bank is one which has greatly weakened the trust which members of the retail trade and the working classes once reposed in savings banks. The last report of this bank before its suspension showed its assets to be $1,279,076 35 and its liabilities $1,370,571 18, leaving a deficiency of $91,494 83. A most remarkable incident was that while this bank reported assets to the value of over $1,000,000 it had in cash on hand but $3,737 48.

The Security Savings Bank, which formerly did business at the corner of Broadway and Thomas street, had assets to the estimated value of $378,673 73, and its liabilities amounted to $405,849 42, leaving in this comparatively small capital the considerable deficiency of $27,175 69. It may be added that searches to find the receiver of this bank, and also Mr. William A. Butler, receiver of the Manufacturers and Builders' Bank, have been quite fruitless.

RING SAVINGS BANK CHARTERS.

The records show that during the four years from 1867 to 1870, inclusive, twenty new savings banks were chartered in this city; seven of these were located on Third avenue, and five of them are among the recent failures. During the period of forty-eight years next preceding 1867 twenty-two new banks were incorporated in New York city, and they are all now doing business. In the latter instance the old establishments were started upon a solid basis and conducted economically, while the former appear to have invested in "wildcat" stocks, paid extravagant salaries to their officers, and as a consequence were obliged to close their doors. The lessons taught by their failure are not likely to be soon forgotten, and will engender conservatism as well as circumspection in the creation of savings banks, their powers, privileges, supervision and management.

TRUSTEES AND PAID OFFICERS.

The duty of a savings bank trustee is one of great delicacy and responsibility. He volunteers to protect the interests of depositors, and upon his action must in great measure depend the success or otherwise of the concern to which he belongs, and the man who thoughtlessly accepts a trusteeship plays with the most important interests of his fellow citizens. A matter of vital import too, it is claimed, is that trustees should not be paid officers; that they ought to be selected from retired merchants and bankers, who would have no "axe to grind" in managing the affairs confided to their care.

THE STATE BANKING DEPARTMENT.

Intelligent and reliable persons make complaint that the State Bank Examiner did not, from the time of his appointment, examine the liability, cash account and other business matters of the several banks in his department until rotten banks were about to close their doors, when he went over their books as a matter of form. It is also asserted that savings banks should be compelled by law to get experts to examine their books, when, say the supporters of this idea, it might be shown that several of them who now enjoy a portion of public confidence would be entitled to none of it. It is also believed that the trustees of each bank should be called alphabetically, and one half of them made to examine, in the month of July, the affairs of their respective banks, and the other half constrained to do the same in the month of December of each year.

Unless savings banks be conducted on strictly economical principles—say those who claim to know—they run great danger of failure; and if a corporation of this kind does not possess a large capital to commence with it can hardly hope to succeed. One bank in the interior of the State possessed a capital of $36,787 36, while its liabilities amounted to about the same figure. It had a salaried treasurer who, however, received a small compensation; but how such an affair could pay it is impossible to say. Another savings bank in this city showed the vast capital of $25,269,241 04, and its surplus fund was estimated at $3,566,839 22, while the expenses of conducting the business was $54,760 27 per annum. Another corporation of the same kind, having resources that came up to $17,188,481 31 and a surplus fund of $2,140,653 13, laid out but $44,046 03 in expenses incidental to keeping the business in working order. An institution which has been a long time in existence and counts upon a capital of $15,203,587 88 and a surplus of $1,455,188 42, is conducted at an annual expense of $49,279 96. On the other hand, a single example may be cited of a savings bank in this city which, having a working capital of $9,853,916 and a surplus of only $655,273 05, has an annual outlay for officers' salaries and other expenses which amounts to no less than $71,388 64. The Treasurer of this bank enjoys a salary that is fully equal to $13,000 per year. Instances of this extravagant way of doing business could be greatly multiplied.

THE BANKING COMMITTEE.

The names of the legislative committees on banking are Messrs. Coleman, Wellman and St. John in the Senate, and McKee, Baldwin, Cowdin, Case and Clapp in the Assembly; and to them the people of this State look for such salutary legislation as this department of local public economy demands.

STEALING MONEY LETTERS.

A YOUNG MAN EMBEZZLING HIS EMPLOYERS' CORRESPONDENCE—MONEY TAKEN FROM LETTERS TO KEEP UP APPEARANCES IN A MILITIA REGIMENT.

Special Agent Sharretts, of the Post Office Department, has succeeded in making a very clever arrest of a letter pilferer whose stealings have been a great annoyance to the Post Office authorities for the past six months. For a long time all the devices adopted by the Special Agent failed to detect the guilty party. Day after day complaints reached Mr. James of letters containing money and addressed to a certain firm being missing. Every conceivable precaution was taken, and even the clerks stationed at the box deliveries were changed in order to observe who called for these letters. It was soon ascertained, however, that no one connected with the Post Office was guilty of the thefts. Mr. Sharretts then changed his tactics. He wrote a number of decoy letters, in which he enclosed various amounts of money, at first, however, taking the precaution to note the serial numbers and issue of the bills enclosed. A young man employed by the firm was apprehended yesterday on suspicion, and on being taken to Mr. Sharretts' office at first denied his guilt, but on being searched by Officer Blackwood the contents of one of the decoy letters were found in his possession, but the letter had been destroyed. Finding this damning evidence staring him in the face he acknowledged his fault and made a confession to the following effect:—

THE HABIT OF CRIME.

"I commenced to open letters last July. Out of the first one I took $6 and then resolved that I would take no more. Having acted dishonestly toward my employers, I took no more for two or three days. However, the temptation was too strong and I concluded to open one or two more letters, and the loss, if found out, would be blamed on the Post Office. After a while, however, there seemed to be a perfect infatuation in taking these letters. Receiving a salary of only $12 a week, out of which I had to pay $6 for board, I had not much left. Having neither home nor parents, I got into habits that cost money to keep up, and I continued to take these letters—about two a day on an average. Those containing money orders, sometimes $3 and $6, I destroyed, with the contents, and kept those containing cash only. In this manner I think I made about $12 a week. In October I stopped taking letters, but in the meantime I had joined a militia regiment, and suffered great inconvenience from a lack of money. However, I took no more letters for some time, and the letter I took to-day (yesterday) was the first I took in three weeks. The letters contained mostly all checks and Post Office money orders. I think all the money I took during the entire time amounted to about $150. Have taken a very large number of letters, but cannot estimate how many."

This confession was signed by the culprit, and, as the letters abstracted were out of the custody of the Post Office authority when taken, the government cannot prosecute him. His employers, however, can send him to State Prison, but whether they will do it or not remains to be seen. The young man is about twenty-six years of age, had been in his present employ about five years and possessed the entire confidence of his employers. This capture is a great relief to the Post Office.

TIME.

THE WESTERN UNION'S PLAN TO KEEP TIME FOR THIS CITY AND ELSEWHERE.

An arrangement has been concluded between the Superintendent of the United States Naval Observatory at Washington and the Western Union Telegraph Company for the purpose of disseminating the standard time as determined daily by the Naval Observatory, to shipowners and masters, business men in general, railways, chronometer makers and others, and to the public generally. In pursuance of this agreement a time ball of large size is to be dropped daily from the tower of the Western Union Telegraph Company's Main Building at New York city, and arrangements will be made for controlling public clocks in New York and other places, and also for distributing the noon signal of the United States Naval Observatory to various cities in the United States having more than 20,000 inhabitants.

NEW YORK TIME BALL.

At 11h. 55m. a time ball will be hoisted half way up the iron flagstaff on the tower of the Western Union Building. This ball is three feet six inches in diameter, and can be seen by all the shipping lying at the New York and Brooklyn docks and on the New Jersey shore, as well as by all vessels lying in the bay, even beyond Quarantine. For long distances an ordinary ship's glass will be needed. It can also be seen on Broadway from Tenth street nearly to the Battery, and from suitable positions it can be seen by a large majority of the citizens of New York, Brooklyn, Hoboken, Jersey City, &c.

The ball will remain at half mast from 11h. 55m. to 11h. 58m. At 11h. 58m. it will be hoisted to its highest point, about half way up the main staff—that is, over 250 feet above the street. It will be dropped by an electric signal at exactly noon by New York time. The longitude of New York being assumed to be that determined by the United States Coast Survey for the City Hall:—

12h. 0m. 0s 00 New York time = 12h. 12m. 10s.47 Washington time.

12h. 0m. 0s.00 New York time = 4h. 56m. 1s.65 Greenwich time.

If, on account of high winds, &c., the ball fails to fall at 12h. 0m. 0s., it will be kept at mast head till 12h. 5m., and then dropped at 12h. 5m. 0s. In such cases, a small red flag will be hoisted at 12h. 1m. and kept flying till 12h. 10m.

The time of falling of the ball will record itself automatically, by electricity, near the standard clock of the Western Union Company, (which is regulated by signals from the Washington Observatory,) and if by any cause it does not fall precisely at noon, its error will be known. In the evening papers of the day, and in the papers of the next morning a notice will be regularly inserted, stating whether the ball fell at the correct time, and if not, then its error, fast or slow. In this way, even signals which high winds or other causes have prevented from being given precisely, will still be available for the regulation of clocks and chronometers.

This ball will therefore serve to regulate the clocks of New York city to standard New York time, and will also serve to give the correction to the chronometers of ships lying in the harbor.

The company is in readiness to erect and maintain similar time balls at other seaports if the necessary expenses are provided for by the persons interested.

The ports chiefly requiring such time balls are Boston, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Hampton Roads, Delaware Breakwater, Charleston, Savannah, Mobile and New Orleans.

CONTROLLED CLOCKS IN NEW YORK CITY.

The importance of an exact standard time to a business community can hardly be over-estimated, as it facilitates the conduct of affairs, the keeping of appointments, regulation of hours of labor, &c., and to the traveller, whether by sea or land, it is not merely a necessity but a matter of vital importance. The daily time ball will suffice to furnish the standard time to ships, for the regulation of their chronometers. Railways, manufactories, clockmakers and others will, however, require an extension of this system to the control of their local main clocks.

Among other methods the Bain system of controlling clocks is simple and effective, the mechanical arrangement on which it depends being as follows:—

An attachment is fitted to each clock, by means of which a small pin is caused to project in front of the minute hand whenever the clock hands indicate 12h. 0m. 0s. (noon). This pin can be withdrawn by an electric signal. To control a number of clocks each one is provided with this attachment (which is comparatively inexpensive), and each clock is regulated so as to gain from ten to thirty seconds daily. At noon, as indicated by each clock, the pin is protruded and the minute hand is thus held fast, while the clock train goes on, the hand slipping on its axis. At noon of true time the pin is withdrawn and the clock goes on gaining the next day as before. In this way, by a daily signal, which is comparatively inexpensive, many clocks may be kept within a few seconds of exact time.

For railways this system is peculiarly advantageous, as the main clock of the railway can be so controlled, and as it may in its turn control the subordinate clocks in the various stations along the line. In this manner every employé, no matter at what point of the line, has the means of regulating his watch to the adopted standard railway time.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE WASHINGTON NOON SIGNAL.

The Washington noon signal is distributed daily at Washington (mean noon) over the wires of the Western Union Company by the standard astronomical clock of the United States Naval Observatory at Washington. This company has prepared a list of various cities in the United States having over 20,000 inhabitants.

THE RUSSIAN FLEET.

THE GRAND DUKES AT THEIR DEVOTIONS.

The Grand Dukes Alexis and Constantine have been very constant attendants since Monday at the religious services, held in the forenoon and afternoon on board of the Russian flagship. They have declined for this, their Holy Week, all invitations whatsoever, and the Grand Duke Alexis alone has gone on shore each day for a short stroll. During the services of the Russian Holy Week the altar is covered with black velvet, ornamented with silver crosses, instead of the usual purple and gold. The vestments of the officiating priest are also, during the Holy Week, of black velvet, with silver crosses and bands. At half-past nine o'clock A. M. yesterday high mass was celebrated on the gundeck of the Svetiana. Father Pahome officiated, being assisted by the sailor choir. Among those present were Admiral Boutakoff, Captain the Grand Duke Alexis, Sub-Lieutenant the Grand Duke Constantine, Prince Oboolensky, Dr. Simeukin and various other officers of the Svetiana. At six o'clock vespers were chanted, both the Grand Dukes being present.

THE GRAND DUKE ON SHORE.

Captain the Grand Duke Alexis came ashore at one o'clock P. M. in his gig and spent the afternoon in the city, returning to the Svetiana in time for evening service. The official visit made on Tuesday by Commodore Nicholson, commandant at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, on Admiral Boutakoff and the Grand Duke Alexis will be returned at the expiration of the Holy Week.

WILLIAM M. TWEED.

William M. Tweed is still in Ludlow Street Jail, and there is no prospect of his immediate release, notwithstanding the thousand and one wild rumors concerning his expected liberation. As for the story of his wanderings, as published yesterday, Mr. Wheeler H. Peckham, in whose hands the Attorney General has left the sole management of the Ring suits, stated to a HERALD reporter last evening that it was of no account whatever as affecting the proposed compromise. Mr. Tweed will be obliged to make certain revelations about his former Ring associates as well as make "a full surrender" of his property before he can hope for release; but the publication of the story of his romantic escape and subsequent wanderings has no more to do with the matter than would the issuing of a simply fictitious story. The prisoner, Mr. Peckham said, has not yet made any definite proposition of settlement whatever. Mr. John D. Townsend, the counsel of Mr. Tweed, says there has been nothing done in the matter of the proposed compromise for many days. He did expect to have proposals for a settlement and the release of his client ready for submission some time this week; but owing to circumstances, which he does not feel at liberty to state, has decided to defer their submission indefinitely. Mr. Townsend states that he knew Mr. Tweed was writing, or had authorized, the writing of the story of his adventures after escaping from the custody of the Sheriff. He had, however, never seen the manuscript, and was very much surprised to see the article in the HERALD, as he was given to understand that it would not be published until after the release of the ex-Tammany chief. Mr. Townsend stated, however, that the publication of the story was a matter personal to his client, and did not affect the proposed settlement or the position of the prisoner in any way.

SMALLPOX IN JERSEY CITY.

In consequence of the prevalence of smallpox in Jersey City, the Board of Health of New York has addressed the County Board of Health in the former city asking for statistics on the subject and what precautions are being taken to prevent the spread of the malady.

MARINE DISASTERS.

EFFECTS OF THE TERRIFIC GALES DURING THE PAST FOUR MONTHS—LIST OF VESSELS WRECKED AND DAMAGED—THE LOSSES ESTIMATED AT TWO MILLION DOLLARS.

The gales of the past four months on the Atlantic, and particularly along the North American seaboard, have been the severest and most destructive to commerce that have been experienced in many years. Hundreds of sailing vessels have been dismasted and badly injured; scores have been wrecked, their cargoes destroyed and crews drowned; many steamers have been disabled and delayed; seven were wrecked, four were burned, and the fate of one (the Colombo) will in all probability forever remain a mystery—like that of the City of Boston, the Arctic and the President. The losses to cargoes and vessels have been immense, and, according to estimate, will exceed $2,000,000. The number of persons who found watery graves is placed at 400, and the number of shipowners who have been utterly ruined at 350. The first storm of the season which was felt along the coast and far out in the Atlantic began about the 18th of December, and left destruction in its path; others, equally severe, followed in rapid succession, and continued at intervals up to last week, when the equinoctial gale set in, and, after creating fresh havoc, subsided, and henceforward mariners expect fair weather and prosperous voyages.

The number of brigs wrecked was 22, and the number of schooners that met a similar fate was 58. Fifteen of the brigs were owned and sailed by Americans, and 50 of the schooners were also the property of citizens of this country.

DAMAGED.

The vessels damaged by the storms greatly outnumber those injured in former years. Some lost all their sails, others their yards and masts and bowsprits, and a large number sustained injuries to their hulls and machinery, all of which had to be repaired, involving the outlay of an immense amount of money in the aggregate. Of the vessels thus crippled 158 were steamers, 757 were schooners, 298 were brigs, 632 were barks and 208 were ships.

GENERAL NEWTON'S LECTURE.

General Newton will lecture for the benefit of the New York Central Dispensary on "Hell Gate and the Improvements Being Made in the East River," at Cooper Institute, Wednesday evening, April 11. Mr. Julius H. Striedenger, C. E., who was in charge of the batteries and electrical apparatus at the demolition of Hallett's Point reef, has kindly consented to assist General Newton in the experiments to be made at the lecture. A model, in plaster, of one section of Hallett's Point, will be shown and afterward exploded by a miniature blast.

GENERAL NEWTON'S REWARD.

NEW YORK, April 3, 1877.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

I see by your paper that General Newton is to give a lecture on his great work in the East River on Wednesday, the 11th inst., for the benefit of one of our local charities. Is it not time, Mr. Editor, that the city of New York should show some appreciation of the noble efforts already made by this officer to facilitate the commerce of this city and remove obstructions upon which many vessels have already been destroyed? I think, sir, that some efforts showing the appreciation of merchants and also of the real estate owners along the East River should be made, of a more tangible character than the resolutions of thanks already bestowed upon him by the Common Council and certain public bodies. It seems to me that such a man should be made to feel that New York is his home. My circumstances are limited, but I will contribute $100 toward any substantial testimonial to General Newton in which public spirited citizens will unite. I hope the HERALD will promote this idea. I enclose my card and address.

A CITIZEN.

CHARGE AGAINST A LAWYER.

The examination in the case of Counsellor James Cowan, who is charged with obtaining money under false pretences from an Italian named Stephen Isola, of No. 14 Baxter street, was before Judge Murray, in the Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday. Isola charges that, on the 26th of December, 1876, three of his children were arrested and brought before Judge Bixby, at Essex Market Court. The following day he went to Cowan's office to engage his services to obtain their release from the Juvenile Asylum, to which they had been committed. Mr. Cowan, he states, told him, through an interpreter, that he would require $100, as $60 would have to be paid over to the Judge for fines. He says he gave $90 and got a receipt for the money. He afterward discovered that no money was paid for fines, nor was any required. Hence the arrest.

Mr. Cowan flatly contradicted Isola as far as the question of fines was concerned. He said he asked $100 for his legal services in the case and accepted $90. Mr. Hathaway, Mr. Wheelwright and a Mr. Waring also testified that they were in Mr. Cowan's office on the day Isola called, and they heard the conversation between Cowan and Isola, which took place through an interpreter named Andrea Cassassa; that not a word was said by Mr. Cowan about money to give the Judge. More similar testimony was adduced, and the further examination was adjourned for two weeks to allow Isola's wife, who is now sick, time to appear and testify.

THE MORMON QUESTION.

BRIGHAM YOUNG.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

In your issue of March 31 you publish an extract from an editorial in the Salt Lake Herald having reference to the recent confession of John D. Lee, in which I find the following language:—

> The one sought most to be injured is President Brigham Young. Those who know that gentleman best know that it would be impossible for him to conceive or contemplate the execution of the diabolical deed of '57. Such a crime is contrary to his very nature, as exhibited in every act of his private and public life.

That the public may better judge of the "nature" of Brigham Young and of the possibility of his "conceiving or contemplating the execution of the diabolical deed," &c., I beg leave to present a few specimens of his public utterances. The works from which I quote are common in Utah, and may be found in the Congressional library in Washington and elsewhere in the States.

Early in the history of the Mormons in Utah a sect arose among them called the Gladdenites. In the Tabernacle Brigham thus delivered himself concerning them:—

> I say again, you Gladdenites, do not court persecution or you will get more than you want and it will come quicker than you want it. * * * Now, you Gladdenites, keep your tongues still, lest sudden destruction come upon you. * * * I say, rather than apostates should flourish here, I will unsheath my bowie knife and conquer or die. (Great commotion in the congregation and a simultaneous burst of feeling assenting to the declaration.) Now, you nasty apostates, clear out or judgment will be laid to the line and righteousness to the plummet. (Voices generally, "Go it! Go it!") If you say it is right raise your hands. (All hands up.) Let us call upon the Lord to assist us in this and every good work. (Jour. of Discourses, vol 1, p. 83.)

I will present only two or three examples of his public teaching concerning the Mormon doctrine of "blood atonement," or killing men to save their souls.

> In speaking of those sweet words of Jesus, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," he says:—"All mankind love themselves; and let those principles be known by an individual and he would be glad to have his blood shed. This would be loving ourselves even unto an eternal exaltation. Will you love your brothers or sisters likewise when they have a sin that cannot be atoned for without the shedding of their blood? Will you love that man or woman enough to shed their blood?"
>
> THIS IS WHAT JESUS CHRIST MEANT.
>
> I have known a great many men who left this Church for whom there is no chance whatever for exaltation, but if their blood had been spilled it would have been better for them. (Jour. Dis., pp. 219, 220.)
>
> * * * There are sins that can be atoned for by an offering upon an altar, as in ancient days, and there are sins that the blood of a lamb, of a calf, or of turtle doves cannot remit, but they must be atoned for by the blood of the man. (Ibid, vol. 4, p. 54.)
>
> When the time comes that we have need to shed blood, then it will be necessary that we should do it, and it will be just as innocent as to go and kill an ox when we are hungry or in time of famine. (Ibid, vol. 6, p. 59.)
>
> I live above the law, and so do this people. (Ibid, vol. 1, p. 361.)
>
> I could refer you to plenty of instances where men have been righteously (?) slain in order to atone for their sins. (Ibid, vol. 4, p. 220.)
>
> A correspondent of the New York Evening Post had an interview with Brigham soon after the Robinson murder, who said:—"All these United States officials are a set of prejudiced scoundrels, and he didn't want any more of their decisions; they'd better be careful or they'll have to get out of this place. Yes, I'll put them out myself—send them home by a short cut."—Vidette, January 12, 1868.

At an October session of the Mormon Conference, a few years since, Brigham said publicly, as a host of living witnesses can now testify:—

> Lawyers are getting pretty thick here. They are getting to be very troublesome with their lawsuits. It was just so at Nauvoo. They worried the life out of the Prophet Joseph, and finally secured his murder. They tried it on me there, but I told them if they didn't quit I'd send them to hell cross lots, and they quit. And now they are at the same thing here. I have no wish to be troubled in this kind of way. I have no wish to go through the same thing here again. I will submit myself to the courts, but if they try that thing on me here, I give them fair warning now. If any of these so-called officers of the law try to arrest me and bring me before the damned, cussed hounds of the law the government has sent out here to lord it over us, I'll send them to hell cross lots, so help me God.

Now, Mr. Editor, it is to be expected that the Mormon hierarchy will use all reasonable means to overcome the damaging effect of Lee's confession. Money will be poured out like water; letters, telegrams, counter confessions, &c., will come from every part of the land; the extensive appliances of the Mormon priesthood for controlling public opinion will all be brought into requisition now; newspaper writers and public men may not be found wanting; but when, in the light of Brigham Young's sermons even the Salt Lake Herald gravely says that crime is impossible to "that gentleman's" nature, and in support of its declaration appeals to his public and private record, it is altogether too much. However, the above are presented as illustrations of "that gentleman's nature" and the public can judge.

The writer of this letter recently spent four years in Utah, and in the discharge of his duties there was compelled to investigate pretty thoroughly Mormon history and the condition of affairs under Mormon rule, and he does not hesitate to say that the NEW YORK HERALD never championed a better cause than that of justice, liberty and human rights in that priest-ridden Territory. The nation will owe you a lasting debt of gratitude for this noble work.

ROME, N. Y., April 2, 1877. C. P. LYFORD.

YOUNG JOE SMITH'S DISCIPLES SATISFIED WITH LEE'S CONFESSION.

[From the San Francisco Post, March 26.[

From the fact that the Mormons arrived in this city in large numbers as early as in 1847—came here by the ship load—and made California an important missionary field ever since the Pacific coast was acquired by the United States, it is not surprising that the execution of John D. Lee and his confession should have awakened more than an ordinary interest among our citizens. The truth is there are quite a number of Mormons in California, Nevada and Oregon, and some few disciples in Washington Territory, and two or three times as many thousands of persons who have at one time or another been Mormons, lived in Utah and apostatized from the faith, abandoning it altogether and associating themselves with Christian societies where they reside. These "apostates," as they are called, as soon as ever they lost faith in Brigham invariably sought to flee from his rule, joined Gentile trains passing through Utah, and coming West have scattered all over the coast. The only organized body of these, however, is known here as the "Reorganized Church" of the Latter Day Saints, and its members profess allegiance to Joseph Smith, the eldest son of their "martyred prophet," and the founder of their system. In San Francisco they are not numerous, but they are respectable, good citizens, eschewing all the vagaries of polygamy and denouncing the doctrines of "blood-atoning," "milking the Gentiles," "blind obedience" to "the priesthood," and the other kindred teachings that have made Utah a veritable inquisition and pandemonium. Their numbers are quite large in San Bernardino county of this State, and in Ormsby county, of Nevada, and they have little batches of disciples in nearly every county of the States and Territories of the Pacific. The present headquarters of the new organization is at Plano, Ill., where their young prophet resides; but they adhere to their original faith, and are moving back again into Missouri, where they expected to build up their New Jerusalem. To this new Church the confessions of Lee are particularly interesting, and better than any revelations their own prophet could give them, and they mean to make use of it in their propagandism. Yesterday there was to have been a great outpouring on the subject in the hall of the Grand Army of the Republic, on New Montgomery street, where the branch of disciples meet; but, through the neglect of the deacon to advertise and bring the public together, Elder Andrews had to defer his discourse till he had a larger audience, and so he and "brothers" Anderson and Betts "bore their testimony," as did dying Lee, to their faith in the original Joseph as a prophet. An erratic brother, Mc something, was boisterous and said so many confused things that they had to "deal with him" and "suspend him" till he got more sense. As journalists invariably leave the pulpit to those better adapted for the work expected from it, of course "we take no stock" in any shade of the Mormon faith; but in looking at the rivals, Brigham Young and young Joseph Smith, there is something to hope from the labors of the latter in breaking off the shackles that bind the people of Utah to that miserable fanaticism which found its truest interpretation in the massacre on the Mountain Meadows. One of the elders spoke very cheerfully to a Post representative last evening at the hall of the fact that there were large numbers of the Mormons in Utah coming over to "young Joseph" and deserting Brigham, and the Gentile merchants and other well-to-do persons there were aiding them to erect a church in Salt Lake City.

BRIGHAM DENOUNCED BY THE CALIFORNIA MORMONS.

[From the San Francisco Post, March 25.]

The Society of Latter Day Saints held their regular meeting yesterday afternoon in the hall of the Grand Army of the Republic, on New Montgomery street. Elder Anderson presided. The main topic of discussion was the Lee revelations in Utah and the execution of the aged murderer. Several of the speakers bitterly denounced Brigham Young and the leaders of the Mormon Church, charging that they had cast a stigma on the entire sect. The followers of the Mormon Church, it was contended, had lost faith in their leaders, and the critical moment had arrived when every true member of the Church was required to exercise wisdom, caution and fidelity. The present and past policy of the Church in temporal affairs was severely handled by the speakers, one of whom went to such an extreme that a vote of censure was passed upon the offending brother.

PUNISH THE GUILTY.

Brigham Young:—"I say again, you Gladdenites, do not court persecution or you will get more than you want, and it will come quicker than you want it. * * * I know what they have done here, they have asked exorbitant prices for their nasty, stinking ribbons. * * * Now, you Gladdenites, keep your tongues still, lest sudden destruction come upon you. * * * I say rather than apostates should flourish here I will unsheath my bowie knife and conquer or die. Now, you nasty apostates, clear out or judgment will be laid to the line and righteousness to the plummet."

Ogden (Utah) Junction:—"How many more of Lee's 'confessions' will be given to the world we know not and care not, but each conflicting statement only serves to show the utter unreliability of the arch assassin's declarations, and tend to destroy all confidence in his veracity."

Gold Hill (Nev.) News:—"This Church, which thrives on the blood of the innocent, must be rooted out of our soil. The 'President,' who orders wholesale assassination, must be sent to join his victim; Lee. The nation demands that Brigham Young shall be the next victim to the theory of 'blood atonement' which he has promulgated."

Pittsburg (Pa.) Commercial:—"Congress has only to enact laws that will clearly provide for the extirpation of polygamy, without doing more harm to those who, in a sense, innocently engaged in it than could be avoided, and the blot of Mormonism would soon be wiped out. This work should engage the attention of Congress at its next session. The proper punishment of the Mountain Meadows massacre demands it."

ON THE STREET.

SETTLING DOWN AFTER THE PANAMA AND PACIFIC MAIL TROUBLE—CONFERENCE OF THE COAL ROAD REPRESENTATIVES.

Those whose wishes were father to the thought that a panic yesterday would follow the previous day's tumble in Panama and Pacific Mail must have been disappointed by the suddenness with which the persons most concerned announced their readiness to settle up the damage caused by the crash. To be sure, it is not certain that all is over yet, but Mr. Trenor W. Park and Mr. John Pondir announce themselves equal to the emergencies that confront them. Of course, rumors flashed through the street early in the day of impending disaster; but somehow the threatened storm did not come to time. Other operators were to fail, and the fortunes of the day were to include in their profit and loss sheet a suspended bank or two, by way of spice for some expected roast bull; but the operators concluded not to fail, and the only bank failures were failures to suspend.

The Pacific Mail statement had the effect of steadying the stock, and for some reason Panama did not flutter much. The sales recorded amounted to 1,545 shares, the lowest price being 90. The bears, failing to realize on the anticipated trouble in consequence of the previous day's events, put forth other stories of complications by which the street was soon to be startled. These were—but it would not do to circulate these rumors just now.

Mr. Park, in reply to inquiries about his relation to the Panama excitement, said it was sufficient for the public to know that he could meet all his liabilities and have a little left for himself.

Mr. Pondir, the suspended broker of the day before, caused the fact to be announced in the Stock Exchange in the afternoon that he was ready to meet all demands and would do so to-day. This announcement was warmly received.

THE COAL ROADS.

The other topics which received most consideration on 'Change were the meeting of the representatives of the old coal combination and the freight conference between Messrs. Scott, Garrett and Jewett. As was partly expected, the coal road representatives had an understanding for mutual protection. At the meeting there were present Messrs. Samuel Sloan, representing Delaware, Lackawanna and Western; George A. Hoyt, the Pennsylvania Coal Company; Edward W. Clark, Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company; John Leiseuring, Upper Lehigh Coal Company, and other shippers on Central Railroad of New Jersey; F. B. Gowen, Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company; ex-Judge Asa Packer, Lehigh Valley Coal Company; G. B. Linderman, representing the other shippers on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and Thomas Dickson, Delaware and Hudson. At the meeting two propositions were considered. Mr. Gowen proposed to combine all the coal in one office, that it may be sold by one man. This proposition was received with disfavor.

The second plan was to restrict the tonnage to the demands of trade. This plan will probably be adopted at to-day's meeting. Again, the meeting decided for itself that coal should not be advanced more than fifty cents a ton. In other words the combination says to the public:—"If we permit coal to be mined as fast as it may be, and do not unite for the purpose of preventing large quantities from being thrown on the market, as they will without a combination, the price will go down still lower than at present. This we cannot afford, so we will agree to bring along only just enough for consumption, and, as we do not wish to be hard on consumers, we will agree to raise the price only fifty cents a ton just now." The new combination, as it seems desirous of being already considered, will probably decide upon a plan to-day.

Messrs. Thomas A. Scott, Garrett and H. J. Jewett met at the Brevoort House, but their conference was private.

SAFETY OF A NATIONAL BANK.

BENNINGTON, Vt., April 4, 1877.

The news of the reported failure of Trenor W. Park created great excitement here this morning, and rumors have been afloat concerning the standing of the First National Bank in this place, of which he is president. The reports of the bank's embarrassment are however, without foundation.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

MORE ABOUT THE TEACHERS' SALARIES—COMPLAINTS RECEIVED AND CONSIDERED.

The Board of Education held its regular meeting yesterday afternoon.

Among the miscellaneous communications was a letter from Henry Fibol, of Lexington avenue, protesting against Jewish children being required to go to school for thirty minutes on their holidays or being considered absent. Such obligation compelled them to be absent from their religious observances.

The Committee on Teachers reported that S. M. Crosby, assistant teacher in Grammar School No. 37, be reprimanded by Superintendent Kiddle for violation of the bylaws relating to corporal punishment. The recommendation was adopted.

The Financial Committee offered a resolution that the sum of $4,545 34 be appropriated from the reserve fund of 1876, for the payment of bills incurred by the Trustees of several wards, in excess of the amounts allowed for incidental expenses for that year, the bills to be paid on the approval of the Superintendent of School Buildings. The resolution was adopted.

The Superintendent of Truancy, Mr. A. M. Stanton, presented his report for the month of March, which stated that the total number of cases investigated by the agents was 1,228. Of this number 740 were not classed as truants, leaving 488 truants and non-attendants, of which number 481 have been returned and placed in school and seven committed to the Catholic Protectory.

The Committee on Bylaws offered the following resolution, which was adopted:—

> Resolved, That the complaints of the school trustees and citizens of the Tenth ward, with reference to houses of ill-fame situated in the immediate vicinity of the school houses in the ward, be laid before the District Attorney of the city and county of New York; and this Board earnestly requests that he will take such action and proceedings as he shall deem necessary and proper to abate the evil complained of.

President Wood called Commissioner Beardslie to the chair, and, taking the floor, spoke at some length on the reduction of teachers' salaries and employés of the Board, objecting emphatically to the plan recently adopted of making monthly reductions of three and one-half per cent, and offering for adoption the following preamble and resolution:—

> Whereas the Board of Apportionment of 1876 among other moneys appropriated for the purposes of the Board of Education designated the sum of $300,000 "for purchasing, leasing, procuring sites, erecting buildings," &c., &c., and for the support of schools which shall have been assigned since the last annual apportionment of school moneys, and such further sum or sums as may be necessary for any of the purposes authorized by law; and whereas on the 21st of February, 1877, the Board "set apart and reserved this said sum of $300,000" to be expended as may be required by appropriations to be made therefrom by this Board for any of the purposes herein named; and whereas the Board of Education in its budget of the 20th of September, 1876, asked the Board of Apportionment for $105,000 for the corporate schools and the said Board of Apportionment only granted $103,000; and whereas, it appeared, upon a final adjustment of accounts, that the sum legally due to the corporate schools was $107,198, or $4,198 46 in excess of the sum allowed by the Board of Apportionment of 1876; and whereas, on the 21st of March, 1877, on recommendation of the Finance Committee, this Board appropriated $4,198 46 from the said reserved fund of $300,000 to pay the salaries of the teachers and other expenses of the corporate schools in addition to the sum of $103,000 allowed for that purpose by the Board of Apportionment of 1876, the authority for making such grants being found in the provision by which the reserved fund is set apart "for any of the purposes authorized by law;" now, therefore, be it
>
> Resolved, That the Finance Committee be directed to appropriate a further sum from said reserved fund of $300,000 to refund to the teachers of the common schools of the city of New York, and to the employés of this Board, the sums in which they have been mulcted from their salaries for the month of March and April, 1877, and further to make such provision as may be necessary to pay their salaries on the present scale until December 31, 1877, and that the requisite amount be held sacred out of this reserved fund for these several purposes, and that said Finance Committee so report at the next meeting of this Board.

Mr. Watson offered a resolution that the matter be laid over for consideration until the next meeting of the Board. The resolution was carried.

A motion was made by Commissioner Watson that the resolution appropriating the sum of $4,198 46 from the reserve fund in addition to the sum of $103,000 appropriated by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for distribution among the corporate schools be reconsidered.

Commissioner Wheeler moved that the reconsideration be laid over until the next meeting. Carried.

Mr. Goulding then offered a resolution that the Committee on Teachers be requested to make a report at the next meeting of the Board in the case of Mrs. Carrie V. Franklin, principal of the primary department of Grammar School No. 12, Seventh ward; against Miss Anna M. Marsh, principal of the grammar department of that school, for violation of the bylaw which relates to corporal punishment.

Mr. Halsted, chairman of the Committee on Teachers, made a distinct statement that Miss Marsh was fully acquitted of the charge of inflicting corporal punishment.

A long debate ensued upon the subject, but the resolution was finally adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

WRAPPED IN FLAME.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH SCENE IN A HOUSE OF SHAME—AN UNFORTUNATE FEMALE'S DRESS PURPOSELY SET ON FIRE—THE PERPETRATOR OF THE CRIME AT LARGE.

Piercing screams of anguish and a young female's form wrapped in bright flame were the sounds and sight that startled late wayfarers and roused the inhabitants residing near No. 110 West Twenty-seventh street on Tuesday night. When help came and the fire was extinguished it was found that Lucy J. Freeman, a quadroon girl, one of the abandoned inmates of the house of ill-fame, at the number mentioned, had been fatally burned, her clothes having been set on fire by a strange man or fiend in human shape, who had been passing part of the evening in her company. The stranger had called at the house not long before, and when he and Lucy had been together about an hour the other women in the house heard a loud stamping noise up stairs. Immediately after Lucy Freeman rushed from her room completely enveloped in flames. During the confusion her guilty partner made his escape from the house. The flames were extinguished after burning away nearly all the poor wretch's clothing. Although suffering terrible agony she was perfectly conscious of all that had happened. She said that the man who had visited her had lit a match and deliberately set fire to her dress. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital and placed in the little pavilion for women, where, after tossing about in intense pain the whole night, she died yesterday morning. The police are on the lookout for the perpetrator of the fiendish crime.

WHAT THE OTHER INMATES SAY.

From the story of other inmates of the house it appears that shortly after eleven o'clock on Tuesday night, a full-faced man of medium height, with sandy side whiskers, came to the front door. Mrs. Winters, the keeper of the place, who admitted him, had only a passing glimpse of him, but she gives a very minute description of his appearance, and says that she would be able to recognize him again. He had a light overcoat, dark undercoat, and a pair of trowsers which were two or three inches too short for him. He wore a beaver hat and carried an umbrella. Soon after his entrance Lucy Freeman came into the parlor and he accompanied her to her room. The other females say that the unknown man only remained in the parlor a few minutes, but during that time they noticed the shortness of his trowsers. They also noticed that he had a strange accent in his speech, and therefore judged him to be a foreigner, either a Frenchman or a German. About half an hour after Lucy and her companion left the parlor all the people in the house were aroused by a loud stamping on the floor. The noise proceeded from the back room on the second story, whither she had conducted the stranger. Mrs. Winters ran up stairs, and just as she arrived at the top Lucy rushed out from her room, through the adjoining bathroom, enveloped in a mass of flames. In a distracted way she rushed to the end of the hallway and tried to enter the front room. The other woman followed her and tried to extinguish the flames, severely burning her own hands and setting fire to her dress while so doing. While these two women were at the front end of the hall the man who had been with Lucy Freeman, seizing the opportunity darted out of the bath room door and down the stairs exclaiming wildly, "Oh! that room is all on fire! My God! the house is on fire!" His apparent terror did not, however, prevent him from taking with him his umbrella.

A FRIGHTFUL SCENE.

Just as he got out of the front door, Lucy Freeman, who had run back along the hallway, attempted to walk down stairs, but slipped and fell nearly the whole length. Her dresses were still blazing brightly and the flames rose high above her head. She fell at the foot of the stairs, but her agony increasing, she rose and opening the front door ran screaming into the street. In front of the next house there was standing the whitened stump of an old tree that had been cut down to serve as a hitching post. To this she clung with desperation. The flames, fanned by the fresh air in the street, burst out more brightly, and brought forth piercing cries of anguish from the unfortunate sufferer. The passers by rushed to her assistance and she was soon enveloped in overcoats. Nathan Brown, a colored man living across the street pulled off his ulster and threw it around her. Officer Foley, of the Twenty-ninth precinct, also came to the rescue. By these means the fire was soon extinguished and Lucy was taken into the house suffering untold agony. Then she told her story. She said that when preparing to leave her the strange visitor had admired and praised her beauty, adding, "What a pity that you are a colored woman!" She demanded money from him and a dispute arose, during which the man grew very angry. He took a match and, lighting it deliberately, set fire to her dress behind, so that she felt the red flames licking her back, but was not able to extinguish them. The door by which they had entered was locked and she, in her terror and pain, did not succeed in getting out that way. She rushed to the bath room door, through the bath room and then into out the hallway. She said that the man had given her his card, which had been laid on her bureau. The other inmates of the house immediately made a search for this card but did not find it. They thought that the man had taken it away again after completing the fiendish deed. An ambulance which had been sent for arrived soon after the victim had been taken into the house, and she was then removed to Bellevue Hospital in charge of Dr. Disbrow.

SCENE OF THE BURNING.

After hearing this tale of horror a HERALD reporter made an examination of the house where the dreadful scene occurred. He found the second story divided into two large rooms, with a small bathroom adjoining the rear one. Doors lead from the room occupied into the bathroom, the hall, and by a passage way into the front room. The two latter doors were locked when the woman's dress was set on fire, and the keys were either taken out or she was too dazed by the flames to turn them in the lock. The place where the murderous wretch first set fire to his victim's dress is marked by a round black spot the size of her dress on the marble slab in front of the mantelpiece. From here the girl had run to the door leading into the front room. She must have stood at this door for some time trying to get out, for the woodwork of the door had caught fire and partially burned away, and the carpet was burned through. Thence she ran to the bathroom door, her steps being marked by little holes burned in the carpet by pieces of her blazing dress which fell to the ground. Holes were burned in the same manner through the oilcloth of the bathroom door and the carpets of the hallway and stairs. It is strange that the house did not catch fire from her burning dress. The intense heat to which the poor wretch was subjected may be learned from the fact that her leather slippers were burned to a crisp. Her garments were light muslin and a flowing lavender silk dress puffed with tarletan. This expensive suit was entirely new, and worn for the first time by the unfortunate victim on the night that was to be her last on earth. While putting it on she remarked to a comrade that she felt that the dress was soon to bring her either a great good luck or some terrible misfortune.

There were three cards found in her room—one of a printing house, another of a Masonic establishment and a third of an uptown butcher. These were taken possession of by the police as possible clews to the discovery of the murderer, but it is not certain that either of them is the one the visitor gave her, as they were not found on the bureau where she had put that one.

Lucy came originally from Lynchburg, Va., and had been in this city leading a life of shame for four years. Her photograph, a first class imperial taken by one of the fashionable photographers of Broadway, represented a girl about nineteen years of age, pretty and dark complexioned. The nose and lips were perfectly formed, and she might easily have been taken for a Spanish woman had not her short, black, coarse hair betrayed her African descent.

AT THE MORGUE.

A visit to the Morgue to view the body of the unfortunate girl discovered somewhat the horrors of the death the poor creature suffered. There lay the body in an old unpainted pine box amid piles of other coffins containing also remnants of decaying humanity. Her clothes had been taken from her and she was partly wrapped in white linen. Her feet were burned almost to a crisp. From the upper portion of her body and neck the outer skin had been burned off, revealing the flaring red mark of the scorching flames. From her chin and the tips of her nose and ears the skin was also partially peeled off, showing how high the hot blaze must have mounted.

It was ascertained here that the girl was perfectly conscious up to the time of her death, and the officials at Bellevue Hospital neglected to send word to one of the Coroners in order to have her ante-mortem deposition taken. She would have been perfectly able to make a statement in the proper form, and might have given important clews to aid in the detection of her murderer. She died at eight o'clock, death being due to shock.

Soon after her death, she who was lately her mistress in sin and one of the females from her house arrived at the Morgue and entered the deadhouse where the body lay. They were deeply affected at the sight of the horribly burned body and betrayed genuine emotion. They made arrangements for the funeral, which will take place to-day from the house of the undertaker, at No. 315 East Twenty-sixth street.

WHAT THE POLICE THINK.

Captain Williams, of the Twenty-ninth precinct, was of the opinion that the occurrence was one of accident and not of design. Detective Dunlap, however, is engaged in working up the case. Officer Foley, who reported it, said that as he was passing No. 110 West Twenty-seventh street, a girl came rushing out of the house with her clothes all on fire. He pulled his coat off, threw it around her and extinguished the flames. She said at the time that a man up stairs had set her clothes on fire.

About four o'clock in the afternoon John Banks, a young colored lad, who had been living at No. 108 West Twenty-seventh street, came to the Twenty-ninth precinct station house and said that he had seen the strange man on Tuesday night, when he entered the house, and recollected having seen his face before. He could not say who he was, but would be ready to identify him should he be caught.

Coroner Woltman, who took charge of the case yesterday morning, has given a permit of burial and has summoned a jury to meet at the Morgue to day at half-past eleven o'clock to view the body. No post-mortem was made, as the evidence as to the cause of death was sufficiently clear. No day has yet been fixed for the inquest, as the Coroner is in hopes that the miscreant who caused this terrible death may soon be caught.

A BATTLE ROYAL.

Formal Closing of the Cocking Season on Long Island.

A SPLENDID NIGHT'S SPORT.

Exit Heels, Handlers and Birds Until Thanksgiving Day Next.

The regular season for cock fighting, which extends from Thanksgiving Day to Easter Monday in each year, ended on Monday, April 2 inst., and in honor of the event, in addition to the regular fighting in established pits, a grand display was arranged for that night by the veterans of the cocking fraternity as a formal closing of the season. For this purpose seventeen owners of birds put up a forfeit to produce a bird for that night to engage in a battle royal that was to eclipse anything seen in this vicinity for many years. Every cocker who had not made a match for some other pit brought his bird to the grand rally, on the line of the Southern Railroad, and as a result fourteen matches were made up at the weighing in early on Monday evening. These fights lasted so long that many who had entered for the royal found it impossible to remain, but on withdrawing paid their forfeit as a prize for the winning bird which did fight.

The crowd in attendance was immense, and despite the numerous growls which occurred from time to time were generally good natured and enjoyed the coup de main of the sport so much that shouts of laughter continuously attested their appreciation of the comical side of royal cock fighting. Taken as a whole the fighting was good and a great deal of money changed hands. From this time forward until the fall of the year desultory matches only will take place, as the weather is getting too warm to reduce the birds to good fighting condition.

SUMMARY OF BATTLES.

First Battle.—A ginger-red and red pyle at 4 lbs. 8 oz. were first shown to the admiring gaze of the dense crowd—the ginger a high-stationed and the pyle a low-headed bird. The odds were on the pyle, though the ginger proved a cool, close-cutting bird, and was so lively at first that the battle seemed turning in his favor; but, losing an eye, a lucky hit in the shoulder from the pyle killed him. Time, 3m. 40s.

Second Battle.—Two black-reds—one a muff, without toes—at 3 lbs. 4 oz. each, were next placed to the scratch, and proved themselves game birds in a close, evenly-breaking fight. The muff was pounded and lost in 5m. 6s.

Third Battle.—A rattling fight between a black-red and a red pyle at 3 lbs. 6 oz. each. The birds broke well together, giving and taking freely for two minutes. Then the red seemed to get the upper hand of the pyle and punished it severely, the latter seeming to have fallen asleep. Waking up, however, at last it cut right and left with vigor, until, receiving a terrible hit, which laid open its throat, it fell and died in a few seconds. Its antagonist also died just after leaving the pit. Time, 17m. 45s.

Fourth Battle.—For some moments, owing to the obstreperousness of a fellow who wanted to bet a ferry or a milk ticket, a fight seemed imminent between certain spectators that threatened to end the cocking, but through the efforts of the most prominent parties present quiet was restored and the sport proceeded. A black-red of the old "Pawnbroker" stock was placed to a blue-red, both at 4 lbs. 1 oz. In the first buckle the pawnbroker gave the blue-red a terrible cut in the side, under the wing, which seemed to partially couple it. It showed some little fight, however, until laying down it was pounded and counted out. The blue-red was the most terrible hitter of the two, but the first blow decided the battle. Time, 3m. 40s.

Fifth Battle.—This fight seemed to cause much ill-feeling through the crowd, though it wore off before morning. The contesting birds were a brown-red at 3 lbs. 15 oz. and a black-red at 3 lbs. 14 oz. The birds commenced in rattling style, the brown fastening with a terrible hit to the black. The handler of the latter in his hurry pulled his own gaffs out of the opposing bird, and the other handler, unprepared for any such action, received a touch of the irons in two places in his right hand. He instantly claimed the fight, but the outcry from the spectators induced the judge to order them to go on. The handler of the brown bird next claimed the fight on a charge of pushing by the handler of the blackie. A moment later a similar charge and claim were made from the opposite side, but the judge merely warned each and ordered the fight to proceed. The black showed slight signs of running away, but another buckle quieted it and it lay down. A count was then made for each bird and they were placed to the scratch. Here the blackie lay down and did not again raise its head. The handler of the brown proceeded to count his opponent out, but, by omitting to take the first count into consideration, though told to be careful by the judge, he passed over the "breasting" and was declared the loser. This was the signal for an outbreak, as a large amount of money was at stake and a game at fisticuffs seemed inevitable until, at the request of the owner of the premises in which the sport was taking place, the judge declared the battle money and all bets off. This restored quiet. Time of fight, 14 minutes.

Sixth Battle.—Two black-reds at 4 lbs. 13 oz. were next placed in the pit, one with a gray hackle and the other with a black. This was the best sustained fight of the night, and considerable money changed hands on the result. The birds were close, keen cutters, and in merit about equal, so that the fight, which was game to the last, required close application on the part of the handlers. The birds in their breaking showed no wildness, but kept at business from first to last. The gray finally lost through having his throat cut. Time, 18m. 20s.

Seventh Battle.—Two black-reds were again pitted, a white hackle at 4 lbs. 12 oz. and a gray at 4 lbs. 13 oz. The gray opened the fight in a very lively manner, cutting well, but, proving weak, was soon fought out. The white then, with one blow, started it running, and, following it up, drove the gray out of the pit. Time, 4 minutes.

Eighth Battle.—Still black-reds were brought to the scratch. This time two at 3 lbs. 10 oz., one having a gray hackle. The fight commenced quietly and gamely, the gray proving a most beautiful cutter, fastening almost every hit and thus making short buckles. The red laying down, some one called out "I pound him." The handler at once took the pound and demanded that the money be placed in the pit, producing $1 for the bird. When the outsider understood that he was expected to place $20 to cover the $1 he backed out, and due notice was then given that money only could stop a fight by impounding. The quarrel settled the red got up and for a few seconds made a brave show of fight, and then suddenly turned and ran away. Time, 9m. 30s.

Ninth Battle.—Two black-reds, with black hackle at 4 lbs. 5 oz. and gray hackle at 4 lbs. 6 oz., were faced in the pit, and on being let go flew at each other, the gray sending his heels through the breast of the latter in passing, pierced his heart and threw him over on his back dying. Time, 10 seconds.

Tenth Battle.—A black-red and ginger-red at 4 lbs. 7 oz. each were next pitted. The blackie showed game, but the ginger overlaid him in every particular, throwing him and fastening when and where he chose until he killed it. Time, 2m. 34s.

Eleventh Battle.—Two black-reds again loomed up; one a gray hackle at 5 lbs. 2 oz., the other an Irish gypsy at 5 lbs. 3 oz. Both birds commenced breaking together, and then settled down for steady fighting, until a chance hit closed one of the gypsy's eyes. Frantic with the pain the gypsy became wild, and in its agonized wild hitting cut the gray's throat, at 12m. 55s. from the commencement of the fight. The gray then turned and ran and kept up the run, closely followed by the gypsy until picked up by its handler. Time, 13m. 55s.

Twelfth Battle.—A black-red cock at 5 lbs. 1 oz. was next pitted to a brass back chicken at 5 lbs. 2 oz., the latter a Kentucky gray. The fight, though brief, was a spirited one, the chicken showing splendid game. A severe cut in the breast received early in the fight brought it to grief, however, and after a beautiful break it fell never to rise again. Time, 2m. 24s.

Thirteenth Battle.—A brown-red and a black-red, at 4 lbs. 11 oz., next exchanged compliments, but made a clumsy affair of it. The black-red had no style, was no hitter, but stood up and received his punishment like a Trojan. Then he made an attempt to fight, and by his very clumsiness succeeded in cutting the brownie's throat slightly, at which the latter manifested a disposition to run. Rallying, however, he jumped around the blackie very lively, punishing it terribly. The birds were then impounded, the odds against the brown. Before the count was finished the brown showed a disposition to fight by pecking, to which the black made no response; to the astonishment of all, however, instead of following the black up, the brown turned when none pursued and ran two or three times around the ring; brought back to the scratch, however, he won the fight through the blackie being counted out. The decision was given in favor of the runaway bird, and it gave rise to another growl among those who had money invested on the result. After some minutes' wrangling, however, the affair was amicably adjusted and the bets were all paid. Time, about 17 minutes.

Fourteenth Battle.—Two black-reds, which color seemed to be the favorite during the night, were placed in the pit at 4 lbs. 5 oz. each. This proved a rattling fight, the merits of the birds being about equal. They were well matched, and after a long fight when both were exhausted the dark hackle won over the gray by its being counted out. Time, 32m. 31s.

THE BATTLE ROYAL.

All the matches were now fought, and those who had entered for the battle royal were notified to get their birds ready. It was then half-past six on Tuesday morning, and as urgent business called away several of the parties who had entered birds they paid forfeit and withdrew, so that when all were heeled only five birds showed up, though the sweepstakes, at $2 50, amounted to $42 50. One of the five birds was then found by the judge to be armed with most formidable gaffs, fully three inches in length, and it was accordingly ordered withdrawn. The remaining four were then placed inside the circle of the pit with their tails pointing toward each other. They were all cocks running from 4 lbs. 6 oz. to 5 lbs. 10 oz., and in color a dark red, brown-red, ginger-red and blue pyle. Thus placed and waiting for the order to let go the betting stood 100 to 300 on naming the winner. At 6h. 37m. 15s. the signal "let go" was given, and the hands withdrawn the birds were free in the pit. First they turned and looked at each other, and then the brown-red made a dash across the pit knocking the pyle off its feet by its weight. The ginger followed it up and gave it a stinger in the comb as it fell over the pyle; the ginger going a little further and startling the dark red with a keen cut of the heel was received with a rattling return which sent it back on the pyle. The dark-red following, all the birds indulged in a mêlée which lasted about thirty seconds and ended by the brown-red hopping out of the pit with a loud squawk. He was taken by his backer and again placed in the pit by order of the judge, but no sooner was he set down than a neck hit from the pyle made him squawk again, and, flying over the heads of the spectators, he was allowed to remain where he landed. Time, 2 minutes. The remaining three then fought, changing opponents at every hit, sometimes two on one, and then a rattling fire all round was kept up. The peculiar actions of the birds in this style of fighting were so amusing that roars of laughter accompanied their movements despite the appeals of the judge for quietness, that his voice might be heard. The fight between the three was actively kept up for three minutes or more, when they all lay down in a tangle, for neither bird was "fast." The pyle was the first to get up, and as he opened a rapid, vigorous fight with the ginger, the dark red walked to one corner of the pit and stood there quietly while the fight was going on between the ginger and the pyle. Twice did the steel make deep impression on the head of the pyle, and yet he showed no signs of weakening, but hit as heavily back; over and across they backed and filled, rising and breaking together, each showing themselves as true game. In the course of their fight they worked into the corner occupied by the dark red, and in turn they each gave him a touch of the spur. Reddie made but slight show of retaliation, and then took an excursion once or twice around the pit. Meanwhile the ginger had pressed the pyle hard, and by a succession of hard hits laid him prostrate and dying at eleven minutes to seven. Time, 11m. 45s. The ginger then devoted its attention to the black-red, which, after the first exchange of compliments, turned and ran, the ginger following close in its wake and thrashing it so well at every opportunity that at three minutes to seven it was also prostrate, though breathing heavily. The ginger then strutted proudly around, but the battle could not yet be given him because there were three living birds in the pit. The judge ordered them to be placed breast to breast, which was done three times, on each occasion the ginger first paying his attention to the pyle and then, after quieting it, giving another dose of punishment to the darkie. The pyle, as soon as it felt the steel, would plunge head foremost toward the edge of the pit and attempt to hide its head in the corners, and nothing from the ginger could raise it. The dark would execute a similar manœuvre before feeling the heels of the ginger, and no amount of coaxing or kicking could get its head up, so that at 6h. 58m. 18s. the victory and the battle money were given to the ginger. Time, 21m. 3s.

This ended the regular cock fighting in this section for the season 1876–77, though probably a few desultory matches may yet be fought and possibly a battle royal with at least a score of game birds at the scratch where "let go" is again cried.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

CONVENTION OF THE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN COLLEGES—THE ANNUAL FIELD MEETING TO BE HELD IN NEW YORK—PROGRAMME OF EVENTS.

The annual convention of the Athletic Association of American Colleges was held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday morning. Representatives from the following colleges were present:—Amherst, Columbia, Dartmouth, Harvard, College of New York, Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, Wesleyan, Williams and Yale.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

It required some time to dispose of the preliminary business, but that done, the election of officers for the current year was gone into, with the annexed result:—

President—C. W. Francis, of Columbia.
Vice President—Cyrus W. Field, Jr., of Williams.
Secretary—G. S. Philler, of University of Pennsylvania.
Treasurer—J. A. Campbell, of Princeton.
Executive Committee—C. W. Francis, of Columbia; J. C. Morrell, of Amherst; E. H. Herrick, of Harvard.

NEW YORK SELECTED.

The question of track and place for the holding of the annual athletic competition was then submitted. Various suggestions were made, but at last the convention decided that New York presented the greatest attractions, and the track of the New York Athletic Club, at Mott Haven, unusual facilities for a successful meeting. To this end the executive committee were instructed to solicit the use of the track for the day upon which the sports may be set down to take place.

The month in which the field meeting should be held caused a prolonged discussion. Many of the older members thought it would be better to wait until the cool weather of the autumn, but the majority were of the feeling that the spring was preferable. Finally the matter was left to the executive committee, with power. The meeting will be held in May or June.

EVENTS.

The programme of events for the annual competition was decided to be, the first and second for graduates, and the balance for undergraduates.

One mile walk; three graduates to enter and start.
Dash of 100 yards.
One mile walk.
Two mile walk.
Half-mile run.
Dash of 100 yards.
Dash of 220 yards.
One mile run.
Hurdle race of 120 yards, over ten hurdles placed fifteen feet apart and of three feet six inches in height.
One-quarter mile run.
Throwing the hammer, sixteen pounds.
Running high jump.
Running broad jump.
Pole vaulting.
Putting the shot, sixteen pounds.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Executive Committee was empowered to name the field officers, and make all necessary arrangements on the ground the day of competition.

The Executive Committee was requested to compile a set of rules to govern the field meeting.

It was resolved that the constitution be placed in the hands of a committee of three for the purpose of printing and distribution, and that the work be done within one month. The chairman will name the committee during the present week and cause the gentlemen selected to be notified.

The Executive Committee was instructed to make a bimonthly report to the secretary, the latter official in turn to send the important points of such reports to the officers of the various college athletic associations.

It was ordered that if any college association fails to pay its assessment before the annual games that association be not permitted to make entry of contestants; but this order only applies to the games of the present season.

It was also ordered that those college associations in arrears for past dues and whose members did not participate in the games, be not asked to settle the claims against them, the same being remitted.

The meeting then adjourned, subject to the call of the chairman and Executive Committee.

ATHLETE CHALLENGES.

April 3, 1877.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Having noticed Mr. J. M. Laflin's answer to my challenge, I will meet him at the Clipper office, Saturday, between twelve and one o'clock, the match to be for the championship and no objections to be found in size or weight of clubs.

Professor LOUIS T. RICHARDS,
Wood's Gymnasium.

229 Mott Street, Tuesday, April 3, 1877.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

If Mr. Coburn or any of his friends think him capable of wrestling me, I will meet him at two o'clock P. M., on Friday next, at the Clipper office, when I will be ready to put up a forfeit of $25 to make a match for $100 to $250 a side. Now if he means business he will embrace this chance; if not, I am ready to wrestle any man in America of 140 pounds weight on the same conditions, the match to come off two weeks from signing articles, both men to weigh the night before the match. I remain, yours respectfully,

PIGEON SHOOTING.

The Fountain Shooting Club, as is the custom once each month, met at Brooklyn Driving Park yesterday to engage in their fourth shoot this season for the champion gold badge. Eighteen members contested for the prize, each of whom shot at seven birds. The wind was very strong and the pigeons were very fast flyers. The shooting was above the average and much enjoyed by the sportsmen present. The badge was won by Mr. McLaughlin, after having tied on the first seven birds with Messrs. Cleaser and Madison. Mr. C. Williams officiated as referee. Mr. Kenney, the previous holder of the badge, willingly handed it over to Mr. McLaughlin. The following is the

FOOTBALL.

New York, April 2, 1877.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I wish you would tell the Park Commissioners to see to it that the boys get a football ground in the Central Park, although they have a lower baseball ground which was intended for cricket and the middle ground for baseball. They should have some ground for football, for some boys are not able to play at baseball, and a football ground would be a capital idea.

BERGH'S HORSE LAW.

THE HERALD'S VIEWS SUSTAINED BY THE OPINIONS OF EMINENT JURISTS—HOW THE ABUSE SHOULD BE REMEDIED.

About one year and a half ago the attention of a gentleman in this city was called to some cases of very great hardship arising from the arrest and imprisonment of poor men who were going home with lame horses. He found the law of the State permitted these arrests, and, with the view of ascertaining if the law was wise and good in the opinion of jurists and philanthropists, he submitted it to three distinguished gentlemen and asked their opinion. They cheerfully complied with his request. As the law now stands, every man whose horse falls lame on his way home is liable to arrest and imprisonment, and poor men, who have no means to meet the expenses of such arrest, are constantly made the victims of this unjust and defective law. A slight amendment would relieve the innocent from great suffering to which they are now subjected.

The following are the opinions of the jurists alluded to:—

JUDGE NEILSON'S OPINION.

Chambers, City Court of Brooklyn, N. Y.,
Brooklyn, Feb. 18, 1876.

My Dear Sir—We must all sympathize with proper efforts to prevent cruelty to animals. The common sentiment is correct and healthy. It may have been thought that the natural impulse of most men to speak out on behalf of the suffering creature not able to speak for itself, or to interfere in a spirit of resentment, might lead to an abuse of the power to make arrests, so some attention is paid to the selection of the officers.

We should accept statutory regulations according to their spirit and terms, without seeking occasion for criticism or complaint. But special and experimental laws may well disappoint the inventors. Under these statutes we have a complicated organization—the repression of cruelty becomes a regular business. That repression is by arrests intrusted to men appointed by the society, approved by the Sheriff, perhaps hastily or without special knowledge of their temper or fitness. The citizen who may be driving, and necessarily punishing a stubborn or fractious horse, a foundered horse, apparently disabled, yet fit for some use, or a horse injured by some accident a few minutes before, is liable to arrest according to mere notion, arbitrary notion, of the officer.

It would seem that such extraordinary power, if to be granted at all, should have been conferred on the Sheriff and his deputies and upon the city police for better security, not only that officers having more experience and a strong sense of responsibility might be in charge, but that there might be an absence of the heat and undue zeal common to the mere partisan. The man who is sent out to find something wrong, who may think that his official life and compensation depend upon his finding manifold wrongs, is pretty sure to find them, may not be a disinterested or fair judge in cases of a doubtful character.

But in all this, in all legal regulations, the liberty of the citizen should be the paramount consideration. Any expedient is bad which tends to abate the estimate we should have of that liberty. That arrests should be made without sufficient cause or necessity is an abuse—an abuse which may possibly be the natural fruit of such an experimental organization. Not only should the citizen be safe in his person, but in the possession of his property; neither should he be subject to interference without due cause. I have the honor to be, yours, &c.,

J. NIELSON.

JOHN T. HOFFMAN'S VIEWS.

Albany, Feb. 17, 1876.

My Dear Sir—I have your letter relating to alleged abuses in the matter of arrests, &c., under the laws for the prevention of cruelty to animals. I was, as you know, one of the first organizers of the New York society, of which Mr. Bergh is president, and I have always been, as you have been, one of its most earnest friends. It has accomplished great good. Without doubt some things have been overdone. Overzeal almost always causes very serious mistakes. Almost every man will take the best care he can of his own property. It is the natural thing for him to do. It is his interest to do it. If a carman at the close of the day is seen driving a lame horse, I should say the presumption was he was not doing it with evil intent; that he did not want to injure what was his own; that he did not desire to destroy his capital, his stock in trade. If a lady or gentleman coming home from the Park, has a lame horse, I should presume, as a matter of course, there was no malice, as there certainly could be no pleasure in the act of driving. I suggest these instances merely to illustrate my point that there are certain technical violations of the laws to prevent cruelty to animals which ought not to be placed on a level with and be treated like acts which are unmistakably wicked and cruel, done with evil intent, or like those misdemeanors which are offences against public order or public decency.

All policemen and all agents of the society ought to recognize the distinction, and the duty of doing so should be particularly enjoined upon them by their superiors and by the law. The great difficulty is, they must be clothed with a certain amount of discretion, and they will sometimes abuse it. If a policeman or special officer of the society witnesses an offence against the laws, he arrests without a warrant and is requested to take the party arrested before a magistrate. Often a magistrate cannot be found for many hours in open court, and so the accused goes to prison until one can be found.

Now, I think that for minor offences against the laws for the prevention of cruelty, instances of which I have suggested, no officer, except by a magistrate's commitment, should have it in his power to cause the incarceration for a single hour, much less for a single night, of a person accused and arrested. If a magistrate cannot be found immediately after the arrest it is better to take the chances of total escape of the person arrested than to have him or her locked up in prison with thieves and other criminals until a police court can be found open.

An act in accordance with these suggestions, made applicable to certain specified cases of violation of the laws in question, might meet the approval of the Legislature and I should hope would not be opposed by the society. Very respectfully,

JOHN T. HOFFMAN.

OPINION OF A JUDGE OF THE COURT OF APPEALS.

Albany, Feb. 12, 1876.

My Dear Sir—I think there will be no dissent from the proposition that the arrest of citizens without process emanating from a court or magistrate of competent jurisdiction, except when permitted for cogent reasons of public policy or some urgent necessity, is wrong in principle and dangerous in practice. When permitted the power should be hedged about by stringent provisions of law, which would absolutely secure to the party arrested an immediate hearing and examination, to the end that if no cause exists for the arrest the imprisonment may cease at once. By "immediate" I mean forthwith, that there may be no detention without the authority of some magistrate having jurisdiction to act in the premises, beyond the time necessary to go from the place of arrest to the nearest magistrate.

An arrest may be proper and necessary without warrant, but actual imprisonment by committal to a place of detention, before examination and without warrant can seldom be necessary, and when necessary, but for a few hours at the longest. Magistrates and peace officers and private individuals, under certain circumstances, may arrest for a breach of the peace or a felony committed in their presence, and special statutes have empowered peace officers and even private persons to apprehend for other offences under special circumstances.

For what acts, under what circumstances and by whom arrests may be made without warrant, is within the discretion of the Legislature; but it would seem that ordinarily there would be no good reason for exercising this discretion and empowering irresponsible individuals or even peace officers to arrest without warrant for a mere misdemeanor not endangering the public peace or affecting or imperilling the rights of person or property of third persons, or the interests of society.

But under whatever circumstances an arrest may be made without process, it should not be possible under the law to detain the party arrested in prison without examination for a longer time than twelve hours at the furthest; and for that or any other time only because, by reason of the hour and the time of arrest, the prisoner cannot be sooner taken before a magistrate. The detention of a prisoner thus arrested for any time beyond that within which he might with reasonable diligence be taken before a magistrate is illegal and should make all the parties concerned in the detention trespassers ab initio. Actual imprisonment upon an arrest without process by the committal of the party to a house of detention or other prison before examination and without the order or warrant of the examining magistrate, should be confined to grave and serious offences affecting or endangering the public peace or safety. I can conceive of no case in which, for offences against the laws for the prevention of cruelty to animals, either the usefulness of the society organized for accomplishing the purposes of these laws, or the public interests, or the general welfare require or should permit a supposed offender against such laws to be committed to prison for a single hour before examination by a proper magistrate, or without judicial powers issued by him.

I think it a mistake as a matter of policy to resort to extraordinary or unusual means, especially such means as are apparently incompatible with our form of government and our ideas of civil and personal rights, to enforce any law. It will bring the law, no matter how benign its purpose, into disrepute. With us public opinion has as much to do in enforcing the laws as do the process and action of courts and officers; and if public opinion is offended either by the provisions of any law or the manner in which the agents appointed for its execution enforce it it will soon become a dead letter upon the statute book. Very respectfully your obedient servant,

W. F. ALLEN.

HOME FOR THE BLIND.

OUR COMPLAINT BOOK.

"ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA."

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Your dramatic critic should be more careful when he chronicles the events of the drama. He says "Antony and Cleopatra" was first acted in America in 1845, in the Park Theatre, New York. I saw Ellen Tree play Cleopatra in the old St. Charles Theatre, New Orleans, in the winter of '38 and '39.

J. M. MOORE.

LEAVE THE FLAG ALONE.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

The remarks of J. Ward Murray in regard to turning our national emblem into an advertising medium for any nostrum that any one may choose to put on it strike the nail on the head. The same thought has often struck me. In no other country in the world would it be permitted, and its suppression here should be agitated.

R. J. S.

THE GERMAN SAVINGS BANK.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I want to ask in your "Complaint Book" why the Attorney General should let the officers of the German Savings Bank fool the depositors into signing over their deposits for one year, with no security, on the promise to pay seventy-five cents on the dollar then. Why not have a receiver appointed now and save the big salaries of the officers for a year? I would like to know.

DEPOSITOR.

RAMPANT ROWDYISM.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Will you be kind enough to protest, in the name of the decent people on East Houston street, against the rowdyish performances at Dramatic Hall? Six fights occurred there recently. We sent a complaint to Police Headquarters three times, and had the fuss stopped.

DAVID ABENDSTROH.

STREET ANNOYANCES.

"Viator" writes in savage mood and asks the P. D. (Public Devils), and the D. P. W. (Department of Public Worthlessness), to look at Forty-second street, between Madison and Lexington avenues.

"A Taxpayer" writes briefly to say that the ashes and mud in Washington street, between Cedar and Cortlandt streets, have been lying there for some time and are being piled higher every day. It is about time the Street Cleaning Bureau attended to this.

"Cleanly" varies the street complaints by saying:—"Many of your correspondents complain because the garbage and ash barrels are not emptied. Now I wish to complain because they are. I am in the habit of walking down town about half-past eight in the morning, and as I take some pains with my personal appearance it 'riles' me to have a shirt as 'pure as the snow on the mountains' soiled by the ash man dumping his damned old tub just as I get on the lee side of him. Why can't they dump earlier?"

"Anti-Dirt" calls attention to the filthy condition of Twenty-second street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues, it not having been cleaned for at least three months. The block is also barricaded with barrels and boxes, filled with ashes, which have not been emptied for ten days past.

"A Citizen" sends word that a pile of cobble, or square cut stones, is now deposited at the corner of Eighth avenue and Fourteenth street. When they will be utilized it is impossible to predict.

"H. F. H." states that some ten days, or very near two weeks ago, a corps of men, armed with hoes and brooms, appeared in Clinton street and formed huge piles of mud; so large and close together were these piles that wagons could only with great difficulty pass. These piles of mud and filth have been allowed to remain ever since.

THE HARLEM MAIL DELIVERY.

Post Office, New York,
Fourth Division, April 4, 1877.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

The main cause of the late delivery complained of by "Harlem" is the reduction by Congress of the amount of appropriation recommended by the Postmaster General as necessary to secure a proper performance of the free delivery service, the inevitable result being that at New York and other large cities the routes of carriers in some districts are too long to admit of being covered in less than an hour and a half or two hours. For lack of a sufficient number of carriers, two men are obliged to perform the work of three; and it is to be feared that this state of things will continue until our national legislators discover that in cities like New York, where the annual net profit from local postage is nearly three-quarters of a million, the wisest economy lies in the direction of liberal expenditure. A further explanation of "Harlem's" difficulty may be found in the facts that he happens to be located at the end of the carrier's route, and that nine miles of wagon transportation of the mails from the Central Post Office have to be accomplished before the first delivery in that portion of the city can begin. Very respectfully,

J. GAYLER,
General Superintendent City Delivery.

P. S.—Allow me to suggest that citizens who suppose their city letters to have been delayed in delivery should examine them on the reverse side, on which the hour of their receipt at this or a branch office will be found stamped.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I think it but justice to the carrier who delivers the mails in 113th street (and who is complained of in your "Complaint Book") to say that for the past eight months I have been receiving my mail at the corner of 113th street and Second avenue, and in that time I have never known the first delivery to be later than twenty minutes past nine; only a few times that late. It is generally nine o'clock, or at most from five to ten minutes past, when he is at my door.

FIXING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

Your Complaint Book, which has already accomplished much good, will be rendered more efficient by the course marked out in your editorial columns of yesterday, in which you say, "that when complaints are justly made, and are disregarded by those who are responsible for the abuse brought to light, we shall take pains to fix the responsibility where it rightfully belongs. Our book is an easy one for willing scholars. Those who are too lazy or too stupid to learn must not hope to escape punishment." Within the past two weeks some half dozen of your correspondents have written you complaints touching the calcium light nuisance. One stated that he had saved a woman and child from being run over by a Grand street car, she being so blinded by the glaring light at the Theatre Comique that she did not see the car till the horses knocked her down. Another spoke of the annoyance to which thousands of pedestrians are nightly subjected. A third stated the pecuniary damage resulting to property in the vicinity, and so on through half a dozen complaints. These I cut out and sent to the Mayor, with a statement of my own grievance, which was no less than having been run into by the driver of another carriage, who was so blinded by the calcium light at the Theatre Comique as not to see my carriage till it was too late to avoid a collision. The following letter from the Mayor will show where the responsibility rests for the continuance of the nuisance of those lights, which are not only in open defiance of law, but, as your various correspondents have shown, are attended with no little danger to the community:—

Mayor's Office, New York, March 27, 1877.

Dear Sir—The Mayor has no power to interfere with the burning of calcium lights. It is absolutely in the control of the Police Department, to whom you must apply. I referred your former complaint to them. Yours, truly,

SMITH ELY, Jr.

Here you have an opportunity "to fix the responsibility where it rightly belongs," and if the Police Department are "too lazy or too stupid to learn," it is my intention, if those nuisances are not instantly abated, to prefer charges against the Commissioners for neglecting to perform their duty.

KNICKERBOCKER.

DIRECTORY SPELLING EXPLAINED.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

In reply to a question of spelling, as appeared in the Complaint Book of Sunday last, the writer begs leave to explain, for the public satisfaction as well as Mr F.'s, the reason why a canvasser is instructed to take the information as he does. In collecting and compiling so many thousand names in so short a time as we have for the "City Directory" it is absolutely necessary for the compiler to arrange his work in such a manner as to need little or no correction when once placed in the hands of the printer.

To gratify a few individuals who choose to have their names spelled differently to what they were christened we object. For instance, Mr. Smith, the grocer, wishes his name to appear as J. Henry Smith, although his parents thought proper to have him christened John Henry. To please him would greatly inconvenience the assorter, and in most cases would likely get printed Henry J., which might cause him, as well as those looking for him, much inconvenience, as the name in that case might appear on a different page. The canvasser is strictly forbid returning names thus spelt, even if payment is offered. In taking the information for the Business Directory there are some foreign firms represented by agents who wish the firm name as well as their own inserted as an advertisement, and not over anxious to pay for it. The Directory publishers do not see it in that light. From one that has many years' experience as a compiler.

STREET.

SEATS IN LADIES' CABINS.

To the Editor of the Herald:—

I have read the article signed "Two Plain-Spoken Young Ladies," addressed to all who wear pantaloons. I am unfortunate enough to belong to the class wearing that article of attire. I sympathize with the writers—first, because they are ladies; second, because they are young ladies (and you know all young ladies are so charming); and third, because of the injustice done them by the ungrateful wearers of the aforesaid articles of dress. But, dear Mr. Editor, what is a poor fellow to do who is daily ferried o'er the river? I have recently made several ventures into the so-called "gentlemen's cabin," and I wish the two young, handsome ladies (I naturally suppose they are handsome) would poke their heads in at the door, or, if they could endure the severe ordeal, pass the whole length of the cabin. I will guarantee they will not stop to take any vacant seat. The noxious air, stifling with tobacco smoke and the floors covered with spittle, would, I think, prove equal to a writ of ejectment. By common usage, on all the ferries, the cabin on one side of the boat is understood to be the smoking room, and why the sign over the door should read "gentlemen's cabin" I cannot understand, as a gentleman not addicted to the use of the "weed" venturing therein is looked upon as more of an intruder than when he enters the so-called "ladies' cabin." If the ferry companies would provide some other place for smokers, so as to prohibit smoking in the cabin designed for gentlemen, the ladies would not have so much cause to find fault. Do, fair creatures, have pity on the unfortunates who venture into the hallowed precinct of your special reserve.

DOUGLAS.

STIRRING UP THE LEGISLATURE.

THE COTTON EXCHANGE INDORSES THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

A large and important meeting of the Cotton Exchange was held yesterday afternoon at which Mr. James F. Wenman, the President, occupied the chair. Mr. Walter T. Miller proposed the following preamble and resolutions in regard to the constitutional amendments now pending in the Legislature, and explained the interest at stake in their adoption as effecting the great reform necessary in the municipal affairs of this city:—

Whereas in May, 1875, the Legislature of New York, in consequence of a message from Governor Tilden suggesting the appointment of a commission to devise a plan for the government of cities in this State, did immediately authorize such a commission; and whereas ten men of both political parties, chosen for their learning, ability and high character, after eighteen months of study and investigation and the fullest and most careful discussion and consideration of the subject, did draw up a report giving the results of their deliberations, and did embody them in the form of certain constitutional amendments; and whereas these amendments must be approved by two successive Legislatures, and then submitted to the vote of the people; and whereas the failure of the Legislature to approve the said amendments will put off for three years, if it does not entirely defeat, this effort for reform; and whereas this Exchange is most painfully aware of the evils and abuses of the present system of city government in New York and Brooklyn, by which their debts and taxes are so swelled that we are startled by the probability of city bankruptcy and the certainty that our capital, trade and commerce will be driven to places where it will be less taxed, unless some efficient, economical and responsible system of municipal government is adopted by which we can surely, though slowly, return to light taxation and diminishing debt; and whereas in the amendment suggested by the commission we do recognize the right principles to secure such government; therefore,

Resolved, That this Exchange does hereby most earnestly urge the Senators and Representatives from this city and Kings county in the State Legislature to use all their efforts to secure a passage of the proposed amendments, so as to bring them in due course for approval before the next Legislature.

Resolved, That this Exchange appeals to the sense of justice of the members of the Legislature from other parts of the State not to deny to the tax-ridden cities of New York and Brooklyn that right of self-regulation of their finances which is, by legislative enactment, secured to taxpayers of the towns and villages which they represent.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing resolutions be sent by the Secretary of this Exchange to each Senator and Representative in the Legislature from this city and Kings county.

Mr. Henry Hentz seconded the above, and after some remarks by Mr. James F. Maury a vote was taken and the resolutions were unanimously adopted.

THE GROCERS' STAND.

At a meeting of the Grocers' Board of Trade yesterday, resolutions were unanimously adopted requesting the members from this city in both branches of the Legislature to exert their utmost personal influence in promoting and consummating the necessary legislation to secure the adoption of the amendment as proposed by the commission.

NEW YORK BOARD OF TRADE.

At the rooms of the New York Board of Trade a resolution was also passed, urging the adoption of the amendments and appointing a committee of three to accompany the President of the Board to Albany and present their views to the Legislature.

NO NEW PRODUCE EXCHANGE.

Pursuant to announcement the members of the Produce Exchange appeared in large numbers yesterday to cast their vote on the following question:—

Are you in favor of securing a proper site, and erecting thereon a suitable building, having conveniences and accommodations adequate to the increased needs of the Exchange, provided the Board of Managers shall present to you a plan for the accomplishment of this object, giving an estimate of cost and proposed location, which shall be submitted to a vote by ballot of the members of the Exchange, after twenty days' notice of such ballot shall have been given?

At three o'clock the polls were closed, and on the count being taken it was found that the ballot stood 669 in favor and 756 against, thus killing the project at once.

The following clever burlesque notice was previously circulated about and really contributed to defeat the project of the managers:—

NOTICE.

At a meeting of the curbstone board of this Exchange it is unanimously "resolved that the following questions be submitted to a vote by ballot on Wednesday, April 4, 1877:—

Are you in favor of securing a proper sight of the $400,000 which the Exchange has securely invested; and after having seen the contractor are you in favor of erecting an expensive building, having all the modern improvements, to wit:—Mortgage of $500,000, parlors, drawing rooms, "bull"-dozing apartments with "bear" skin divans, hot and cold baths, all to be connected with a magnificent restaurant and drinking saloon, from which an income of $20,000 annually is expected besides ten per cent on earnings of the bar, provided the Board shall present to you a plan for these accomplishments, giving an estimate of the cost of a course of lectures in the grand hall (which will be connected by telephone with the principal boards of trade and bourses of the Old World, the popular operas and the Tower of Babel), on the rise and fall of the general kingdom, the æsthetics of pork and lard, the ethereous qualities of whiskey straight, and the gullibility of the membership who are used to pull these chestnuts out of the fire?

Will you vote early and often that you may be of the committee who superintend the work?

New York, April 3, 1877.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1877.

NOTICE TO COUNTRY DEALERS.

The Adams Express Company run a special newspaper train over the Pennsylvania Railroad and its connections, leaving Jersey City at a quarter past four A. M. daily and Sunday, carrying the regular edition of the HERALD as far West as Harrisburg and South to Washington, reaching Philadelphia at a quarter past six A. M. and Washington at one P. M.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather at New York to-day will be warm and cloudy, with rain.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—The stock market was very active and there was a great improvement in all the principal active stocks with the exception of the coal fancies. Panama advanced 20 per cent and Pacific Mail recovered almost all its loss of Tuesday. Gold opened at 104¾, advanced to 105 and closed at 104⅞. Government and railroad bonds were generally lower. Money loaned at 4 a 5 per cent on call and closed at the latter quotation.

W. M. T. IS STILL "at home" at his old quarters in Ludlow street.

EMMA MINE is still being actively courted. Her suit is a very long and expensive one.

THE INTERESTING STATEMENT is made that the City Chamberlain has paid in a large sum due as interest on city deposits.

OFFICER NAYLOR was evidently nailed yesterday when on trial for clubbing a citizen. His own head may be hit this time.

THE COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION is actively preparing for the ensuing season, which is expected to be a very interesting one.

HOUSE AGENTS may learn a profitable lesson from the proceedings before Judge Daly yesterday. It was a new way to collect bad debts.

THE CONFUSION OF TIME, as occasioned by the different public clocks in this city, is to be corrected in future, and by a very simple process.

HOW DECEPTIVE ARE APPEARANCES is clearly shown by an article in our law reports to-day. It is nothing new, however, that thieves often look like honest men.

FIFTEEN DOLLARS is the Brooklyn price for clubbing a citizen; at least that is about the sum that Patrolman Ryan will have to pay for his pleasant use of the locust.

BECAUSE A HORSE IS LAME is no good reason for the arrest of the person having the animal in charge. At least this is the opinion of some eminent jurists whose views we publish to-day.

STEALING MONEY LETTERS to maintain appearances in a militia regiment is the latest phase of embezzlement. False pride is bound to have a fall, and young men should profit by the lesson taught by the facts in this case.

THAT "GARRETT," the passenger on the steamship Victoria, is really Mr. A. Oakey Hall there can now be no question. He has been seen by the London correspondent of the World and admitted his identity. Mr. Hall is described as being broken down in mind and body, a statement his many friends will receive with deep regret.

OUR SAVINGS BANK SYSTEM is fully explained in the HERALD to-day. It will interest all classes to learn how these institutions are managed, mismanaged and ruined. This is one of those cases where a little knowledge is not a dangerous thing. The more we know about the internal economy of our savings institutions the better it will be for everybody.

THE WEATHER.—The high barometer in the St. Lawrence Valley on Tuesday has moved eastward over Nova Scotia and is rapidly followed by the depression referred to in yesterday's HERALD, and which is now central in the lake region. This disturbance promises to be a peculiar one, inasmuch as it presents novel variations of pressure and temperature in and around its area. It would seem to be a twin disturbance, the division between the two areas of low pressure being a slight barometric ridge. A rain area of considerable extent accompanies the depression, which will cause the Missouri and Upper Mississippi to rise. The thermometric gradient descends sharply from St. Louis northwestward, and this, with the differences of pressure in the Lower Missouri Valley and central districts, indicates the possibility of local tornadoes in that region. The same may be said of the Eastern Gulf and South Atlantic States, where the atmospheric equilibrium is also much disturbed. Heavy rains prevailed yesterday from Texas along the coasts to North Carolina and over Tennessee and Georgia. The coast winds were very variable within comparatively small areas, and indicated in connection with the thermometric differences conditions favorable to the development of local disturbances. We will therefore await with some interest reports from the regions referred to. The Mississippi, upper and lower, and the Missouri have risen. The Ohio and Cumberland have fallen. The weather in New York to-day will be warm and cloudy, probably with rain.

Financial Policy of the New Administration.

The Southern question, which met President Hayes at the threshold, and has thus far engrossed both his own attention and that of the public, is in a fair way toward an early and satisfactory settlement. The really great question on which the success or failure of this administration is staked remains to be grappled with. The Southern problem would have been in any event transient. It would have solved itself if the President had not wisely solved it. It was not in the nature of things that the local governments of the Southern States should continue to be controlled by military interference from Washington. General Grant did all that any President could do in that direction. In spite of his persistent efforts every State government in the South, with only two doubtful exceptions, passed out of republican control during his administration. It is so obvious that South Carolina and Louisiana would have followed suit, even if President Grant had remained in power, that he explicitly gave them up before his retirement from office. It is to his credit that, instructed by his own unfortunate experience, he tried to smooth the path of his successor by publishing to the country his impression that the policy of military interference in the South is disapproved by the people and played out. President Hayes has wisely decided to keep himself out of the Southern entanglements which gave his predecessor so much trouble and annoyance. It was inevitable that South Carolina and Louisiana would have slipped the noose of Hayes as all the other Southern States slipped the military noose of Grant. The new President has prudently spared himself the mortification of his predecessor by a voluntary relinquishment of what it was impossible for him to hold. But he has done nothing which General Grant would not have done had he remained in office for another four years. It would have been absurd and suicidal for the new President to have persisted in a policy which his predecessor on retiring from office was constrained to acknowledge as a mistake.

The Southern question having been virtually disposed of before Mr. Hayes has been a month in office, his attention and the attention of the country will henceforth be directed to a paramount question of greater difficulty and complexity. The financial condition of the country is simply deplorable. All our business interests have languished since the great panic of September, 1873. It is the chief duty of the government to redeem the country from this depressing stagnation. This is the one great problem to which Mr. Hayes and his advisers should direct all their sagacity and energy. If they fail to solve it his administration, despite secondary merits, will be a deplorable failure. To rectify the finances and revive business is the formidable and mighty task laid upon this administration. If it fails in this Mr. Hayes is a failure. If it succeeds in this Mr. Hayes will rank as one of the most important benefactors of his country.

In any just estimate the Southern question and the civil service question are insignificant in presence of the overshadowing financial question, which comes home to the pecuniary interest of every citizen. The great object of hope is a revival of business prosperity. If the administration of President Hayes does nothing to promote this it will be condemned for the greatest fault with which a government can be chargeable—failure to "understand its epoch." The one paramount need of the country is a revival of business. If the new administration cannot contribute to this it will prove an utter failure. We would fain hope that the financial question may be pressed upon the attention of Congress at the approaching extra session, with an urgent recommendation by the President for immediate action.

On this important class of subjects the Secretary of the Treasury has a responsibility almost as great as that of the President himself. The President's attention is necessarily distributed through the whole wide range of administrative questions. He cannot be expected to have the same vigorous grasp of foreign affairs as the Secretary of State, the same minute knowledge of the army and navy as the heads of those departments, nor the same complete mastery of financial questions which is justly expected of the Secretary of the Treasury. All that we can ask of the President is that he put competent experts at the head of each department. In forming his Cabinet there is no selection which should have given him so much solicitude as that of the Secretary of the Treasury. With the exception of the Secretary of State the other heads of departments perform routine duties. In the present state of our foreign relations the Secretary of State is not an important officer. The exigencies of the government are very different now from what they were during the civil war, when the Secretary of State and the Secretary of the Treasury were the two main pillars of the government. In that dark period we were in constant danger of a foreign war, which would have been fatal to the preservation of the Union. The able and dexterous management of Mr. Seward, which spared us that ruinous calamity, is even more worthy of grateful commemoration than the services of Mr. Chase in finding resources for paying our vast armies. But at present the Secretary of State has no dangerous channels to navigate, whereas the Secretary of the Treasury is confronted with problems as difficult as those which met Mr. Chase. Unless there should be a change in our foreign relations, of which there is no prospect, the Secretary of the Treasury will be, next to the President, altogether the most important officer in this administration. If the President has made a mistake in selecting this officer it is the greatest of possible blunders. If Mr. Sherman is equal to the demands of the situation it will be a great thing both for his own reputation and the public welfare. No question with which this administration will have to deal is so important as the finances.

Is Mr. John Sherman equal to this position? If his courage and decision were as unquestionable as his experience we should have no doubt. If he fails he cannot plead the baby act. No man in public life has had Mr. Sherman's opportunities for mastering the fiscal questions with which he is now called to deal. He has been Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate for sixteen years. The corresponding officer of the House of Representatives has been changed again and again during that period. While Mr. Sherman has been serving as Chairman of the Finance Committee there have been seven different Secretaries of the Treasury. It was the duty of each of these to study our national finances during the brief period while he was in office. But it has been the duty of Mr. Sherman to study these questions continuously while so many Secretaries of the Treasury, of whom he has been the most important adviser, have come in and gone out. Who can be expected to understand our fiscal questions if Mr. Sherman does not? Measured by mere time he has bestowed five times as much attention upon them as Secretary Chase, the ablest finance Minister of whom he has been a contemporary. If Mr. Sherman fails it will not be for lack of opportunities. He has been in one of the most important financial positions for a longer period than any other man since the organization of the government. If there be any reason to distrust him it is from doubts of his energy and courage rather than his want of experience and opportunities. We sincerely hope that Mr. Hayes has not made a mistake in selecting the most important officer of his administration.

Secretary Sherman must deal efficiently with two problems—resumption of specie payments and refunding the public debt at a lower rate of interest. Neither subject is new to him. He should be as fully prepared to develop his policy at the extra session of Congress as he can ever be. We have very distinct ideas of what he ought to do; but it is not our province, but his, to devise a financial scheme suited to the present exigency. If he thinks he needs further legislation either for refunding the public debt or for hastening specie payments, let him ask it of Congress at the approaching extra session. It is the plain duty of the new President and his Secretary of the Treasury to give the country some idea of what it is to expect of the new administration on the most important subject within the province of the federal government.

The Municipal Amendment to the State Constitution.

The call of citizens for a meeting in Steinway Hall on Saturday to urge the passage of the constitutional amendment is so respectably and numerously signed that we expect a large attendance. It is the plain duty of this Legislature to pass the amendment and thus submit it to a thorough public scrutiny. The responsibility of proposing a question for discussion is very different from the responsibility of finally deciding it. If the present Legislature indorses the constitutional amendment the only effect will be to bring it up for more mature discussion and deliberation in the Legislature which meets next winter. Even an approval of the amendment by the next Legislature will not make it a part of the constitution. The effect of indorsing a constitutional amendment by two successive Legislatures is merely to submit it to the people of the State for their ratification or rejection. The first Legislature which acts upon it should therefore be very liberal and tolerant, especially when the proposed amendment has been recommended by a commission of such pre-eminent ability and character as that of which Mr. Evarts was a member. We regard their plan for the government of cities as excellent. At any rate there is so much to be said in its favor that the people of the State should be allowed to pass their judgment upon it. The points of the plan are—first, spring elections; second, making mayors responsible by allowing them to appoint and remove their subordinates; third, an efficient restriction on the power of cities to contract debts; and, fourth, putting the authority to raise taxes and make expenditures under the direct control of the taxpayers. We agree with the Municipal Commission that these changes would be salutary. If the people of the State shall think otherwise we will bow to their judgment; but we insist that the Legislature shall give them an opportunity to decide the question. We hope, therefore, that the Steinway Hall meeting on Saturday may be imposing enough to command the attention of the Legislature.

Where Is the Money Dumped?

The Street Cleaning Bureau officials assign as a reason for the filthiness of the streets and the accumulations of decomposing garbage that taint the air in every part of the city the want of a dumping ground—that is, unless the Legislature or the Common Council will secure a suitable place for the deposit of the city refuse, the streets must remain as they are, a disgrace to New York and her people. But the public is getting curious about this Street Cleaning Bureau, and desires to know where it dumps three-quarters of a million per annum while leaving the streets in their present horrible condition. No matter what difficulties beset the officials in disposing of the ashes and garbage, we have never heard from them any complaint about inability to spend the people's money. They must have a spacious dumping ground for dollars, whatever they may have for dirt. Now, we have already pointed out to this money dumping bureau a plan for getting rid of the garbage by cremation. Their only response is a request that some twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars be placed in the hands of Tom, Dick or Harry for scientific experiments, or, in other words, to be dumped somewhere for somebody's benefit. The kitchen maids of New York and Brooklyn have made all the experiments necessary. We therefore do not need any at the public cost. Truly, in no other city in the Union would such a scandalous disregard of duty on the part of its officials be permitted or practised. These men possess no initiative whatever. They are like wasteful machines that require winding up every day to make them perform any duty. They are the creators instead of the abaters of nuisances, and should be dealt with as such. If with the dumping of seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year we cannot get rid of the city dirt mere economy should prompt the Board of Apportionment to withhold an appropriation that serves no useful purpose, but instead fosters a system that is only another expression for donothingism, dirt and dishonesty combined.

Ousting Bismarck.

There is every likelihood that opinions and sentiments in Berlin adverse to Prince Bismarck have so far prevailed with the Kaiser as to excite him on the point whether the imperial will was his own or his Chancellor's; as to which of the two, in fact, is Emperor. All that is known of the Kaiser's mind fully supports the notion that he is not superior to this kind of vanity; that he believes himself, and means that the world shall believe, that he mainly is the author of the great successes of his government. Princes of mediocre capacity have always been the victims of this sort of pique; this has always been the "bee in the bonnet" of crowned men who have barely had sense enough to stand still and permit the great geniuses gathered about a throne to go ahead and do great things. In the coincidence of the two great men, Bismarck and Von Moltke—the one even greater in diplomacy than the other in war—there is seen a repetition of what occurred in France when Talleyrand and Napoleon Bonaparte were on the scene at the same time. Bonaparte was the great soldier of the age, and there was no man in Europe who could cope with Talleyrand in those mere devices of diplomacy with which his name is most associated, or who was so clear and so strong in his perception of the principles that underlie all politics. If these two men had been nominally in the service of any dull hereditary prince of the line of Bourbon that sovereign would have been the analogue of the Emperor William, and the cases as to the personal elements would have been precisely parallel. But it would have been the tradition of the monarchy to assume that all the genius was the King's, as it is now the tradition in Prussia; and it is highly probable that the King might have believed it as the Emperor does. From this relation of the Emperor to the Prince it is not difficult for the elements inimical to the great Chancellor to inspire the sovereign with an idea that any repetition of the Von Arnim story in the case of Von Stosch would be more than unfortunate; to represent the Prince's savage assertion of his dignity as a mere explosion of irritability—a result of a failing perception of the proportions of things—an evidence that he is overworked and needs rest. In this train of ideas the assumption that his conduct is due to the invalidity of his intellectual operations would, perhaps, be resented by the Prince as an addition to the indignity, and if he consented to put his withdrawal from public life in that form it would be an admission that he regarded the adverse elements as too potent even for his strong grasp. Against Bismarck there is, doubtless, in Court and Cabinet, the spirit of jealousy and hidden antipathy generally that is commonly felt by people of fair and average capacity against one whose genius belittles them. They will be glad to have him out of the way, and the Emperor will assent because not disposed to attach its real importance to Bismarck's services. But Bismarck's work is less than half done. It is not a question who will continue it, for the inimical elements are committed to the policy of undoing it; and the calamities and confusions that will follow may fill the mind of the Emperor, if he lives a few years longer, with some doubts as to who created the present German unity.

Cutting Down Salaries.

The bill in regard to the courts of this city, which is a sort of court omnibus bill, may be all right in its general provisions for the reduction of court expenditures, but we are of opinion that the reduction of the salaries of judges is not a good measure of economy. It is one of those economical steps that imply a panic on the subject of public expenditures—steps that defeat their own purpose and make no progress toward the right end, but defeat such progress by raising new difficulties and discrediting the movement toward economy. Any man who is a good enough lawyer to occupy a place on the Bench in this community is worth all the salary he gets. Judges have never been paid too much in this country. If there is any economy to be effected in the administration of our courts, as we believe there is, that economy must consist in cutting away the superfluous parasitic growths which form about the courts, which swell the aggregate figure of the cost of a court to such a point that the salary of the judge becomes by comparison a small item. It is the "patronage" that we want cut down, not the pay of the judges. And this is a good principle in all measures toward public economy, not to cut down the salaries of necessary officers, but to dispense altogether with such as are unnecessary.

Betraying His Party.

It appears, on the authority of several grave and reverend signors, that President Hayes is "betraying the republican party;" that he is not applying in the government the principles of those who chose him for his office, but the contrary principles; that he is giving effect not to the will or the aspirations of the party that supported him, but has practically gone over to the other party. All this is said particularly with reference to the President's course on the cases of South Carolina and Louisiana; and it is a point upon which some democratic journals agree with some republican journals; while both fully agree with Wendell Phillips. If what is said in this vein is true it is not to the honor of the republican party. In his course toward South Carolina and Louisiana the Executive restores the law to the authority the people have always intended it should have. Intrigue and corruption, indifference to the law, defiance of the right, had produced in those States a condition for which there was not only no warrant in the law, but which was in open, flagrant, recognized violation of the law of the land. The President simply reverses that state of facts and sets the house in order. If the restoration of the supremacy of the law over facts that only the law should control is the betrayal of any party the sooner that party is betrayed the better for all reasons.

Is There a Nigger in the Woodpile?

We have indorsed the proposal to abolish the Department of Docks and make it a bureau of the Department of Public Works. But an examination of Senator Morrissey's bill looking to this object leads us to suspect that it is a mask intended to conceal a juggle. Be its purpose what it may, it is one of the most illogical and incongruous bills introduced during this session. In sailor's phrase, "it looks one way and rows another." The people of the city have been under the impression that the merging of the Department of Docks in that of Public Works, making the former a bureau of the latter, would put the docks under the direction and control of the Commissioner of Public Works. Mr. Morrissey's bill does nothing of the kind. It looks too much like a deceitful and misleading pretence. Its real drift and whole effect is to transfer the powers of the Dock Department to the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund. This may be a good measure or a bad measure, but it is a measure disguising itself under a cloak. Its proper and fitting title would be, "A Bill for Making the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund Commissioners of Docks." We detest crooked legislation. The bill in question, while professing to reduce the Dock Department to a bureau in the Department of Public Works, and while giving the appointment of its chief officer to the Commissioner of Public Works, makes that officer a mere servant of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund. It does not permit him to perform a single act of any importance without their approval, and it exempts him completely from supervision or control by the department of which his office is nominally made a bureau. The Commissioner of Public Works will have no more authority over him after his appointment than the Police Commissioners or the Commissioners of Charities. What a preposterous farce it is to pretend to create a bureau in one department of the city government, and, at the same time, give the whole control of that bureau to an outside body! It is natural to suspect that such an absurdity in legislation conceals a job.

As an accompaniment of this strange bill another is offered which passed the Senate on Monday, reconstituting the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund who are to be really a Department of Docks under another name. The Mayor and Comptroller are to be two members, and the City Judge, the Chief Justice of the Superior Court and the Recorder are each to appoint one. If two of these latter three should be opposed to the Mayor and Comptroller the other one would be really Commissioner of Docks in virtue of his casting vote. Has the bill some individual in view whom it aims to clothe with this power? If there is such "a nigger in the woodpile" he will be dragged forth and exposed before this juggling bill can pass.

RESTING FOR THE HOUR OF TRIAL

The Eastern Situation and the Prospects of Peace.

AN ENGLISH MINISTER ON THE PROTOCOL.

Eng'ish Iron in America—The Pope's Health Improving.

[BY CABLE TO THE HERALD.]

LONDON, April 5, 1877.

The retirement of Prince Bismarck is still the subject of discussion here and on the Continent, and the newspapers are all full of it. It has thrown the Eastern question for the moment into the shade, and people at least feel a sense of relief to find that one remarkable event has occurred in Europe to break the wearying monotony of those endless and apparently resultless negotiations between the Powers on the subject of Turkey and her discontented subjects. What the final results of the great Chancellor's temporary retirement—for it can be only temporary—may be it is impossible now to foresee, but as no German statesman can by any possibility be set up as a rival to him, it is admitted that, in or out of office, his influence in Germany and in Europe will be still paramount. The leading organs of public opinion in the various European capitals have each their version of the affair, but they all agree as to the main facts.

PRESS COMMENTS ON THE RESIGNATION.

The Provincial Correspondence, of Berlin, a semi-official journal, states that Prince Bismarck asked to be relieved from his official position because his health was seriously impaired. The Emperor's decision has not been given, but a prolonged leave of absence will probably be granted, which will relieve the Prince of all participation in public affairs. The Paris Temps asserts that Bismarck will content himself with a six months' furlough. He wishes to leave to others the responsibility of deciding the Eastern question, should Russia determine to have war. A Berlin despatch says:—At the Emperor's request, Prince Bismarck leaves his resignation in abeyance during his year's absence. Prince Bismarck declares that his present health incapacitates him for work, and that he feels attendance at Parliament an intolerable burden. General Von Stosch, Chief of the German Admiralty, and Prince Bismarck are on good terms. It seems that the Von Stosch incident was not the cause of the Prince's retirement. The provocation is supposed to be of an earlier date—something which occurred at court. It is understood Prince Bismarck will visit England during his retirement. According to another despatch it has been decided that the heads of departments will provisionally discharge the duties of the Imperial Chancellerie during Prince Bismarck's absence.

THE CAUSES DISCUSSED.

A despatch from Berlin to the Times, discussing Prince Bismarck's resignation, says:—"Prince Bismarck's motive was probably complex. His health is by no means good, and his influence on Prussian domestic affairs very limited, owing to the traditional independence of each Cabinet Minister, while the concentration of affairs in the hands of an imperial administration is impeded, not only by the resistance of the minor governments, but also by opposition proceedings from the chiefs of the various Prussian departments. As, for instance, two gentlemen appointed by Prince Bismarck to the direction of the new Central Railway Department have successively resigned because their communications were slighted by the railway departments of individual States. As was concluded from Prince Bismarck's language on the occasion, the Von Stosch affair made a deep impression upon him. General Von Stosch is a German, not a Prussian Minister, and as Prince Bismarck has always endeavored to break Prussian traditions in the organization of German bureaus and to assign the chiefs of the German departments to a strictly subordinate position under the absolute control of the Chancellor, General Von Stosch's independent bearing must have appeared like an attempt to transfer the deprecated Prussian system to German institutions. Whether the Prince's withdrawal was directly occasioned by this affair or not, there is little doubt it has been indirectly occasioned by his unwillingness to endure official friction greater than his health could well support."

THE TIMES ON BISMARCK.

The Times, in a leading article, after commenting on Prince Bismarck's well known difficulties relative to internal affairs, says:—"It cannot be overlooked that Prince Bismarck's retirement is simultaneous with the acceptance of the protocol. Prince Bismarck's power naturally prompts men to connect his retirement with the greatest event in contemporary history." The Times considers the idea of separating the various offices hitherto held by Prince Bismark will tend to strengthen the elements of particularist opposition. If war breaks out in Europe Prince Bismarck must return to the helm, as we have no evidence that there is any other statesman in Germany. The proposed distribution of offices is, indeed, described as provisional, which may mean that it is to take effect until Prince Bismarck returns to take care of the Empire, and there is, indisputably, a danger that a struggle of independent departments, each claiming freedom from the control of any other, may provoke administrative anarchy requiring his presence for its cure.

SPARING HIMSELF FOR THE HOUR OF TRIAL.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says the Emperor must decide in regard to Prince Bismarck's application within a few days. The Reichstag reassembles on the 10th, and its assent must be obtained to arrangements which the Chancellor's absence for a year would render necessary. Such a long furlough must produce many inconveniences and difficulties. On this account Prince Bismarck insists upon being relieved of all his duties, wishing to spare his powers for the time when Europe may be in danger. The correspondent refers to an article in the Berlin Poste on this subject, which is considered to have been inspired. This article concludes:—"We believe the Empire will still have to stand the severest test, and that the hour of trial may be nearer than is generally believed. It is Bismarck's duty to spare himself for that hour."

A Berlin despatch to the Post says the consent of the Reichstag is necessary for the year's leave asked by Bismarck, for without it he would remain reponsible for the act of his substitute. No definitive answer, therefore, has been made to the request, but an application will be laid before the Reichstag immediately on its reassembling.

THE PORTE'S EMBARRASSMENTS.

A correspondent at Pera, writing on March 30, says:—"Amidst all the fluctuations between hope and fear one thing is becoming clear that the men who are responsible for peace or war, such as the Sultan, Mahmoud Damad and Said Pacha, are earnestly and even anxiously desirous for peace. They have good reasons for this. The government dare not issue more than 3,000,000 Turkish pounds' worth of paper money lest it should become utterly worthless. Provisions for the army, although they consist only of flour and rice, involve a monthly expenditure of 700,000 Turkish pounds, which will in a year amount to 6,500,000 Turkish pounds in excess of the budget of the War Department. The government is also unable to obtain a million Turkish pounds to pay the outstanding debts of the late Sultans Murad Effendi and Abdul Aziz. The thought that Russia, even if out of respect to Germany she does not venture to march on the Danube, may next month resolve on an attack on the eastern frontier, and that upon her winning a battle or two Persia, Greece and other latent enemies may fall on Turkey on all sides, is well calculated to sober the enthusiasm of anybody who knows how utterly destitute this country would be of all resources of war at the very opening of a campaign."

WHAT NEXT?

The correspondent of the Times at Vienna, says:—"The next phase of the Eastern question at Constantinople is likely to be the most interesting, as it will probably decide the question of peace or war. Conjecture as to the decision would be idle, as it will depend on a number of factors, some of which, like the Turkish Parliament, or a turn in popular feeling in Russia, are quite incalculable. Relative to the negotiations with Montenegro, the last illusion of the Turks as to the possibility of settling the matter by a mere exchange of territory must have been dispelled by a sort of reminder which the Russian Chargé d'Affaires is said to have lately addressed to the Porte urging the conclusion of the negotiations, and strongly advising it to give way. But this had quite a contrary effect to what was expected, being looked upon as a hostile step on the part of Russia tending rather to encourage the Turks in their resistance to the Montenegrin demands and to diminish considerably the hope of a peaceful solution. As yet the impression produced in Constantinople by the protocol negotiation seems to be very slight. The impression exists more strongly in Turkey than anywhere else that the negotiations are only a Russian device to gain time and establish the Russian position whenever she chooses to bring about a collision."

A BRITISH MINISTER ON THE PROTOCOL.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chief Secretary for Ireland, made a speech at a banquet in Gloucester yesterday evening, in which he alluded to the Eastern question. He said he thought when the protocol was fully explained it would meet the emphatic approval of the country. It was difficult in many ways to overrate the importance of the signing of that document. It was a renewed proof of the union of the six great Powers on a question which would be most dangerous if left to one of them. It was also a pledge for the maintenance of a peace, during which the government hoped Turkey would effect reforms impossible while the thunderbolt of war was hanging on her frontier. In the negotiations England was now the leader of Europe. She was no longer the nation to which a Berlin memorandum, previously concocted and signed by three great Powers, was sent with a demand for concurrence, even without the ceremony of previous consultation. The present moment was hopeful, but no one could tell what difficulties and dangers might arise.

THINGS THAT DON'T LOOK LIKE PEACE.

It has been noticed that the foreign officers who were recently in the Servian service have dispersed themselves to Russia, Greece, Bosnia, Persia and other countries hostile to Turkey. It is stated that 160 members of the Russian Red Cross Society have arrived at Jassy, and are arranging hospitals there. "Indications on the political horizon," says a correspondent in Belgrade, "suggests that, while diplomatists are quibbling over the exact meaning of words, events are drawing a cordon round Turkey which may soon furnish a surprising spectacle to Europe. Another council of the Turkish Cabinet was held yesterday. No decision was taken respecting disarmament. Military preparations continue without interruption. Negotiations with Montenegro are at a standstill.

SUPPOSED MURDER.

A SKELETON FOUND IN A MARYLAND SWAMP.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

OAKLAND, Md., April 4, 1877.

The skeleton of a murdered man was found on Sunday two miles from here. A Coroner's jury gave a verdict of "Murder by an unknown person." The body had evidently been dragged from the road into the dense laurel swamps where it was found. A large bullet hole was found in the breast bone. It is supposed it had been in the woods about one year.

THEORY OF THE CASE.

The theory of the case is based upon the testimony of a woman who lived near the laurel swamp. Over a year ago two men boarded at her house and worked at neighboring coal mines. One, named Richard Prettybone, from Pittsburg, was paid $130 wages, and left with the other man for Piedmont. Soon after the latter came back and said Prettybone had gone to Pittsburg. He has never been seen since. The woman described the coal-knife and shirt buttons of Prettybone, and they tallied exactly with those found with the skeleton.

EX-MAYOR HALL.

His Identity Fully Established at Last.

AN INTERVIEW OBTAINED.

Restless and Purposeless in London Lodgings.

"A BROKEN DOWN MAN."

The Mystery of His Departure Unexplained.

[BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK WORLD.]

LONDON, April 4—11 P. M.

I have this evening had a protracted interview with A. Oakey Hall, who now occupies lodgings in the neighborhood of Notting-Hill Gate, a cheap locality, made up of small houses mainly, beyond Kensington and toward Wormwood Scrubs and Kensal Green, in the quiet cemetery of which latter district lie buried so many of the clever actors and lively men of letters with whose names and works Mr. Hall was so familiar and with whom, in their lifetime and in his better days, he would have been so delighted to associate. Though geographically at the West End of London it is socially so far west that it may almost be said to have come round again and become east. The region has not, of course, the desolate appearance and pauper population of Spitalfields and Bethnal Green, but it is mostly inhabited by small householders. In one of the poorest of these houses Mr. Hall has had his lodgings since he reached London, last Saturday. They seem to have been secured for him by previous arrangement—perhaps even before he left New York.

After the receipt of your telegram asking that Mr. Hall, if in London, should be seen and positively identified, I called at the office of the New York Associated Press and secured the address of the passenger by the steamer Victoria, who had been followed by the press agent to the house near Notting Hill Gate As telegraphed you yesterday I called at this place, and, sending in a note, addressed on the outside to "Mr. Garbett"—the name under which Mr. Hall now goes in his lodgings—but on the inside to Mr. Hall himself, I received a verbal message from Mr. Hall expressing his willingness to see me at any time. Early this morning a note came to me in Mr. Hall's own handwriting—with which I am perfectly familiar—reiterating his perfect willingness to see me at any time.

This evening, therefore, I called and was met by Mr. Hall in his rooms. We had a long interview, but he absolutely refuses to make any explanations whatever as to his motives in leaving New York under such extraordinary circumstances, and seems altogether at sea as to his future plans. He is evidently very much broken in mind and body, and says that he now only desires rest and peace. The general details of our conversation I am not at liberty to publish, but I venture to suggest that it is now only charity to an utterly broken man to say as little more about him as possible.

MR. HALL ARRANGES AN INTERVIEW.

LONDON, April 4, 1877.

Yesterday the representative of the New York Associated Press, who identified Mr. A. Oakey Hall at Liverpool (and subsequently saw him walking in Hyde Park, London, in company with a middle-aged lady), accompanied by a correspondent of the New York World, waited on the person giving the name of "Garbett," and requested an interview. This was declined. A note was then written by the World correspondent and addressed to "Mr. Garbett" on the envelope and to Mr. A. Oakey Hall inside. This was forwarded by a commissionaire, and a verbal answer was returned, expressive of Mr. Hall's willingness to meet the writer thereof. As the result of this correspondence the World correspondent writes to the London agency of the Associated Press, this morning, as follows:—"I am satisfied that it is Mr. Hall whom you have seen."

"MR. GARBETT" DECLINES.

When the Associated Press representative called at Mr. Hall's lodgings to-day he sent up a letter asking for an interview, or for any statement Mr. Hall might be willing to make. The letter was addressed to "A. Oakey Hall," and was enclosed in an envelope addressed to "Mr. Garbett." The letter was returned, with the following indorsement in a woman's handwriting:—

The gentleman to whom your envelope was addressed certainly has no concern with its enclosure, and therefore respectfully returns it, that an evident mistake may be rectified.

Request was then made for a personal interview with "Mr. Garbett," and it was refused.

THE MYSTERIOUS WOMAN.

The following is a description of the woman who accompanied "Sutliffe-Hall":—

She is about thirty-eight years of age, five feet five inches in height, has a good figure, dark brown hair, clear complexion, large eyes and large mouth. She has a wart about two inches below her left ear.

The woman was here in advance of "Sutliffe," and undoubtedly made all the arrangements previous to his arrival.

They are lodging in ordinary apartments and the people of the house are evidently ignorant of their identity.

THE FAMILY AND FRIENDS OF MR. HALL.

Up to a late hour last night the family of Mr. Hall had heard nothing from him. Mr. Vanderpool was out of town, and Recorder Hackett had not received any news. That Mr. Hall is in London no one now seems to doubt, and an explanation of the motives which induced him to take the sudden step is looked for with interest. In conversation with a number of gentlemen, all acquainted with Mr. Hall, they stated yesterday afternoon that they had heard Mr. Hall talk in a vague way about a book describing low life, but not with sufficient interest to warrant the conjecture that he left New York to prosecute such a work. Every theory that is advanced to explain the flight of Mr. Hall seems inconsistent with some well known facts, and contradictions are ever ready to accompany a new explanation.

MR. GOSHORN COMPLIMENTED.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 4, 1877.

The dinner tendered the Hon. A. T. Goshorn, Director General of the Centennial Exhibition, occurred at the Grand Hotel to-night, and was a superb affair. It was attended by some 125 prominent citizens of this city and others from abroad, among whom were Mr. T. S. Harrison, chairman of the Citizens' Centennial Committee of Philadelphia; Colonel Myer Asche, assistant secretary of the United States Centennial Committee and private secretary of the Director General, and Mr. Robert Cox, of Philadelphia; Mayor Johnson, Hon. William S. Groesbeck, ex-Governor Noyes, Judge Force, Mr. M. Halstead and others, of this city. Ex-Attorney General Taft presided and made an eloquent address of welcome.

RHODE ISLAND ELECTION.

ELECTION OF THE REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET BY A MUCH REDUCED VOTE.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

NEWPORT, R. I., April 4, 1877.

The election to-day has been a series of surprises, and it has been the most exciting one that has been held since William Sprague ran for Governor. General Charles C. Van Zandt, of this city, the republican candidate for Governor, is undoubtedly elected, but by a majority of less than 500. Hayes' majority in November was upward of 4,000. The balance of the republican State ticket are also no doubt elected.

REJOICING IN NEWPORT.

As predicted in the HERALD to-day, General Van Zandt has a majority of over 1,000 in this county. He carried every ward in this city and there is no little rejoicing here to-night, as Newport county has not had the honor of the Governorship for the past fifty-three years. General Van Zandt has been called upon by hundreds of the citizens of Newport to-night, and he is in receipt of congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the State. It is many years since Newport has witnessed such rejoicing. Bonfires are burning and bands of musicians have been called out. General Van Zandt is a native of Newport, forty-seven years of age, a leading lawyer, was graduated at Trinity College, Hartford; has been Lieutenant Governor two years, has represented Newport in both Houses of the Legislature and has been Speaker of the House of Representatives for several years, and during Governor Howard's term acted as Governor for some time.

THE LEGISLATURE.

There will undoubtedly be a republican majority in the legislature, but it will be an unusually small one. Newport, which gives Van Zandt a majority of nearly 700, has saved the party from a serious defeat.

CITY ELECTION.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 4, 1877.

THE POTTERY STRIKE.

AID FOR THE LOCKED-OUT OPERATIVES FROM ENGLAND—NEW MEN AT WORK.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

TRENTON, N. J., April 4, 1877.

The "locked-out" potters of this city were greatly elated to-day over the receipt of a draft for $1,000 from their fellow workmen in Staffordshire, England, with a promise that more money would be forthcoming in a few days, as collections are being taken up in all the potteries of England for the same purpose. The 1,500 locked-out operatives here are determined to hold out to the bitter end, and, on the other hand, the bosses are firm in the stand they have taken in reducing the rate of wages. The thirteen potteries are nearly in full operation with new men, only about sixty of the old ones having gone back to work. The manufacturers say that the ware now being made gives satisfaction, and that even if the old hands consented to come back at the new scale of prices employment for only about one-fourth of them could be given. They intend to keep on the new men, and this week hundreds of applicants have sought work at $1 per day.

DESTRUCTION OF A PAPER MILL.

THE LARGE PAPER MANUFACTURING WORKS OF JESSUP & MOORE, AT WILMINGTON, DEL., BURNED—LOSS THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

WILMINGTON, Del., April 4, 1877.

Jessup & Moore's paper mills, outside the city of Wilmington, took fire this afternoon about four o'clock, and all the old part of the mill was entirely destroyed. The fire is supposed to have taken from a piece of fuse blown upon the roof from a quarry blast, which was fired off in the immediate neighborhood about twenty minutes before the fire was discovered.

UNCONTROLLABLE.

The flames raged so fiercely as to defy the efforts of the whole Wilmington Fire Department.

LOSS AND INSURANCE.

The loss will be about $350,000, on which there is an insurance of $125,000 in about forty different companies.

OPERATIVES THROWN OUT OF WORK.

The fire is still smouldering, but all danger is past. A great number of people will be thrown out of employment, as the mills have been running "full time" for some months.

FOUND DEAD.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

LANCASTER, Ohio, April 4, 1877.

The mangled remains of William A. Twigg, of Pittsburg, were found near the railroad track, at Carroll, on Tuesday.

FAILURE OF A GRAIN DEALER.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4, 1877.

The failure of A. Friedlander, a prominent grain operator, was announced to-day. Mr. Friedlander states that in case he can collect the amounts due him his unsecured indebtedness will be about $600,000. As nearly as he can judge from the present condition of affairs, his indebtedness is entirely local and affects but few persons or firms, all of whom can stand it, with perhaps the exception of one or two in the interior. He attributes his failure, to some extent, to losses on charters, having early in the season chartered vessels at comparatively high figures, which he subsequently was obliged to recharter at much lower rates; but the greatest weight under which he labored was the condition of affairs in San Joaquin valley. He had purchased large tracts there which he subsequently sold to farmers, who paid down a small portion of the purchase money. Bad crops prevented a continuance of these payments, and he advanced means to enable them to sow the ground and continue business. Last year a portion was repaid him, but the gloomy prospects for the present season in that section of country convinced him that it was useless to struggle longer. A meeting of creditors will be held on Saturday or Monday next, when the future course will be decided. The report has created great surprise and called forth much sympathy in this city.

NAMES OF CREDITORS.

As regards creditors, whose names Mr. Friedlander at present declines to mention, it is reported on apparently good authority, that the principal one is the Nevada Bank. It is known that after the failure of the Bank of California Mr. Friedlander transferred his accounts for some two months to the London and San Francisco Bank from which they were carried to the Nevada Bank. The officers of that bank decline to make any statements, but it is reported that Mr. Friedlander owes there upward of a million dollars secured on real estate. There is also a reported indebtedness to the Bank of California, contracted prior to the failure of that institution, of several hundred thousand dollars, and also secured on real estate. Falkner, Bell & Co. are reported to hold his notes for some $200,000, and Balfour, Guthrie & Co. for about half that amount. There seems to be good grounds for the belief that arrangements will be made by the creditors to enable Friedlander to resume business at an early date. He states personally that the failure of the Bank of California placed him in a very cramped position for available funds, from which he has not since been able to extricate himself.

BITTEN BY A SPITZ.

Mrs. Eliza Strout, of Chelmsford Centre, was bitten by a Spitz dog several weeks since and was attacked with hydrophobia yesterday. Her sufferings to-day were terrible and she cannot survive to-night.

AMERICAN STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4, 1877.

A special meeting of stockholders of the American Steamship Company was held to-day to consider the proposition of the Pennsylvania Railroad to accept from the said steamship company 5,000 shares of its capital stock at the par value of $100 per share in lieu of its indebtedness, amounting to $500,000, to said railroad company. The proposition was accepted and a resolution to increase the capital stock of the steamship company to the extent of 5,100 shares was unanimously adopted.

RONDOUT, N. Y., April 4, 1877.

A special despatch from Moresville, Delaware county, says the hotel of Crippell & Elmendorf was burned this morning, and John Smith, of Pine Hill, perished in the flames. His body was found in the ruins this afternoon. The loss on the building and contents is between $6,000 and $10,000; insurance, $5,000.

DIAMOND MERCHANT MISSING.

SUDDEN AND MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF GEORGE SHARP, JR.—UNEASINESS OF CREDITORS AND CURIOSITY OF THE PUBLIC.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4, 1877.

There is great excitement in this city over the mysterious disappearance of George Sharp, Jr., the most widely known diamond and jewel merchant in the South. He disappeared on last Friday night and has not been heard of since. No suspicion or uneasiness was aroused until Tuesday morning, when his store was closed by a representative of Stim & Co., jewellers, of New York, to whom he was indebted about $4,000. The New Yorker closed the store under proceedings against an absconding debtor. Since this action the most scrutinizing search has been made for the missing man and detectives put to work in all the important Southern cities, but nothing has yet been heard.

LARGE INDEBTEDNESS.

It appears that Mr. Sharp has been heavily involved for some time, and that his famous store was supported almost entirely upon borrowed capital. His credit has been impaired and he has been forced to go on the streets for money. By paying usurious rates of interest, and putting diamond or jewel collaterals in the hands of the lenders he has been enabled to float.

SELLING PLEDGED PROPERTY.

He has been accustomed to go to his creditors and borrow back his collaterals for the purpose of exhibiting them to his customers, returning them if not sold, or otherwise the money. On last Friday he went to each of his creditors and received his collaterals, alleging that he had a chance to sell. On Friday night he was missing, taking the collaterals with him. It is believed by many that he has fled the country.

AMOUNT OF HIS DEBTS.

A cursory investigation shows that he owes to the street brokers over $50,000, for which he had pledged $60,000 worth of diamonds. He got possession of all these diamonds before he disappeared.

EFFORTS TO FIND HIM.

A reward of $1,250 has been offered for his capture, and a telegraphic fund provided with which to direct the pursuit. His friends contend tht he will return in good faith, averring that he has frequently taken trips like this to Nashville, Charleston, Wilmington, &c., with a large lot of diamonds, and forced the sale of $10,000 or $12,000 worth and returned with the money. There are others who believe that he has committed suicide.

SUICIDE SUSPECTED.

It appears that on Thursday he sent for two physicians at different times, and consulted them as to the most facile and painless poisons, and showed a wonderful familiarity with details of all the suicides by poisons that have occurred here within the past few years. It is pretty well ascertained that he provided himself with poison on Friday. The last that was seen of him in Atlanta was when he entered a drug store, late Friday night, and hurriedly purchased a shaving brush and shaving soap.

STOCK ON CONSIGNMENT.

His direct liabilities outside of Atlanta are not very large, as it is discovered that the most of his magnificent stock was on consignment. This stock is now in the store, under charge of the Sheriff. The local press has had no mention of his disappearance and complete uncertainty hangs around the whole affair. It is rumored to-night that evidence is obtained to prove that he is hiding in Atlanta under a disguise.

THE LOST BRIG ROANOKE.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4, 1877.

William Maguire, the sole survivor of the ill-fated Roanoke, was taken before the Board of Underwriters and subjected to a searching examination to-day.

The president of the Board professed himself satisfied that the Roanoke was well manned, and in every respect a trustworthy vessel.

The insurance will be paid immediately.

THE BENDER FAMILY.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 4, 1877.

A special to the Gazette from Alma, Crawford county, gives the following in regard to the Bender family:—"George Keafor and family, supposed to be the original family of Benders, of murderous fame in Kansas, were arrested here to day by a Kansas detective, who has been shadowing them for some time."

A MISSING VICE CONSUL.

ST. JOHN, N. B., April 4, 1877.

A. D. Goodwin, United States Vice Consul and member of the firm of Quill & Goodwin, ship brokers, left for Providence, R. I., on the 20th of March, to wind up the affairs of Warner, Goodwin & Co. On the 27th of March he telegraphed to General Warner, United States Consul at St. John, that he had completed the business and had mailed that day to him $5,000, and that he would be home in a few days. Nothing has since been heard of Goodwin or the money.

FLOODS IN THE UPPER MISSOURI.

SEVERAL MEN AND MANY ANIMALS DROWNED.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE HERALD.]

BISMARCK, D. T., April 4, 1877.

The Missouri River is now free from ice at this point. The ice became gorged at Sibley Island and flooded the river bottom lands for many miles.

Mike Caldwell, Charles Tappen, William Gould and Ed. Reynolds, who were drowned in the overflow, were buried to-day. A large number of cattle and mules belonging to settlers were also drowned.

W. P. McHenry and Thomas Simpson, now in hospital at Fort Lincoln, were badly frozen.

METEOROLOGICAL PREDICTIONS.

[From Le Siècle.]

We learn by telegraph that the meteorological predictions of the NEW YORK HERALD have been fulfilled. The tempests that it foretold on the coasts of England and France for certain days of February occurred on the day named. This service will be continued, and show once again that individual initiative in this as in so many other things accomplishes more than constituted bodies. While official assemblies slumber in peaceful repose isolated individuals act. Who discovered Livingstone, lost in the solitudes of Central Africa? Not the London Geographical Society, nor yet the Paris Academy of Science, but the explorer Stanley, sent by the NEW YORK HERALD.

Who will warn you of the tempests which, from the Valley of the Mississippi or of the St. Lawrence, swoops upon Europe? Again it will be the NEW YORK HERALD; but assuredly it will not be the Director of the American Meteorological Bureau, and God only knows whether this service in the United States is conducted with zeal and skill.

[From Le Temps.]

The NEW YORK HERALD announced that atmospheric disturbances would be produced in Europe from the 17th to the 21st. Since the 17th the weather has been unsettled. Yesterday we pointed out that Sunday's fine weather could only be an episode of short duration. We must add to-day, that notwithstanding the success obtained up to yesterday by our American contemporary, and the rain of the night before last, we were not prepared to see his prediction verified with such remarkable punctuality. Our meteorologists do not appear to be moved by this great and salutary innovation. But the reception given by the French press to the efforts of the journal which undertakes so many useful enterprises will encourage it to continue the organization it has created.

AMUSEMENTS.

ITALIAN OPERA AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

A large and fashionable audience assembled last night to listen to the ever welcome strains of Verdi. The opera selected for representation by an almost entirely new company (new to a New York public) was "Un Ballo in Maschera." It has been played here so frequently we need not give the plot of a work so well known as this is.

We must confess it was a relief to listen once more to music which did not keep every nerve on the rack that some startling orchestral effect would be produced where one least expected it. Much as we admire the greater part of the "music of the future" that we have heard of late, we own to a love and fondness for the music of the present and the past, which has given, and we trust will give, pleasure to millions. We cannot afford to lay aside the operas of Beethoven, Meyerbeer, Rossini and Verdi, no matter how rich the treasures of the "future operas" may be.

The cast of the opera was as follows:—Riccardo, Signor Celada; Renato, Signor Bertolasi; Amelia, Signora Palmieri; Ulrica, Signorina Rambelli; Oscar, the page, Signorina Marck; Samuel, Signor Dal Negro. Signora Palmieri has been heard before in New York, and last night confirmed the favorable impression she then made. Her voice is somewhat worn, but she warms to her work, and was received with much applause, especially in the duet of the second act with Riccardo, "Tuo io Sto." The success of the evening, however, was the tenor, Signor Celada. Though at first suffering from nervousness apparently, he very soon rallied and proved himself an artist, and a genuine one He has a very fine voice, which he knows how to use. His singing of the charming "E. Scherzo, od è follia" brought down the house, and in this, as in all his solos, he was most enthusiasticaly encored. Indeed, the audience seemed in a mood to encore everything, proving that Italian opera, when well given, can be appreciated. The artists in this company have the great advantage of singing well together. All the concerted pieces went admirably. We wish the orchestra would not play quite so loud, especially in the passages marked pianissimo in the score. At times they almost drowned the voices by their loud playing.

EAGLE THEATRE.

That long threatened event, the appearance of Miss Anna Dickinson on the metropolitan stage, took place last night at the Eagle Theatre. It apparently excited very little general interest, for except in the orchestra seats there was plenty of vacant space in the house. For critics there was a double interest in the performance last night, for Miss Dickinson was to be judged in her dual character of dramatist and actress, and we must frankly confess that in both relations she is a failure. With commendable modesty "The Crown of Thorns" is set down on the play bills as an "acknowledged masterpiece." It does not state, however, who acknowledged it to be a masterpiece, which is well for the reputation of these people, if ever they had any. The simple truth of the matter is, that "The Crown of Thorns" has nothing very novel or original in it except the very questionable taste shown in the selection of the title, with its suggestiveness to things too sacred to be dragged through the slime of the theatre. Every thought and situation in the play is directly traceable to similar situations in other plays. Both Shakespeare and Tom Taylor have been freely borrowed from without acknowledgment. The dialogue of the play is very prosy, and the speeches, as a rule, are of great length. There is not a single new character sketched or created, and we cannot recall one bright or vigorous thought which enlivened the interminable palaver of the animated costumes that occupied the stage for three hours. If it had not been for the substitution of Mr. Arnott to play the part of King Henry VIII., originally assigned to Mr. Evans, we would be able to dismiss the whole of Miss Dickinson's company with a short and not very complimentary phrase. Mr. Arnott's performance last night was, however, of a kind to call for special condemnation. He did not appear to know his lines, and it was difficult to believe that he was seriously endeavoring to create the rôle of Henry VIII. He certainly suggested more the appearance of Carry Kinsella masquerading in a blue silk costume, his shock red wig surmounted by a spring bonnet of the latest fashion, than the ideal of the bluff King Harry. Whatever his intention was, the audience took his performance as an excellent joke; and in the serious parts especially laughed heartily at his grotesque appearane and still more grotesque acting. Of Miss Dickinson we have little to say that is complimentary and therefore wish to say as little as possible. In the first acts her voice was scarcely audible through the house, and her acting was marked by weakness and a certain gaucherie which results from her slight acquaintance with stage business. She made courageous efforts to convey her meaning to the public; but, for a strong minded woman, she is burdened with little mincing mannerisms quite out of keeping with the character of Anne Boleyn as pictured in the dialogue. Her reading, strange to say, is sadly monotonous and defective and leaves everything to be desired. In the prison scene in the last act she developed more power and succeeded better in conveying a clear idea of the passions she sought to express than in any other scene in the play. But even here the effect was marred by an affectation in the pronunciation of many words which must have grated strangely on the ears of the cultivated part of the audience. It is inexcusable that so learned a blue stocking should set the bad example of incorrect pronunciation on the stage, and permit members of her company to make such mistakes as pronouncing "Bayonne" "Bayyong," "dissimulation" "dissimilation" and "due" "jew." If educated people are going to reform the stage they must not begin to set the "poor players" so bad an example. If this mispronunciation be permitted on the stage in a few years it will be difficult to tell in what language actors are performing. Miss Dickinson will continue her performance of Anne Boleyn during the week.

THE TELEPHONE AT STEINWAY HALL.

To see Edmund Kean play, it is said, was like reading Shakespeare by flashes of lightning. The telephone does in music what his genius was supposed to have done in the drama. The experiments at Steinway Hall last night were quite successful, and the audience, which was large, evinced their interest by hearty and continued applause. The atmospheric conditions seemed to be excellent, and the tones were audible and clear. Professor Boscowitz, from his room in Philadelphia, introduced the telephonic concert by "The Suwance River," which was followed by "Hold the Fort," "Home, Sweet Home," and other popular airs. There was no perceptible difference in the quality and strength of tone between this performance and that in Brooklyn on Tuesday evening. The first part of the programme was admirable, and Miss Thursby sang exquisitely. Mme. Sauret and Signor Taghapietra were frequently encored. The following is the full programme:—Rondo Capricioso, Mendelssohn, Mme. Carreno Sauret; "Qual Turbamento," Rotolini, Signor Tagliapietra; the celebrated "Shadow Song," from "Dinorah," Meyerbeer, Miss Emma Thursby; Barcarole, Chopin, Mme. Carreno Sauret; "Stella Confidente," Rabaudy, Signor Tagliapietra; English ballad, "I love my love," Graham, Miss Emma Thursby; Fantasia Rigoletto, Liszt, Mme. Carreno Sauret; the bird song, Taubert, Miss Emma Thursby; serenade, Scuderi, Signor Tagliapietra; popular airs and melodies, performed by Mr. F. Boscovitz in Philadelphia, with explanations by Professor Elisha Gray.

THE CHILDREN'S CARNIVAL.

The Children's Carnival, which has been so much talked about during the past few weeks, and for which the most extensive preparations have been made, takes place this evening at the Academy of Music. The carnival is expected to be one of the most brilliant affairs of the kind that has ever taken place in this city. In order that the little ones who are to take part in the "scenes" as well as those who will be sure to be on hand to witness the pageant may get home in good season, the festivities will begin precisely at seven o'clock.

PROFESSOR OTTIGNON'S BENEFIT.

On Monday evening next, at Kelly & Leon's Opera House, Twenty-third street, near Sixth avenue, Professor Charles F. Ottignon will be tendered a complimentary benefit by his friends and pupils. As a scientific teacher of the art of boxing Professor Ottignon has no superior, and the few exhibitions in which he has taken a prominent part during the past ten years have been of superior merit. On this occasion there will be boxing both by professionals and amateurs—the latter of a class whose chances with the best in the country would not be slight—and just enough of other athletic business to give variety to the entertainment. Among the boxing competitions will be those between Professors William Clark and William Miller, Billy and Warwick Edwards, Professor William McClellan and a well known amateur, John Cash and one of Ottignon's pupils, Steve Taylor and Ottignon's novice, and two bouts in which the bénéficiaire will take a hand. The first of his opponents will be a celebrated amateur athlete, and the other, which will wind up the sports of the evening, that very hard hitter from Brooklyn, Johnny Dwyer.

POLICE ATHLETIC CLUB.

It is now proposed, as recommended by the HERALD some time since, by some of the members of the Police Department to petition the Commissioners for permission to organize an athletic club, composed exclusively of the force, with the purpose of improving their physical condition. The club is to have its expenses defrayed by an entrance fee of fifty cents and by monthly dues of twenty-five cents, all surplus money to be turned over to the Police Commissioners for the benefit of the widows and orphans of deceased members of the organization. The club will have one or more public games every year, open to amateurs only, and others exclusively for officers. Professor Miller, the athlete, is to be intrusted with the training of the club.

THE NEW DOMINION.

OTTAWA, Ontario, April 4, 1877.

The medals awarded to the Canadian exhibitors at the Centennial Exhibition by the American and Canadian Commissioners have arrived here and are being distributed as rapidly as possible. The American bronze medals number 600, and are very chaste in design and executed in the highest style of the art. The diplomas which accompany the medals are magnificent specimens of lithographic engraving and are worthy mementoes of the great exhibition. The Canadian medals are also admirable specimens of engraving. They have been struck from the same die, which will be preserved, so that medals which may hereafter be awarded for merit may be struck off therefrom.

RECOVERY OF LORD DUFFERIN.

The Governor General of Canada has so far recovered from his late accident as to be able to drive out.

CANADIAN BOTTOMS IN FRANCE.

A return laid before the House of Commons to-day shows the result of the correspondence between the Foreign Office and the French government with regard to duties imposed on seagoing ships of Canadian build sold in France to be that the French government interprets the treaties of 1860 and 1873 as applicable only to the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and not to the colonies.

THE INSOLVENCY BILL.

The Insolvency bill was again before the Committee of the House to-day. Objections were taken to clause No. 15, which provides under certain conditions that the judge shall not grant a discharge to an insolvent unless a dividend of fifty cents on the dollar on the unsecured claims has been or shall be paid out of the insolvent's property. An amendment striking out this clause was voted down.

THE CHURCH IN POLITICS.

The Archbishop and Bishops of Quebec have published a pastoral letter deploring the judgment of the Supreme Court in the Charlevoix election case, and declaring that the Electoral law invades the rights of the Catholic Church.

THE GRAND TRUNK AND CANADA SOUTHERN ALLIANCE.

It is stated that since the return of the General Manager of the Grand Trunk line from England steps have been taken to establish an alliance with the Canada Southern Railway at Toronto. Pooling arrangements of a very satisfactory character have already been made as to traffic between Detroit and Buffalo.

HOME FROM TEXAS.

Charles M. Garrigan, a former clerk in the office of Dodd's Express, arrived in Brooklyn yesterday from Texas in the company of a detective. About a year ago Garrigan embezzled $1,200 from his employer and suddenly departed for Texas, where he has peacefully resided until arrested several days since at Fort Worth.

WALL STREET,
WEDNESDAY, April 4—6 P. M.

Although the bears have been working tooth and nail to destroy values and prostrate prices they seem to be as much alarmed at their success as was Pygmalion when he chopped a living woman out of the inanimate marble. The plunge in Panama and Pacific Mail was more than they had bargained for, since it threatened results that were neither anticipated nor desired. It was therefore thought prudent to lay the genii of destruction which they had called into being, and they went about it systematically and sybaritically, within the precincts of an uptown hotel, by deciding that for the moment a strong upward turn should be given to the market. Exponents of the most ultra bearish views are said to have been present and to have agreed that the condition of things upon the Stock Exchange boded no good to either bulls or bears; that a panic might be precipitated with the utmost ease, and that in this event more than one prominent firm which it was desirable to keep afloat might go under. These impressions assumed practical shape this morning, when free orders were issued to purchase such stocks as Western Union, Lake Shore, Michigan Central and Central and Hudson. This action was as timely as it was unexpected, and quickly turned the existing despondency into a feeling of cheerfulness. Attending circumstances happily fell in accord, for it soon became known that Mr. John Pondir, who had been temporarily embarrassed by the sudden decline in Panama, had made his contracts good; that Mr. Park had received ready and substantial assistance from his friends, and that certain banks which were reported to have advanced par on the shares of the Isthmus road had either had such loans paid off or had been secured by additional margins. Further, it was reported that Mr. Garrett and Mr. Vanderbilt had again buried the hatchet in the matter of freight cutting, and promised to keep it buried until—well, until one or the other shall think fit to dig it up again. These favorable circumstances worked to the advantage of Panama, which rose from 87½ to 100; of Central and Hudson, which advanced from 90¼ to 92⅜; Lake Shore, 46⅝ to 47⅝, and Michigan Central from 37¼ to 40⅜. Although out of the direct line of impressions Western Union improved with the rest of the market, and, in fact, in magnitude of transactions stood at the head of the list, nearly 92,000 shares having found sellers and buyers. Sales ranged between 56 and 59½, partially due to sympathy with the other favorites and partially to the old story revamped, of some kind of agreement with the rival Atlantic and Pacific concern by which the competition in rates would practically be done away with. Less interest was manifested in the coal stocks, there being very little left to spare from those above referred to. So nearly is this true that the meeting of coal magnates was nearly overlooked. The meeting took place, nevertheless, according to agreement, which it appears was the only agreement come to, it having adjourned without hitting upon any favorable course of action, but hoping great things from the committee which is to report to-morrow. It was hardly to be expected that mud could be stirred up on the Stock Exchange without Jay Gould coming to the surface somewhere as the big tadpole in the puddle. Among the last of this afternoon's rumors is that by some hocus pocus he has obtained control of the Panama line. It has long been well known that he has aimed at this possession as a most desirable auxiliary and safeguard to the Union Pacific road, and if the report be made of anything less than whole cloth then will simply be offered an additional security upon which he may exercise his destructive capabilities.

Ex-Prison Convicts Who Have a Bad Opinion of Boston.

SEE-SAW CITY SUITS.

Another Will Controversy Involving a Half Million Estate.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE.

"Do you see those two men?" said a gentleman to another in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday. "Observe them carefully and then give me your opinion of them."

"I see nothing very special about them," responded the gentleman addressed. "They certainly are genteelly dressed and seem quiet and gentlemanly. Come to look at them more scrutinizingly one, I should say, has a decided military air, while the other has more repose of manner and a hauteur equally marked."

"I think most any one would be similarly impressed," continued the first interlocutor. "It only shows how deceptive appearances are."

"Then they are not what they seem?"

"They are two of the most adroit thieves in this country. Both have spent several terms in State prison, and they are likely to go there soon again."

"You surprise me. Who are they?"

"The taller one is Joe Butts, alias Joe Adams, and the other 'Pepperman' Joe, alias Joe Baldwin."

This conversation need not be further recited. It was noticeable, however, that they soon became objects of general attention, an intimation of their character and the cause of their appearance in court rapidly finding its way from one to another among the throng of lawyers and others in the court room. There was also observed the attendance of Inspector Dilks, Captain Walsh, Detective Waling and a host of lesser police lights. In February last, as stated at the time in the HERALD, the counting room of J. C. King & Sons, bankers, whose place of business is on the corner of Pine and William streets, was entered and $50,000 worth of bonds stolen. The prisoners were arrested on suspicion of being the guilty parties. Shortly after the robbery a wholesale transfer of detectives was made, as will be remembered, by order of the Police Commissioners, it being charged that those being assigned to look after matters in Wall street and its vicinity were in league with peculating bond thieves, who have for a long time succeeded in making this a rich field of harvest. These two prisoners following their arrest were taken to Police Headquarters and kept in close confinement with a lurking hope, it is said, that they would unbosom themselves in regard to Wall street robberies, thus inculpating several detectives. The prisoners, however, did not squeal as anticipated, and so were finally taken before Police Justice Otterbourg, when an effort was made to hold them upon a charge of being implicated in the bond robbery of King & Sons' banking house. The evidence proved to be very slight, but before their discharge a telegram was received from Boston that they were wanted there to answer a charge of burglary, and thereupon the prisoners were remanded to the care of the police authorities, to be held awaiting a requisition of the Governor of Massachusetts. On their behalf Mr. William F. Howe, their counsel, sued out writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, and pursuant to these writs they were produced yesterday before Judge Donohue in Supreme Court, Chambers. Mr. Howe moved their discharge on the commitment issued by Justice Otterbourg, upon which they were retained in custody. Judge Donohue granted this motion, when Assistant District Attorney Leary stated that two Boston officers were in court with warrants of requisition issued by the Governor of Massachusetts for their extradition to that State. Upon this statement the prisoners were given over to the charge of the Massachusetts officials. Mr. Howe immediately prepared a petition for a new writ of habeas corpus, directing that the Massachusetts officials produce the prisoners forthwith before Judge Donohue. The writ was at once granted, and Mr. Leary moved that the case be heard at once, so as to enable the Massachusetts officers to convey their prisoners without delay. Mr. Howe strenuously objected to this, and insisted that there should be given him time to prepare a traverse to the writ denying the identity of the prisoners. This was granted, and the case set down for a hearing this morning.

SUITS AGAINST THE CITY.

Bernard Lynch, who lived in 130th street, between Eleventh and Twelfth avenues, says that through lack of putting up proper embankments in the construction of the Boulevard his house was about ruined through the deluges of water pouring in after rain storms; that the walls were cracked and became mouldy; that the furniture was ruined—and, in fact, that the place became untenable. To indemnify him for the losses thus sustained he brought a suit against the city for $5,000 damages, which suit came to trial yesterday before Judge Van Brunt, holding Supreme Court, Circuit. It was claimed by the city that the work of building the Boulevard was skilfully done, and that proper embankments were constructed to protect private property. The complaint was dismissed. Messrs. Johnson & Ward and Rufus F. Andrews appeared for the plaintiff, and Assistant Corporation Counsel Miller for the city.

Frank E. Towle has brought a suit against the city to recover $8,223 30, claimed to be due him for mapping out and surveying new grades for numerous streets in 1871. The case was tried yesterday before Judge Lawrence, in the Court of Common Pleas. The defence was that the Commissioners of Public Works did not agree to pay the plaintiff more than the rate per lineal foot specified in the ordinance authorizing the work; and that this being so, his bill would be reduced to $2,530. It was further claimed that the bills were approved by the Commissioners of Public Works, either by neglect or with a fraudulent interest, and that under the law of 1871 the expense of making these maps and surveys was to be raised by tax levied by the Supervisors, and that the city was not liable to pay anything except from the fund. The jury brought in a verdict of $5,100 for the plaintiff.

SEEKING TO SET ASIDE A WILL.

Abraham Wood, who in former years was well known as a heavy importer of liquors, died in 1868, leaving an estate valued at over $500,000. The bulk of this property, comprising mainly real estate in this city and Brooklyn, he bequeathed to his cousin Samuel A. Wood. Formerly most of such property had belonged to David Wood, a brother of Abraham Wood, the former being in partnership with Samuel Wood, and Samuel A. Wood, the principal legatee of Abraham Wood, having for years been the clerk of this firm, at their place of business, No. 192 Front street. After the will had been proven and executed as to the legacies some of the relatives found fault and sought to have it set aside, claiming that it was made through undue influence and that the testator did not possess testamentary capacity. Mr. Abraham Hewlett, a nephew of the decedent, brought a suit for this purpose and for a partition of the estate. The suit has already been to the Court of Appeals, and came on for trial yesterday, before Judge Barrett, of the Supreme Court, to be tried on special issues of facts as to the alleged undue influence and testamentary incapacity. All allegations of fraud are denied by the defendants, of which Mr. Samuel A. Wood is the principal. Ex-Attorney General Chatfield, ex-Surrogate Gideon Tucker and E. O. Schenck represent the plaintiff, and Messrs. Wakeman and Latting, with Abram Wakeman, of counsel, appear for the defendants. After a lengthy preliminary discussion Judge Barrett decided that the defendants, they being the parties seeking to sustain the will, held the affirmation, and are entitled to the opening and closing of the case.

DRAWBACK DUTIES.

George W. Lake purchased of the Devoe Manufacturing Company a quantity of kerosene oil in tin cans for exportation to Japan. The cans being manufactured in this country of imported materials, on which duty had been paid, the exporter, under the United States revenue laws, was entitled to "drawback," or repayment of the duty, on giving certain bonds required by the regulations. The company shipped the goods and entered them for drawback in their own name, making affidavit that they were the exporters. The company cancelled their bond given on such entry by a certificate afterward given them by Mr. Lake, and he then demanded the drawback. They refused to pay it, saying it belonged to them. He sued for the amount in the First District Court, when the company produced a large number of witnesses to show that by the custom of the trade they, as sellers of the oil in cans to Lake for exportation, were entitled to the drawback, having made the customary deduction from the price for which they sold it in consideration of the drawback to be received. Judge Quinn held that a custom of trade could not override the positive enactment that the drawback shall go to the exporter without a special agreement, and gave judgment for plaintiff. The General Term of the Court of Common Pleas yesterday affirmed the judgment, Judge J. F. Daly giving the opinion. The exporter (the plaintiff), Judge Daly says, may treat the defendants as his agents, and to that extent ratify their act in entering the goods for drawback and may maintain his action for money so received. By delivering the certificate he ratifies their acts and cannot claim against the government. Charles Harris Phelps for plaintiff, Scudder & Carter for defendants.

LESSON FOR HOUSE AGENTS.

A case of importance to real estate owners and agents has been on trial for three days in the Court of Common Pleas, before Judge J. F. Daly and a jury, in the case of Samuel L. Isaacs vs. Morris B. Baer. It appears from the evidence that some time in November, 1875, the plaintiff engaged the defendant, who was a real estate broker, doing business at No. 72 West Thirty-fourth street, to collect the rents of his house, and, as the plaintiff alleged, to dispossess the tenant, one Margaret Lammond, in case she failed to pay the rent promptly. The plaintiff then went to Europe, and on his return, some months afterward, learned that the defendant had not collected the rent and also did not dispossess the tenant. The plaintiff then brought this action, claiming damages against the agent. The defendant testified that he did all in his power to collect the rent and that he could not succeed, and insisted that it was not his duty to dispossess the tenant. The jury, after two hours' deliberation, found a verdict for the plaintiff for $260, to which the Court added an allowance of five per cent. Samuel E. A. Stern appeared for the plaintiff, and W. B. Putney and B. F. Watson for the defendant.

BOND BUYERS BEWARE.

The Manufacturers and Builders' Bank sued Jeremiah Pangburn for $5,000, the alleged price of ten gold bonds of $1,000 each of the Pacific Division of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway sold by E. H. Ludlow & Co., September 26, 1874, at the Exchange. These formed a part of the bonds given to Henry Clews & Co., and which they hypothecated with the bank. In the advertisement of sale the bonds of the main line were placed first, but the auctioneer sold the bonds of the Pacific Division first under orders to do so. The defendant coming in just after the sale was commenced, and being informed by parties that they were selling the first lot, the main line as he supposed, bought ten bonds for $5,000. Immediately after, discovering his mistake, he notified the auctioneer that he would not take the Pacific Division bonds, that he never would have bought them at any price, as they had no market value. The case was tried before Judge Freedman in the Superior Court, and resulted yesterday in a verdict for the defendant. Messrs. Flanagan & Bright appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. John S. Lawrence and Thomas D. Robinson for the defendant.

SOME SHOW FOR STRIKERS.

Charles Sternnach, one of the striking tailors, sued Brooks Bros. for damages for alleged false arrest. The plaintiff was one of numerous other striking tailors who were in the habit of standing in front of defendants' store on Broadway, for which he was arrested on Brooks Bros.' complaint. Justice Kilbreth discharged him and he sued Brooks Bros. for $10,000 damages. Judge Robinson dismissed the complaint on the ground that the plaintiff had been engaged in an unlawful occupation—namely, "picketing." The case was appealed to the Common Pleas, General Term, which has rendered a decision reversing the judgment of the court below and ordering a new trial.

SUMMARY OF LAW CASES.

The Emma Silver Mining Company suit against Trenor W. Park and others, after a two weeks' adjournment, was resumed yesterday before Judge Wallace and a jury. The examination of witnesses was continued in the person of Mr. Dayton—under examination at the time of the enforced adjournment of the court. The testimony of the witness was in corroboration of that of Professor Silliman as to the financial resources of the mine at the time he examined it. The trial will be resumed this morning.

Judgments were entered yesterday by Douglas A. Levien, Jr., their counsel, ordering the reinstatement of Daniel Dempsey, James H. Ballentine, William Wogan, Patrick V. Doyle, James F. Cassidy and James S. Craft to the several positions held by them in the Fire Department, from which they were some time ago removed by the Board of Fire Commissioners on charges of selling their pay in advance to salary brokers. Notice was promptly served on the Fire Commissioners, who immediately obeyed the order of the Court and reinstated the men.

Heyman Copperman and Abraham Newfield some time ago had a dispute, and, as the latter alleges, Copperman vowed to have vengeance. The manner of accomplishing his object was eminently satisfactory, if a suit for damages can be regarded as any evidence. It is charged that he indicted and sent to the Daily News a communication, signed "A True Reformer," charging Newfield with having committed arson and other crimes, and suggesting that it might be proper to appoint some one else as a keeper in the Penitentiary—a position he was then occupying. The trial of a suit for damages, on account of the alleged libel, is now in progress, before Judge Freedman, in the Superior Court. The defence is that the article in question did not emanate from Copperman.

GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 1.

Before Recorder Hackett.

THE LOTTERY DEALERS.

Twenty-seven persons charged with the violation of the lottery law, and who were recently arrested at the instance of Mr. Comstock, agent of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, were in court yesterday for trial. Mr. J. R. Fellows, who, with Mr. William F. Kintzing and ex-Judge Dittenhoefer, appeared for the defendants, moved for an adjournment until Monday next. The Recorder granted the motion.

STRAW BAIL CASES.

Thomas L. Birch, charged with perjury in having given what is known as "straw" bail, was taken before the Recorder for disposal. Assistant District Attorney Bell stated that he had certificates from the physician of the Tombs setting forth that Birch was the victim of epileptic fits and altogether unfit for trial. Mr. Bell added that from what he knew of the facts he thought it would be dangerous to put him on trial. Under the circumstances he would ask the Court to discharge the accused on his own recognizance. The Recorder granted the motion, and Birch was accordingly discharged.

ROBBING A POLICEMAN.

The trial of Kate White and Mary Ann Madden for stealing $54 from the person of Police Officer Bernard Dunn, of the steamboat squad, on the morning of the 3d of March last, at the corner of Elizabeth and Canal streets, was resumed yesterday. The jury convicted both prisoners, and White was sent to the State Prison for two years and Madden to the same institution for eighteen months.

THE PISTOL AGAIN.

William Reilly, alias "Screw" Reilly, was charged with felonious assault, in having fired a pistol at R. F. Pooton, who keeps a liquor store at No. 500 Third avenue, on the morning of the 25th of February. The accused became disorderly when he was put out, and as the door was slammed in his face he fired a pistol, the ball entering the woodwork. The jury found him guilty of assault, with intent to injure, and he was sent to the State Prison for two years and six months.

SHOOTING HIS FATHER-IN-LAW.

Victor Oese was arraigned at the bar, charged with shooting at his father-in-law, R. C. Charlton, of 144th street and Clinton avenue, and wounding him in the neck. The prisoner pleaded guilty and was sent to the State Prison for three years.

GENERAL SESSIONS—PART 2.

Before Judge Gildersleeve.

AN OLD OFFENDER PUNISHED.

William Raymond, with an accomplice, sauntered into the jewelry store of Simon Mehrback, No. 817 Broadway, on the 27th of March last. Raymond began to examine an assortment of watches which Mehrback exhibited. The latter heard the door of his safe shut, and, on looking around, saw the confederate running off with a pocketbook containing $266. Raymond joined his companion and both were pursued by Mehrback, who captured Raymond with the money in his possession. The prisoner, on being arraigned for trial yesterday by Assistant District Attorney Rollins, pleaded guilty and was sent to the State Prison for two years and six months.

SEAMAN RAYMOND RELEASED.

An examination of the charges preferred against the seaman Eugene K. Raymond, by Captain H. S. Reidwit, of the schooner R. S. Eddie, took place before United States Commissioner Winslow, in Brooklyn, yesterday. The accused was brought to this port in confinement, on board the vessel named, from Rio Grande do Sul, he having on the voyage brandished an axe above the captain's head and threatened the mate with a sheathknife. The particulars of the case were published in the HERALD of yesterday. The evidence of the captain and mate went to show that though Raymond had been kept in confinement in the mate's room on deck, after the episode with the axe and knife, he was not ill treated. He was fed from the cabin table, but at times refused to eat his rations. Several sailors testified to having given him food at his request, day and night. As nobody was hurt and the officers of the vessel believed that the accused had been out of his mind, owing, doubtless, to previous sickness, the Commissioner dismissed the case, and the sailor left the court room.

FIRE INSURANCE SUIT.

The trial of the suit brought against the North American Fire Insurance Company by Charles A. Burnley and Samuel F. Prentice, trustees for the Aldine Publishing Company, of this city, to recover on a policy $2,800, was commenced in the Kings county Supreme Court, Circuit, before Judge Pratt and a jury. The Aldine building, 18 Liberty street, was destroyed by fire June 24, 1875. The defendants claim the valuation put upon the stock, which embraced a large amount of imported chromos, was excessive. The trial involves important legal questions to insurance companies and will occupy the remainder of the week.

CALENDAR.

The day calendar for Thursday, April 5, is as follows:—Nos. 253, 118, 267, 270, 270½, 271, 272 and 273.

TO UTAH FOR A DIVORCE.

Mrs. Mary L. Smith, of No. 302 East Eighteenth street, on the 3d inst. appeared before Judge Smith, at the Fifty-seventh Street Court, and asked for support of herself and two children from her husband, Mr. George W. Smith. The latter, who had been arrested on a warrant, put in a plea that he was divorced from his wife some months ago in Utah, the decree having been given by Judge Cox. On his promise to appear for examination he was paroled. Yesterday both Mr. and Mrs. Smith were in court. Mrs. Smith testified that she is the lawful wife of George W. Smith.

Counsel for Mr. Smith objected to the testimony on the ground that defendant had been divorced from complainant by a decree of divorce granted in the Territory of Utah on the 3d day of November, 1876. The objection was overruled.

Mrs. Smith continued—I was married to my husband nine years ago in Christopher street on New Year's Eve; I now live with my brother-in-law at No. 302 East Eighteenth street; I ceased living with my husband in the early part of last September; we were then living in Duffield street, Brooklyn; he is the father of my two children, Herbert H., aged six, and George F., aged four; my husband has not provided for my support or that of my two children since September; I had not seen him since he left me till yesterday when he appeared in court; after he left me I heard from him on the 1st of last December, when I received a letter from him saying he had a decree of divorce from me.

In answer to a question by the Court she replied:—I have not received any assistance since last September; he left me with $35; he told me he was doing well and making money; for a short time before going away he said he was earning $25 a week; he told me he was going to Cincinnati to open an office for the sale of sewing machines, when he left, in September; we kept house in Brooklyn for three years before he left; he was then an agent for a sewing machine.

In her cross-examination she said:—The first notice I received was the decree of divorce; I received a letter from my husband, in care of his brother, saying that he had procured a divorce from me.

Here the case was adjourned for a further hearing. Mr. Smith gives his present business as that of a real estate agent.

CORONERS' CASES.

The jury at the inquest held yesterday by Coroner Ellinger, on the body of Thomas Kennedy, returned a verdict to the effect that he died from injuries received by kicks or blows at the hands of some person or persons unknown, on the 22d of March, 1877. The testimony of Captain McElwaine, of the Seventh precinct, by whom the deceased was sent to the New York Hospital, did not throw any light on the matter, and it was quite evident that the man who came to the station house did not know anything about his assailants. He told different stories, such as that he had fallen and hurt himself; but he could not relate accurately where he had been hurt. He was a poor fellow who slept in stables and alleys.

The jury in the case of little Mary Carroll found that she died of convulsions, following shock and nervous irritation due to accidentally swallowing a safety pin on the 9th of February, 1877, at No. 38 Thomas street.

FIREMEN REINSTATED.

Some time ago a large number of firemen were dismissed on charges preferred against them of selling their pay to brokers. A recent decision of the Supreme Court in one of the cases ordered the relator's reinstatement. At a meeting of the Fire Commissioners yesterday the following firemen were ordered to assume their regular duties:—John Cassidy, Daniel Dempsey, Patrick Doyle, J. S. Craft, James H. Ballentine and William Woogan, they having been dismissed on similar charges.

SAMUEL AND JULIA.

CUPID AND CROSS PURPOSES IN THE NEWARK PRESBYTERY.

The last session of the Newark Presbytery furnished a sensation of widespread interest in the matter of the trial of Rev. Mr. See for violating St. Paul's command in that he did not compel women to keep silence in his church. The Presbytery is now in session again, and yesterday, at the close of the afternoon session, well on toward evening, took up what is known as the Bowman case—"and thereby hangs a tale." Upon a motion made the session was prolonged, in order that a report might be presented from a special committee appointed at the last meeting of the Presbytery on the above case. Rev. Dr. F. Smith read the report. Before giving the essence of the latter it is best to spread out in brief the facts of the case. Samuel A. Bowman is a good looking young "limb of the law," twenty-eight years old, who resides with his father at Caldwell. Near the Bowman family dwells Miss Julia Orton who, though blind in the ordinary sense, is not as regards the lovable qualities of Samuel. Some five years ago Julia commissioned Samuel to go to New York and purchase a piano for her. She gave him $275. He bought for her a piano that, as he declares, cost $380. Samuel now wants the $105 he paid for the piano over the amount given him. Julia, it appears, is quite willing to give this if she herself is taken also. To the latter part of the offer Samuel objects. And there the case remains. Out of it, however, has grown another case—that which is now before the Presbytery. It seems that Bowman's father owns property on both sides of the church at Caldwell, and got into a dispute about certain fences alongside. Mr. Bowman got the best of the dispute. Then, as it is alleged, the pastor of the church, Rev. Charles T. Berry, preferred a grave charge in the church against young Bowman, who was a member. The charge was that in the piano transaction Samuel paid only $250 for the instrument, and basely pocketed the surplus $25 belonging to Miss Julia. The pastor has a paper signed by the piano dealers saying that $250 was the price paid. Bowman has a receipt showing that $380 was paid. He was tried and suspended. He demanded a hearing from the Presbytery. A committee was appointed and it was this which reported yesterday. In the report Rev. Drs. J. F. Smith, J. F. Stearns and J. Reeve Sayre, the committee declare that they gave the matter careful examination and find that the church at Caldwell erred in finding Mr. Bowman guilty of the offence charged against him and executed sentence upon him without giving him a trial. Instead of a trial there was a mere deliberation upon certain rumors. The report concludes with the recommendation that the session of the church at Caldwell be directed to proceed at once to the regular trial of Mr. Samuel A. Bowman, and to issue his case according to the rules prescribed in their Book of Discipline; and inasmuch as the sentence of suspension pronounced on Mr. Bowman was publicly read from the pulpit that they announce publicly this action of the Presbytery and their intention to proceed accordingly.

A motion to adopt the report was vigorously opposed by Drs. Wilson and McIlvaine, both of whom contended that they could not indorse or vote with propriety upon the report without having it clearly proven wherein the Caldwell church had erred. The motion to adopt was lost, and it was decided to consider the report to-day after the examination of candidates for the ministry.

UNITARIAN CONFERENCE.

The New York and Hudson River Conference of the Unitarian Church was in session yesterday at the Church of Our Saviour (Rev. Dr. Putnam's), corner of Monroe place and Pierrepont street, Brooklyn. The Troy Church reported that Rev. William H. Fish had accepted the call to that church and was present at the Conference. No report from Albany. The Newburg Church reported that their pastor had left them; that the church was in good condition financially, and the prospects for the future were bright. No report from Yonkers. The church at Harlem reported that the church was without a pastor, and in debt to the amount of $400; a subscription of $900 which had been made among the churches had not been collected on account of some factious opposition. The Church of the Messiah in this city reported that their only difficulty was finances; the church, however, was in a fair condition; they were in the utmost harmony regarding their pastor, Rev. Mr. Algier. The Church of All Souls (Rev. Dr. Bellows) was reported to be in good condition. The Unitarian churches of Brooklyn were all reported to be prospering.

METHODIST CONFERENCES.

RONDOUT, N. Y., April 4, 1877.

The New York Methodist Episcopal Conference began its eighty-seventh annual session in Kingston this morning. Bishop W. L. Harris presides. He spoke of the death of Bishop Janes who had been designated to preside, and recommended appropriate memorial action. Rev. Alexander McLean was chosen Secretary, and Rev. A. Ostrander and C. W. Millard assistants. A letter was read from Rev. William Lloyd, announcing his withdrawal from the Church pending the discussion on the disagreement in the White Plains Church. The Conference then adjourned till to-morrow. There was preaching this afternoon by Rev. John Johns, and this evening by Rev. Dr. Loss and Rev. Dr. Lull.

NEW YORK EAST CONFERENCE.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 4, 1877.

The New York East Conference began its session today at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Bishop Jesse T. Peck presiding and Rev. Daniel Goodsell, secretary. To-day's session was devoted to organization, the appointment of committees, &c. A part of the exercises will be a lecture by Joseph Cook, of Boston, at the Opera House this evening.

NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE.

BOSTON, April 4, 1877.

The New England Conference opened this morning at the First Methodist Church at Lynn, Rev. Bishop Foster, D. D., presiding, and Mr. A. Manning being chosen scretary.

THE GOSPEL OF PEACE.

Resolutions on the Southern question, presented by Rev. W. F. Mallalieu, D. D., of Boston, were received with great applause, and referred to a special committee. The preamble to the resolutions review the blighting effects of slavery and the two final resolutions are in substance as follows:—

Resolved, That we are alarmed and filled with apprehensions for the future when we contemplate the practical sale of one of the great political parties of the Republic by two politicians of that party who have held and now hold very intimate relations to the President, thus sacrificing principle and party and righteousness for the sake of temporary success.

Resolved, That we protest most earnestly against the action of the new administration in making terms with the chief of the Kuklux instigator of the Hamburg massacre, M. C. Butler, and still more earnestly do we protest against the official recognition by the administration of that arch enemy of the Republic, who long since ought to have been hung for treason, Wade Hampton, of South Carolina, and who now, by threats and intimidation under the very roof of the White House, as well as on railroad platforms and in other public places, defies the power of the government and bullies the President into compliance with his traitorous and wicked usurpations.

Rev. D. Sherman, D. D., presiding elder of the Boston district, presented the report, and the Conference adjourned.

CHURCH AID.

The ladies of the Grace Baptist Church, Fifty-third street, near Seventh avenue, will give the third entertainment of their series in aid of the "purchase fund" at the church this evening. The programme consists of readings by Miss Louisa Lesslie, interspersed with music by Miss Rosalie Rosenbluth, of New York, who will preside at the piano. Miss Lesslie comes to this city with a famous New England reputation as a reader, while Miss Rosenbluth is well known in musical circles as an amateur of unusual promise. The church is expected to be crowded.

A VICIOUS OLD WRETCH.

Martin Delany, about fifty years of age, who keeps a second hand bookstore at No. 85 Sixth avenue, was arraigned before Judge Otterbourg, at Jefferson Market Police Court, yesterday, on two separate charges of indecent assault preferred by two little girls, eight and nine years of age respectively. Delany was arrested Tuesday evening by Officer McDowell, of the Ninth precinct, the parent of one of the children who had been assaulted having made a complaint at the Charles street station house. After his arrest became known it was discovered by the parents of several children, residing in Barrow, Grove and Morton streets and vicinity, that similar assaults had been made on their children. It was Delany's habit to intercept the children on their way home from school and by gifts of toy books and pennies entice them into his place, which is a basement not visible to passers by in the street. It is said that as many as thirteen persons called at the Charles street station house yesterday in reference to this wretch. Two complaints were taken against him in court and he was held in $500 bail to answer on each.

CITY DEBT STATEMENT.

Comptroller Kelly yesterday issued his monthly statement of the city's finances. The debt on March 31 was $122,611,438 78. The total amount of stocks and bonds issued during the three months of 1877 was $4,580,301 90. During the same period warrants were drawn by the Comptroller, for all purposes, amounting to $9,408,201 74.

MUNICIPAL NOTES.

Several of the heads of city departments assembled at the Mayor's office yesterday for the purpose of holding their usual monthly conference. No regular meeting was held and no formal discussion took place.

The employes of the Department of Public Works were yesterday paid their salaries for March by Comptroller Kelly.

The sum of $1,890 45 was yesterday paid into the city treasury by Chamberlain Tappan, being part of interest moneys on city deposit.

"THEM TWO UDDER FELLERS."

William Britt and James Long, two little scamps, were yesterday before Justice Morgan, at the Harlem Police Court, on a charge of disorderly conduct. The boys snuffled and knuckled their eyes as though they believed the offence to be a capital one.

"'Twas ever thus," mused His Honor, "all the bad boys in every Sunday school book ever read, were named Bill and Jim. Prisoners at the bar, what say you—guilty, or not guilty?"

The culprits redoubled their snuffling and knuckling and yelped in chorus, "No, it was dem two udder fellers!"

The complainant, a young lady and a teacher in one of the schools, then took the youngsters in hand.

"What!" she exclaimed, "didn't you chalk bad words on the sidewalk? And did you not put tar on the door knobs? And do you deny that you threw that dead cat in at the hall window?"

"No," the urchins bawled, "them udder fellers fired it."

His Honor said he would take the papers and reserve his decision, but he thought it was a case of House of Refuge for the term of their natural lives. More howls. And, in the meantime, he would immure them in the deepest dungeon beneath the Court House stairs. Awful yells. Five minutes afterward they were brought into court again and released upon taking the pledge. As they departed from the court room each was presented with a copper coin by a benevolent old gentleman, and when last seen, their faces smeared with taffy, both were "hooking" a ride on a 125th street car.

LEGAL MUSCLE.

Two lawyers, named respectively Crosby and Meyers, not content with indulging their litigious proclivities in court, yesterday got into a wordy altercation subsequently in the corridor. From words they soon came to blows, and for a brief time the scene was both lively and exciting. There was quite a disparity in the size of the belligerents. The little one showed pluck, however, and struck his opponent in the face. This was rather more than the bigger one could stand, so he in turn struck out from the shoulder, prostrating his lilliputian assailant at a single blow, after which he sat on him and thus tried to squelch him. The combatants were then separated, and departed from the building, not, however, without expressing all kinds of threats against each other, and with mutual vows of vengeance dire.

DESTITUTION IN JERSEY CITY.

The congregation of large groups of unemployed laborers, yesterday, in the vicinity of Beacon, Laidlaw, Summit and Newark avenues, Jersey City, gave rise to rumors that a bread riot was imminent. Information was sent to the Third precinct station and the police were on the alert, but no cause arose for interference. The men spoke freely, however, of the great destitution prevailing among their families. Many who had worked during the winter on half time and for small wages are now entirely idle. From the statements made it would seem that the destitution is far greater than the public ever supposed. Grocers and other creditors not being able to obtain payment of their bills are also in great straits. This section of Jersey City is densely populated with the laboring class, hundreds of whom found employment in the excavation of the new tunnel, but as that enterprise is now completed these laborers are thrown out of employment. The reduction of the hands on the Erie Railway recently has added to the discontent and destitution. There are no street or public improvements in progress. Some of the men propose to send a committee to wait on Mayor Siedler and ask him to recommend to the Boards of Finance and Public Works under the incoming administration the necessity for some public improvements which have been suspended for the past three years under the policy of municipal economy.

THE ELEVATED RAILROAD.

The temporary depot of the Elevated Railroad at Whitehall street is almost completed and everything put in readiness for the opening of the road to the South ferry to-day. A new passenger depot at the foot of Morris street was finished yesterday evening, and the old one at the Bowling Green was closed. The new station at Morris street is intended for the accommodation of business men who found the old depot convenient when their business had closed for the day. Trains from the South ferry will reach this point in three minutes after starting. The new time table making provision for 228 trains over the road daily takes effect to-day. By the new schedule the trains of the Elevated road will connect with all the trains of the Hudson River Railroad. The officers think that with their present arrangements all the possible facilities for rapid and comfortable travel as far as their road extends on the west side is afforded to the public. In order to make the road across the Battery as ornamental as possible, trailing vines will be interwoven between the columns, which will completely hide the superstructure from view.

RAPID TRANSIT IN JERSEY.

The New Jersey Central Railroad officials have agreed to take the sum of $700 subscribed by citizens in the Bergen district of Jersey City and locate a station at the Jackson avenue crossing. This will prove a convenience to a large number of passengers in this growing section. The residents of the Hudson City section have been agitating for the past two years the question of having a passenger station located at the Baldwin avenue crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad; but they have not yet succeeded, though it would solve the question of rapid transit to a very important district of the city.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

Red signal flags floated from both towers of the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday morning to inform vessels that an attempt was in progress to adjust the guide wires for the main cables. In consequence, however, of the high wind blowing over the river it was impossible to proceed with the work. Another attempt to accomplish the desired result will be made to-day.

THE BOOK TRADE SALE.

The publishers are very much encouraged by the way the trade sale has gone so far. All the books that were worth anything brought good prices and those that were worthless brought little. This division of the spoils has given general satisfaction, as publishers are a sensible lot of men, though they sometimes make mistakes in gauging public tastes, as the Osgood clearance sale proved. The sale yesterday by the Messrs. Leavitt was a little better than that of the day before. In most instances the books were duplicated, and the demand for good books was greater than the catalogue supply. To-day and to-morrow will be the heaviest days of the sale. Large invoices from the Scribner firms and the Harpers come on those days.

THE HEMPSTEAD RESERVOIR.

The referees appointed by the City Court to examine the evidence in the claim of Messrs. Kingsley & Keeney, contractors for the Hempstead Storage Reservoir, for "extra" services and material, amounting to $178,000, resumed their long suspended proceedings yesterday in the Common Council Chamber, Brooklyn. James M. Smith, contractor, was examined as to the value of labor and the price of excavating in 1872, when the costly reservoir was commenced. William B. Kannedy, Moses Noyes, John J. Flanigan and W. A. Kellogg also testified, as experts, as to the prices current at that time for the work performed by the plaintiffs.

A NEW STEAMER LAUNCHED.

The Old Dominion Steamship Company have added a new steamer to their line. She is named the Accomac, and was launched yesterday with the usual ceremonies from the ship yard of C. & R. Poillon, Bridge street, Brooklyn. Her machinery will be put on board at the Morgan Iron Works, in this city. The Accomac is 135 feet in length on the keel, 25 feet beam and 8 feet 6 inches depth of hold.
